STATE FRUIT GROWERS.

Officers of the Amber Cane Association-- Why President Northrop Opposes a New Agricultural College. The morning session of the State Horticultural society opened yesterday with a report of the seedling committee, consisting of G. W. Fuller, of Litchfield; John S. Harris, of La Crescent, and A. W. Dias, of Rochester. Peter M. Gideon, of Excelsior, read a paper on "Our New Seedlings." A resolution indorsing Mr. Gideon's theory was adopted by the convention. The afternoon was taken up with the business of the Amber Cane association. President Blakeley presided. Reports of the association's officers were received, and the following officers were elected for next President Blakeley's address was a lengthy document, devoted to the subject Resolutions passed by the Indiana Cane Growers' association asking for national legislation to protect the industry, were read and indorsed. An informal discussion about the result of the year's work drew out remarks from J. F. Porter, who made 2,400 gallons of syrup last year, Mr. Day, of Farmington, and

PRESIDENT NORTHROP'S VIEWS. At the meeting last evening O. C. Gregg delivered a short address on county and state fairs, paying particular attention to fakirs and the sale of liquor on the grounds, and expressing a desire that proper legislation should be brought about whereby these evils might be done away with Mr. Gregg, was followed by President Cyrus D. Northrop, of the state university. He did not propose to read an essay on fruit growing, but rather spoke on the general subject of agricultural education. He said:

Agricultural education began with the organization of agricultural societies. Under the stimulus of these societies fruits, grains and stock have developed from their stnit ed condition to their present degree of excellency. It is no longer a question of mere existence with the human family, it is rather the amount of comfort and even luxury which may be obtained. Famine is no longer thought of, since the fact has been discovered that Mother Earth is capable of producing enough for all of her children. The idea that any man can be a farmer has passed away, and in its stead comes a demand for agricultural education, and the supply has been equal to the demand. If the liberal policy of the regents in bringing the experimental farm and agricultural college to its present degree of excellency does not succeed in bringing students to the college, the regents are not to blame. When I came to the university, two years ago, there was but one student in the agricultural college. He graduated at the end of the year, and the second year opened without a student. It was clearly that either there would be no students in the course of agriculture or we must hold out special inducements. We have followed the latter course by making the entrance examinations much easier than those necessary for entrance in other courses. The result is that we have four students in the course this year. They have formed a class in practical agriculture, to which boys are admitted without examinations, and are even paid for working. Last year there were ten students in this class. Finally, as the mountain would not come to Mahommet, Mahommet must go to the mountain; that is, if the farmers' sons would not come to the agricultural college, then the benefits of the college must be ex-tended to them, and farmers'

INSTITUTES WERE BEGUN. The results of these institutes have been seen by all of you. Our great danger and one which the state ought to avoid, is the unnecessary duplication of schools or colleges giving the same kind of education. If spe-cial schools are needed their place is at the state university. It is by concentration of educational forces and material that great institutions are built up. The one science that is more important than any other is agrithat is note important than any other is agri-cultural chemistry. I oppose the establish-ment of an agricultural college because it will involve needless expenditure of money, and consequently will cause increased taxa-tion. The onward march of the institution in sister states warn us that concerted action is necessary to keep us from falling behind.

Minnesota has all the advantages for maintaining its present standard of usefulness. Shall it be the university of the state, or shall it be an aggregation of high schools? I appeat to you for your hearty support and co-opera-

At the end of the address, it was moved and seconded that a vote of thanks be extended to President Northrup and also that the address be incorporated in the report of

The St. Paul Presbytery After an All Day Debate Indorses the Pastor of the First Presbyterian

The St. Paul presbytery resumed its efforts to compose the troubles in the First Presbyterian church yesterday morning, and continued in session all day with the exception of an intermission at noon. At the morning session Mr. Cooper withdrew his claim to a seat, which saved much time and a long discussion. The presbytery then considered the report of the commission and finally referred it back to the comother words, to put its recommendations into a brief form. When the members as-sembled in the afternoon the commission reported a brief digest of the full report. It was in favor of Dr. West and against his opponents. It was adopted after a discussion that lasted all the aftermoon, during which Drs. Christie and Wood gave their views at some length. Nearly all of the talking was in regard to the law and the constitution of the church. After the formal adoption of the report of the commission, the resolution reported at Tuesday's session was adopted, to the effect that the church should be opened at the usual times for service and properly heated and lighted for divine service. clinch the action of the presbytery on the report of the commission another resolu-tion was adopted that the presbytery of St. Paul recognizes and confirms as it own the orders and acts passed in its name by the commission with respect to the First Presbyterian church of St. Paul, It was also resolved that all persons who have received letters of dismission from the church by the commission against their wishes might return them to the clerk of the commissio The presbytery then adjourned.

