

SHOULD GET A COPY OF

To-Morrow's Globe.

THIS IS THE SPECIAL DAKOTA EDITION, And it is filled with Good Reading, which will interest the People of the Territory.

A SENSATIONAL G. A. R. ROW

Gen. Fairchild's Own Post at Madison Split Up by a Rumpus of Large Size.

One Member Goes so Far as to Tear Off His Sword and Badges at a Regular Meeting.

Editor Rothaker, of Omaha, Arrested on a Charge of Uttering a Criminal Libel.

Gambrius Lodge of Milwaukee Abandons the Knights of Labor--Cream City "Milk."

Special to the Globe.

MADISON, Wis., July 21.—Rather a sensational row has broken out in the G. A. R. post of which Gen. Fairchild is a member. At a regular meeting a few minutes since Gen. Fairchild, editor of the Madison Democrat, and an old veteran, sent a letter asking for an honorable discharge from the post. A spirited debate ensued, and many were vigorously opposed to granting an honorable discharge on account of the articles which had appeared in the Democrat reflecting upon the political attitude of the G. A. R. In the middle of the debate, when matters had become decidedly hot, the officer of the day, a Democrat, unbuckled his sword, removed his badges and declared that he had become disgusted with the actions of the post and wished no further connection with it. Efforts were made to quell the dissatisfaction of the members, but without avail and the meeting broke up in a general political row. The affair caused the resignation of the grand army circles and the action of the next meeting is awaited with interest. It is rumored that there will be a general withdrawal of members from the post at no distant date.

Editor Rothaker Arrested.

Special to the Globe.

OMAHA, Neb., July 21.—The new Nebraska libel law, holding a newspaper for damages and the writer liable to imprisonment in the penitentiary for three years, went into effect July 1, since which two Omaha newspapers men have been arrested on charges of libel. It occurred this afternoon when Editor Hitchcock, of the World, swore out a warrant for the arrest of Editor O. H. Gillet, of the Omaha Herald. The complaint was an editorial. The most offensive part was an allusion to Hitchcock's dead father and his brother, who came to an untimely end some years ago. The editorial was valued at $2,000, with Aug. 4 set for examination.

Practically Ended.

WASKECA, July 21.—Although the assembly does not formally close until tomorrow its work is done. No man could have done more than Rev. H. C. Jennings, who has been in charge of the assembly since its opening. He is a wise and far-seeing manager, and an indefatigable worker. Dr. A. H. Gillet, who has superintended the assembly here from the beginning, has been constantly growing in favor of Jennings, and it is not surprising that he has consented to let Jennings superintend for many years to come. He is a scholarly gentleman, understands the wants of the assembly, and is a man of many emergencies sure to arise at such gatherings.

Lost Money and Watch.

Special to the Globe.

WINONA, July 21.—Herman Hempel, of Ephraim, Wis., came into Winona on the Northwestern road last evening and put up at a boarding house on Second street for the night. After supper he locked up his trunk and went to bed. He awoke this morning to find his trunk open and his money and watch missing. He reported the matter to the police, and a search was made, but without success. The man who had the trunk is being sought.

An Insane Case--Rain.

Special to the Globe.

TRACY, Minn., July 21.—The wife of John Hughes, a farmer living in the township of Custer, was adjudged insane and taken to the asylum at St. Peter this morning. A heavy shower of rain struck here at noon today, and the water falling in perfect sheets for an hour. The rain was accompanied at the beginning by quite a stiff breeze, but sufficient to do any damage. The corn and potato crops will be improved wonderfully by the rain.

Rearrested.

Special to the Globe.

LITCHFIELD, Minn., July 21.—Bartholomew Seusewold, charged with criminally assaulting Annie Reig, was held for trial without bail. His attorney got out a writ of habeas corpus, and the case was heard by Judge Brown at Litchfield today. The prisoner was discharged on a technicality. He was rearrested and will have another examination.

Less Wheat.

Special to the Globe.

RED WING, July 21.—The county auditor has compiled the following statistics as to the acreage of the various cereals in Goodhue county the present year: Wheat, 100,429; oats, 41,283; corn, 25,548; barley, 42,077; rye, 2,530; buckwheat, 123; potatoes, 371; beans, 29; sugar cane, 74; cut hay, 238; flax, 1,400. There is a large falling out in wheat and a proportionate increase in barley.

