

MEN OF MINNEAPOLIS.

Fables and Follies of Some of the Prominent Dwellers in the City of Flour and Lumber.

Sharp Lances Leveled at the Individualities of Men Who Are Better Known Than Others.

What They Have to Say for Themselves and What Others Find to Say About Them.

Good-Natured Quips and Quirks--Bate and Chestnuts Indiscriminately Mixed Up.

Col. William S. King is one of those public characters who cannot keep before the public. When he is not making himself conspicuous some one else is doing it for him. The public will stand more of him and from him than from almost anybody else, because there is a dim, shadowy tradition that he once did something very important for Minneapolis. Some one will be taking him over the coals, when suddenly he will pull himself together and say, "Oh, well, he has done much for Minneapolis, and in many ways Col. King is a great man. He is not what might be called an orator, but he has a geyser-like flow of vigorous English that is frequently more forcible than parliamentary, and when he has a sentiment the power of the falls of St. Anthony over him, he is expressing it. He has one failing--his memory is too good. Once upon a time there was bad feeling and jealousy between Minneapolis and St. Paul, but Col. King came and realized that that time has passed and nothing but a generous rivalry remains. Now that fortune has smiled on him and endowed him with rose-colored nose glasses, he should take a more pleasant view of things. He doesn't own Minneapolis and doesn't control sentiment here any longer, and should, good naturedly, realize this fact. He should also remember, in speaking of snipe-headed officials, that fortune hasn't swelled everybody's head; and that the old saw goes, "little head, little wit; big head, not a bit."

It is presumed that Col. F. Davis will not disclose any more fondish plots within the next thirty days.

Capt. E. C. Babo is said to be the most conscientious of the aldermen, but he is not willing to stand the storm for three years more.

Architect Bullington will not consider himself indorsed until the house of representatives formally declares the capitol safe.

Col. A. J. Blethen was for long license when first came to Minneapolis. It was not until George Shaw showed him a copy in the Journal that he changed his mind. In the meantime he was introduced to Gen. Nettleton.

Jay C. Williams should smile--one of those slow fatal smiles--on those new members who oppose paying his claim. Just one smile would settle it.

Calvin W. Clark is said to favor redistricting the city, for he knows he could never be re-elected under any circumstances.

Col. J. H. McLaughlin wants something to do with the city. He should try high license a bout or two.

J. H. Paulson, the chess player, amuses himself by arranging impossible problems for the members of the club's puzzle event. Judge Scagrove Smith reads the legislative reports with interest and watches the mails for an official communication.

Capt. J. C. Reno occasionally dreams, and under every vision there enters a sight of steamboats paddling up over the apron of the falls a d landing in the canal.

Col. Frank E. Nimrocks, managing editor of the Grand Era programme, feels he has been slighted by Patti's manager, who neglected to call upon him, and the influence of the paper will not be used to swell the audience which greets the diva at the Washington rink, to be held on Monday evening.

Supr. McCarty, of the city hall elevator, will make his monthly report at the next meeting of the city council, which shows that he has carried 20,000 passengers during the month, with 10,000 more males, 5,000 females and 5,000 telephone girls.

J. E. Sackett, district grand organizer of the Irish society, is still in the city. Miss Genevieve Ward, the actress, is not a relative of Adj. Ward, as many have been led to suppose from her name. The Minnesota "Forget-Me-Not" is a copy of another branch of the Ward family tree.

The statement in a local paper to the effect that Blethen recently "forgot" his "Jay" is evidently a mistaken transcription. It was Haskell who called Blethen A. Jay.

Capt. Peter McKernan, who has been a confirmed drinker of cold tea, has at last been prevailed upon to break the fearful habit.

Robert Hale's consternation last he should be deprived of the secretaryship of the board of trade by the dissolution of that august body, is slightly ludicrous.

The most interesting news to President Cleveland to know that his veto of the pension bill is approved by Capt. C. B. Tirrell, deputy clerk of the district court of Hennepin county, so.

Which the County Commissioners Will Take Under Their Control. County Commissioner A. L. Lennon says all reports have been very meager of the East side roads which the county commissioners proposed taking under their control by act of the legislature. He furnishes the following description in full:

Harrison Street--Beginning at the SE corner of section 2, in town 29, N of range 24, 4th principal meridian and running thence N along or as nearly as practicable along the E line of said section 2 to the N line of said Hennepin county, at the NE corner of said section 2.

Marshall Street--Beginning at the intersection of Marshall street, so called in the city of Minneapolis, with the N line of said city, the E line of said Hennepin county, at the NE corner of range 24, N of range 24, 4th principal meridian, and running thence N by and NW by across sections 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31,