Mr. McClung Comes to the Front Again on the Necessity of Park Improvements.

To the Editor of the Globe. In your report of the proceedings of the chamber of commerce Monday you give undue prominence to my remarks about the haste with which the $500,000 bridge bill was pushed through the legislature without the qaulifying words I used, which, if reported, would have relieved my remarks of an apparent harshness towards the delegation. I spoke particularly kindly of my old friend, Smith, who was elected to do just that very work and was heaven by how dead it. But the spoke particularly kindly of my old friend, Smith, who was elected to do just that very work and was heaven by how dead it. But the spoke is the spoke is the spoke is the spoke in the spoke is the spoke is the spoke in the spoke is t work and was honorably bound to do it. But what lobject to is that our other representa-tives in both houses, who were not elected to do this local business, should permit one single interest, and that a local interest, to hog all the bonds and crowd out that great interest which concerns every part of the city as well as the Fourth ward—I mean the opening of parks and boulevards before all our opportunities are lost. I think the issue the issue every interest should be consulted the issue every interest should be consulted and allowed a fair proportion of the bonds. The matter is of too much importance to let a few men decide it, while the taxpayers must sit still and not be consulted. Who was it, for instance, that determined we must issue $400,000 more bonds for sewers, when all lateral sewers are paid for by assessments? Who was it that determined and Who was it that determined and settled it that $300,000 bonds must be issued for school purposes, besides the enormous di-rect tax levied directly and paid in cash? Mr. Murray did not condescend to tell us parks, there must be discussion and opposi-tion. Parks were put off two years ago with the paltry sum of $25,000, and we have lost a ng back in assessments, and the property secured is worth $1,800,000. Mr. Murray says we cannot issue half so many, although we are far behind her in all these esthetic improvements, which would add millions to our wealth, attract strangers, and are as essential to health as sewers. I trust we shall cut off and cut down those large estimates of Murray's for other purposes, and let the park interest have a fair share of the bonds, especially as they are to be paid by assessments and are not properly a city debt.

A GREAT PAINTING.

Constart's "Justinian," Recently Purchased By Robert Mann-heimer, Placed On Exhibition.

Robert Mannheimer's recently imported sainting, "Justinian," by the famous painting, "Justinian," by the famous artist, M. Benjamin Constart, was exhibited for the first time in America yesterday from 12 to 2 p. m., at the store of Mannheimer Bros., corner Third and Minnesota streets. It was this work which won for M. Benjamin Constart the medal of honor at the salon of 1886. The picture was secured by Mr. Mannheimer direct from the artist, and is among the most valuable works of art ever brought to St. Paul. The great emperor, "Justinian," surrounded by his collabor ators, is portrayed in a magnificent hall of the palace at Constantino ple, engaged in the work of forming the Justinian code. The grave, restful fea-tures, full of conscious powers of the man who shone as a musician, architect, lawyer and theologian, are admirably presented, and the gorgous and splendid trappings and rich fabrics of ancient royalty are exquisitely rendered upon the canvas. Mr. and Mrs. Stockton will leave to-day for the east by special car. The exact route that they will take had not been decided upon last night, but they will probably take the Milwaukee from here to Chicago, and from there go by the Pennsylvania route to New York. During their eastern sojourn Mr. and Mrs. Stockton will Arrested for Stealing a Team. On Tuesday morning Mike McNeerny was invited by two companions to take a sleigh ride to Minneapolis. On the road one of the men said he owned the rig and was anxious to sell it. McNeerny, according to the statement of a Minneapolis sa-loon-keeper, offered to sell the rig for $80, and asked for only half the money down. Yesterday a warrant was sworn out for the arrest of the two by J. W. Hope, proprietor of the stable where the outfit was hired, and late in the afternoon McNeerney was arrested. The others will be brought in arrested. The others will be brought in to-day if they can be apprehended.

What Some Men Said.

John McCauley—No, sir. I'm opposed to putting Greely in the place made vacant by the death of Gen. Hazen. Greely has been up there in those hyperborean regions so long that if he would get a chance he would give us the coldest end of the North pole every