Rearrested.

Special to the Globe.

LITCHFIELD, Minn., July 21.—Bartholomew Seusewold, charged with criminally assaulting Annie Reig, was held for trial without bail. His attorney got out a writ of habeas corpus, and the case was heard by Judge Brown at Litchfield today. The prisoner was discharged on a technicality. He was rearrested and will have another examination.

Less Wheat.

Special to the Globe.

RED WING, July 21.—The county auditor has compiled the following statistics as to the acreage of the various cereals in Goodhue county the present year: Wheat, 100,429; oats, 41,283; corn, 25,548; barley, 42,077; rye, 2,530; buckwheat, 123; potatoes, 371; beans, 29; sugar cane, 74; cut hay, 238; flax, 1,400. There is a large falling out in wheat and a proportionate increase in barley.

Rearrested.

Special to the Globe.

LITCHFIELD, Minn., July 21.—Bartholomew Seusewold, charged with criminally assaulting Annie Reig, was held for trial without bail. His attorney got out a writ of habeas corpus, and the case was heard by Judge Brown at Litchfield today. The prisoner was discharged on a technicality. He was rearrested and will have another examination.

Less Wheat.

Special to the Globe.

RED WING, July 21.—The county auditor has compiled the following statistics as to the acreage of the various cereals in Goodhue county the present year: Wheat, 100,429; oats, 41,283; corn, 25,548; barley, 42,077; rye, 2,530; buckwheat, 123; potatoes, 371; beans, 29; sugar cane, 74; cut hay, 238; flax, 1,400. There is a large falling out in wheat and a proportionate increase in barley.

Rearrested.

Special to the Globe.

LITCHFIELD, Minn., July 21.—Bartholomew Seusewold, charged with criminally assaulting Annie Reig, was held for trial without bail. His attorney got out a writ of habeas corpus, and the case was heard by Judge Brown at Litchfield today. The prisoner was discharged on a technicality. He was rearrested and will have another examination.

Less Wheat.

Special to the Globe.

RED WING, July 21.—The county auditor has compiled the following statistics as to the acreage of the various cereals in Goodhue county the present year: Wheat, 100,429; oats, 41,283; corn, 25,548; barley, 42,077; rye, 2,530; buckwheat, 123; potatoes, 371; beans, 29; sugar cane, 74; cut hay, 238; flax, 1,400. There is a large falling out in wheat and a proportionate increase in barley.

THE NOTORIOUS JOE FANT.

He is Held to Answer at Winipeg on Criminal Charges.

Special to the Globe.

WINIPEG, July 21.—The notorious Joe Fant was brought back to the city from Pembina, where he had been exiled by Chief of Police Tupper, this evening. A great crowd of people was at the station to see him. A formal preliminary trial was held, and he was remanded till next Wednesday. Fant was arrested some time ago by Chief McElree and made a bolt for liberty, shooting McElree, who was pursuing him. While on the way up from Emerson Fant asked Chief Tupper to request the newspapers to say that if Chief McElree had had a warrant for his arrest, he would have submitted to arrest as willingly as he had done to Chief Tupper. He declines to state through the papers that injustice had been done to him, but he would have submitted to arrest as willingly as he had done to Chief Tupper. He declines to state through the papers that injustice had been done to him, but he would have submitted to arrest as willingly as he had done to Chief Tupper.

Gambrius Lodge of Milwaukee Abandons the Knights of Labor--Cream City "Milk."

Special to the Globe.

MADISON, Wis., July 21.—Rather a sensational row has broken out in the G. A. R. post of which Gen. Fairchild is a member. At a regular meeting a few minutes since Gen. Fairchild, editor of the Madison Democrat, and an old veteran, sent a letter asking for an honorable discharge from the post. A spirited debate ensued, and many were vigorously opposed to granting an honorable discharge on account of the articles which had appeared in the Democrat reflecting upon the political attitude of the G. A. R. In the middle of the debate, when matters had become decidedly hot, the officer of the day, a Democrat, unbuckled his sword, removed his badges and declared that he had become disgusted with the actions of the post and wished no further connection with it. Efforts were made to quell the dissatisfaction of the members, but without avail and the meeting broke up in a general political row. The affair caused the resignation of the grand army circles and the action of the next meeting is awaited with interest. It is rumored that there will be a general withdrawal of members from the post at no distant date.

