

MINNEAPOLIS MENTION

The Presbyterian Alliance Not Certain Whether There Should Be a Split in the Organization.

A Mass Meeting Called to Protest Against the Advisability of Forming a Court House Commission.

State Grain Weighers Charged With Loose Methods—Annual Meeting of the Caledonians.

Sons of Temperance Against High License—A Meeting of the Liquor Dealers.

SHALL WE DIVIDE? That is the question which agitates the Presbyterian Alliance.

Notwithstanding the storm last evening there was a large attendance at the meeting of the Presbyterian alliance, at the Park Avenue church, to consider the advisability of dividing the St. Paul presbytery, and making a separate Minneapolis presbytery.

Rev. Mr. Patterson, after presiding over the routine business, Rev. Mr. Campbell presented a paper in which he strongly favored the forming of a Minneapolis presbytery.

He said that in the early days it was necessary to take in many cities in order to make the presbytery large enough, and now it had become too large and should be divided.

Rev. Mr. Wells, pastor of the Franklin Avenue church, said that at first he had been opposed to having a Minneapolis presbytery, but on mature thought had concluded that it would be best, as practically there was one already.

The chairman said that he would like to hear a free expression of opinion on the subject. Prof. Kiehle then spoke of the supposed bitterness which existed between Minneapolis and St. Paul, and remarked that if such a thing really did exist this general presbytery did most toward putting it at rest.

He did not favor a separation, saying that St. Paul frequently came up to Minneapolis to help the churches, and that Minneapolis frequently aided St. Paul churches. He said: "If we do form a separate presbytery there will be those who will say it was done out of petty malice."

While he did not say St. Paul people would leave it in this way, they might, and that would be very unpleasant. Some Minneapolis people appear to think that they own the earth, but if they would go down to St. Paul frequently, as I do, they would soon find out that they are mistaken.

Rev. Dr. Stryker—Such a separation would be very bad, because we need St. Paul's help, and St. Paul needs our help, too. Besides, it would be expensive. Rev. Mr. Wells—That it would be expensive is all that can really be said against a separation.

held at Harmonia hall Friday, Feb. 1, 1887, to protest against the creation of a court house commission and any other commission which aims to subvert the will of the people to the interests of the wealthy few, who are endeavoring to legislate themselves into power.

FOR HOME RULE. Mass Meeting to Protest Against Commission Legislation. That the people, without regard to political affiliations, are opposed to the proposed several commissions is evident in the report taken in every session of the city in the meetings to protest. The working classes are especially stirred up, and those papers which sent out a howl about somebody using the name of labor are now discreetly silent.

THE LIQUOR DEALERS. The Retail Liquor Dealers' association held an executive meeting yesterday afternoon. The business transacted can only be conjectured, as no details were given out for publication.

CURRENT COMMENT. It is understood that the new law and order league, which is creating a sensation through the medium of the grand jury, is in no way pending before the legislature, but they alone shall suffer. They say that the day soldiers, of no matter what articles, shall be treated alike. It is also understood that their articles are less an individual than Col. Ed A. Stevens.

It asserts that the municipal police have broken up many gambling houses, but that the gamblers propose to make "trouble" unless they are met with an establishment.

AT THE THEATERS. Frederic Boock is soon to appear at Pence Opera house in "Othello." The play is to be well cast and a handsome costumed.

Like Joseph's Coat. Hon. Ignatius Donnelly is an able man, and possesses our legislators as an able leader. His ability no one can question; but his political life is too variegated, like Joseph's coat, of many colors, to inspire a thorough trust in his conduct.