Editor Rothaker Arrested.

Special to the Globe.

OMAHA, Neb., July 21.—The new Nebraska libel law, holding a newspaper for damages and the writer liable to imprisonment in the penitentiary for three years, went into effect July 1, since which two Omaha newspapers men have been arrested on charges of libel. It occurred this afternoon when Editor Hitchcock, of the World, swore out a warrant for the arrest of Editor O. H. Gillet, of the Omaha Herald. The complaint was an editorial. The most offensive part was an allusion to Hitchcock's dead father and his brother, who came to an untimely end some years ago. The editorial was valued at $2,000, with Aug. 4 set for examination.

Practically Ended.

WASKECA, July 21.—Although the assembly does not formally close until tomorrow its work is done. No man could have done more than Rev. H. C. Jennings, who has been in charge of the assembly since its opening. He is a wise and far-seeing manager, and an indefatigable worker. Dr. A. H. Gillet, who has superintended the assembly here from the beginning, has been constantly growing in favor of Jennings, and it is not surprising that he has consented to let Jennings superintend for many years to come. He is a scholarly gentleman, understands the wants of the assembly, and is a man of many emergencies sure to arise at such gatherings.

Lost Money and Watch.

Special to the Globe.

WINONA, July 21.—Herman Hempel, of Ephraim, Wis., came into Winona on the Northwestern road last evening and put up at a boarding house on Second street for the night. After supper he locked up his trunk and went to bed. He awoke this morning to find his trunk open and his money and watch missing. He reported the matter to the police, and a search was made, but without success. The man who had the trunk is being sought.

An Insane Case--Rain.

Special to the Globe.

TRACY, Minn., July 21.—The wife of John Hughes, a farmer living in the township of Custer, was adjudged insane and taken to the asylum at St. Peter this morning. A heavy shower of rain struck here at noon today, and the water falling in perfect sheets for an hour. The rain was accompanied at the beginning by quite a stiff breeze, but sufficient to do any damage. The corn and potato crops will be improved wonderfully by the rain.

Rearrested.

Special to the Globe.

LITCHFIELD, Minn., July 21.—Bartholomew Seusewold, charged with criminally assaulting Annie Reig, was held for trial without bail. His attorney got out a writ of habeas corpus, and the case was heard by Judge Brown at Litchfield today. The prisoner was discharged on a technicality. He was rearrested and will have another examination.

Less Wheat.

Special to the Globe.

RED WING, July 21.—The county auditor has compiled the following statistics as to the acreage of the various cereals in Goodhue county the present year: Wheat, 100,429; oats, 41,283; corn, 25,548; barley, 42,077; rye, 2,530; buckwheat, 123; potatoes, 371; beans, 29; sugar cane, 74; cut hay, 238; flax, 1,400. There is a large falling out in wheat and a proportionate increase in barley.

Rearrested.

Special to the Globe.

LITCHFIELD, Minn., July 21.—Bartholomew Seusewold, charged with criminally assaulting Annie Reig, was held for trial without bail. His attorney got out a writ of habeas corpus, and the case was heard by Judge Brown at Litchfield today. The prisoner was discharged on a technicality. He was rearrested and will have another examination.

Less Wheat.

Special to the Globe.

RED WING, July 21.—The county auditor has compiled the following statistics as to the acreage of the various cereals in Goodhue county the present year: Wheat, 100,429; oats, 41,283; corn, 25,548; barley, 42,077; rye, 2,530; buckwheat, 123; potatoes, 371; beans, 29; sugar cane, 74; cut hay, 238; flax, 1,400. There is a large falling out in wheat and a proportionate increase in barley.

Rearrested.

Special to the Globe.

LITCHFIELD, Minn., July 21.—Bartholomew Seusewold, charged with criminally assaulting Annie Reig, was held for trial without bail. His attorney got out a writ of habeas corpus, and the case was heard by Judge Brown at Litchfield today. The prisoner was discharged on a technicality. He was rearrested and will have another examination.

Less Wheat.

Special to the Globe.

RED WING, July 21.—The county auditor has compiled the following statistics as to the acreage of the various cereals in Goodhue county the present year: Wheat, 100,429; oats, 41,283; corn, 25,548; barley, 42,077; rye, 2,530; buckwheat, 123; potatoes, 371; beans, 29; sugar cane, 74; cut hay, 238; flax, 1,400. There is a large falling out in wheat and a proportionate increase in barley.

Rearrested.

Special to the Globe.

LITCHFIELD, Minn., July 21.—Bartholomew Seusewold, charged with criminally assaulting Annie Reig, was held for trial without bail. His attorney got out a writ of habeas corpus, and the case was heard by Judge Brown at Litchfield today. The prisoner was discharged on a technicality. He was rearrested and will have another examination.

Less Wheat.

Special to the Globe.

RED WING, July 21.—The county auditor has compiled the following statistics as to the acreage of the various cereals in Goodhue county the present year: Wheat, 100,429; oats, 41,283; corn, 25,548; barley, 42,077; rye, 2,530; buckwheat, 123; potatoes, 371; beans, 29; sugar cane, 74; cut hay, 238; flax, 1,400. There is a large falling out in wheat and a proportionate increase in barley.

THE DEMOCRATS OF OHIO.

They Met in Convention Yesterday at Cleveland and Selected a State Ticket.

Which is Headed by T. E. Powell, and Which Will be Heard From Election Day.

The Campbell People Beaten by Hard Work on the Part of the Winner.

Senator Payne Congratulates the Nomininee--Full Text of the Platform Adopted.

Special to the Globe.

CLEVELAND, O., July 21.—The Democratic state convention has come and gone, and a Congressional Tom Powell, of Delaware, will be the standard bearer of the party in the coming campaign. It was the hard work of his lieutenants in the last hours that brought him the victory. At midnight last night he lacked fully sixty votes of a bare majority and the prospect of a coalition between the Campbell and Foran forces made his prospects look dubious. Then it was decided to vote a final tie upon the combined ranks of the opposition, and through the darkness, the dawn and the morning up to an hour after the time when the convention should have been called to order, the emissaries of Powell were laboring in his behalf. The result was a surprise to many delegates and spectators who were not in the secret. On the first ballot the Delaware statesman came within nine votes of a majority, and during the next five ballots sufficient number of Campbellites had concluded to get in out of the wet to insure his victory. Campbell

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

THE DEMOCRATS OF OHIO.

They Met in Convention Yesterday at Cleveland and Selected a State Ticket.

Which is Headed by T. E. Powell, and Which Will be Heard From Election Day.

The Campbell People Beaten by Hard Work on the Part of the Winner.

Senator Payne Congratulates the Nomininee--Full Text of the Platform Adopted.

Special to the Globe.

CLEVELAND, O., July 21.—The Democratic state convention has come and gone, and a Congressional Tom Powell, of Delaware, will be the standard bearer of the party in the coming campaign. It was the hard work of his lieutenants in the last hours that brought him the victory. At midnight last night he lacked fully sixty votes of a bare majority and the prospect of a coalition between the Campbell and Foran forces made his prospects look dubious. Then it was decided to vote a final tie upon the combined ranks of the opposition, and through the darkness, the dawn and the morning up to an hour after the time when the convention should have been called to order, the emissaries of Powell were laboring in his behalf. The result was a surprise to many delegates and spectators who were not in the secret. On the first ballot the Delaware statesman came within nine votes of a majority, and during the next five ballots sufficient number of Campbellites had concluded to get in out of the wet to insure his victory. Campbell

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the administration friends was so simply because the great bulk of the convention at the very outset evidenced very plainly that it would not tolerate the name of William H. Foran. The love feast between Senator Payne and Nomininee Powell, which occurred on the platform in full view of the convention, was a scene that will be long remembered. The two men, who were once bitter enemies, were now in the arms of each other, and the crowd of delegates and spectators were in a state of great excitement.

Special to the Globe.

ON the second ballot had the Foran men thrown him their solid support, but fifty of them preferred to go down with their candidate rather than to find themselves on record as deserting from the flag that they themselves, rather than the candidate, had hoisted. The threat of a split through the desertion of the