

WON BY THE TORIES.

The House of Commons Sustains the Government on a Formal Division.

Despite Eloquent Pleas by Leading Liberals and Parnellites.

The Czar Again Shot At—He Narrowly Escapes Death.

Two Yachting Accidents in Which Twenty-Seven People Perish.

By Cable to the Globe.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The house of commons is crowded with strangers to-night. Public interest in the division on Mr. Gladstone's motion being intense. Among the members, too, there is a feeling of anxiety, but this chiefly arises from the uncertainty as to how certain Unionists will vote, rather than from any doubt of the result. The course of several leading Unionists has for some days been a source of curiosity to a great many persons, as well as a matter of much speculation, and a great many bets, large and small have been laid on the turn of their votes. Lord Hartington and Mr. Chamberlain, in spite of their anomalous relation with one another, support the government, but the latter has been somewhat equivocal. The continued hobnobbing of Mr. Chamberlain with Mr. Trevelyan in the lobbies during the past week has attracted a great deal of attention and provoked considerable criticism of the Birmingham man's discretion in thus leaving himself open to attack upon the charge of dealing with the opposition in terms of familiarity. Such a charge against Mr. Chamberlain would be groundless, however, as all who know him have faith that he would openly return to the liberal party, if he were not bound to all, and not stoop to questionable methods of making terms with his former political companions. Mr. Trevelyan's attack upon the government proclamation was a masterly argument and created a great impression upon the minds of several of the Unionists, which, however, was removed by the subsequent able speech of Lord Hartington, who was also at the best.

OF VISCONTI FROM HYDROPHOBIA. A Viscount from hydrophobia, again brings into prominence as a subject of discussion, M. Pasteur's system of treatment of the disease, which his coachman was bitten by a rabid fox last January and were both treated by M. Pasteur. Neither showed any unfavorable symptoms, and the coachman, who is now well, never having suffered from his wound since it was healed. Lord Donerale's death is attributed by his physicians and friends to his age and not to the inefficiency of M. Pasteur's system, but a person so well known and so long a resident in the city, and the return of the disease in this case proves the worthlessness of the Frenchman's theories.

UNITED STATES. It is reported here that Gen. V. Lathrop, United States minister to Russia, is about to resign on account of ill-health. The government has announced its intention to increase the number of consular agents in the North Sea, with a view of affording more efficient protection to English fishermen and guarding as far as possible against the depredations of the pirates, which were enacted at Ostend a few days ago, on the occasion of the arrival at that port of a British vessel laden with fish.

IN PARLIAMENT. A Lively Evening Session of the Commons. LONDON, Aug. 26.—Sir James Ferguson, parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, stated in the house of commons this afternoon that Austria, Hungary, Germany, Holland, Italy, Spain and Denmark had joined the conference in favor of the arrangement of a union among European nations concerning sugar bounties. France, Russia and Portugal, he added, had also announced their intention to join the conference. Sir James Ferguson also announced that it was true that Ayoub Khan had escaped from a prison in India, but that he did not know in what direction he had gone. The O'Gorman Mahon, Nationalist, the newly elected member of the house of commons for Carlow county, entertained the house this afternoon and took his seat. He was greeted with cheers by the Parnellites members. Sir Charles Stansfeld, one of the late Gladstone's recruits, resumed the debate on Gladstone's motion for an address to the queen praying for nullification of the government's proclamation of the Irish national league. He said the late government did not ask the house of commons to pass their Irish League bill on a vote, but that they had their demands on parliament returned of grave odors. There had been committed 7,788 odors during the previous year, and twenty-six odors during the first half of the year. Sir George contended that the house of commons was not justified in taking as chief salary under the government, it was with a resolution to wage war against crime and against that only, and he maintained that policy on the whole. "Let the house understand," he continued, "that if the proclamation of the league is sanctioned every Irishman belonging to the league will not leave the command of the government will be liable to be punished as a common criminal. And that liability will not depend on any judicial proceeding, worthy of the name. In conclusion, he complained that the statements made by Mr. Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, and only given out last night left me no time for the examination of their character. Mr. Balfour had presented a series of alleged facts in justification of the government's action. These allegations the house should have a chance to corroborate or refute before coming to a decision. Sir R. E. Webster, attorney general, held that it was wrong why there was not more convictions in crime in Ireland was simply because of terror of the league. He reminded the house that Earl Spencer's government had repeatedly sanctioned land league measures, and that Sir George O. Trevelyan had supported these proclamations on the ground that the objects of the Land League were to separate Ireland from Ireland and England. The objects of the existing league, said the speaker, were the same, his aims had not changed. Abundant evidence had already been adduced as to the evil working of the league. The government would not now try the experiment whether the suppression of league meetings would not

LESSON THE INTIMIDATION. [Irish cheers.] They were told this would be the death struggle, and either the league or the government would go down. [Irish cheering.] He did not fear for the result. The government would be supported by the commons and the lords. The speaker, Mr. Hartington (Nationalist) said that as one largely responsible for the league he desired to reply to the calumnies that had been hurled at his character. He read letters from branches of the league condemning the practices which the league declared the league promoted. The continued hobnobbing of Mr. Chamberlain with Mr. Trevelyan in the lobbies during the past week has attracted a great deal of attention and provoked considerable criticism of the Birmingham man's discretion in thus leaving himself open to attack upon the charge of dealing with the opposition in terms of familiarity. Such a charge against Mr. Chamberlain would be groundless, however, as all who know him have faith that he would openly return to the liberal party, if he were not bound to all, and not stoop to questionable methods of making terms with his former political companions. Mr. Trevelyan's attack upon the government proclamation was a masterly argument and created a great impression upon the minds of several of the Unionists, which, however, was removed by the subsequent able speech of Lord Hartington, who was also at the best.

OF VISCONTI FROM HYDROPHOBIA. A Viscount from hydrophobia, again brings into prominence as a subject of discussion, M. Pasteur's system of treatment of the disease, which his coachman was bitten by a rabid fox last January and were both treated by M. Pasteur. Neither showed any unfavorable symptoms, and the coachman, who is now well, never having suffered from his wound since it was healed. Lord Donerale's death is attributed by his physicians and friends to his age and not to the inefficiency of M. Pasteur's system, but a person so well known and so long a resident in the city, and the return of the disease in this case proves the worthlessness of the Frenchman's theories.

UNITED STATES. It is reported here that Gen. V. Lathrop, United States minister to Russia, is about to resign on account of ill-health. The government has announced its intention to increase the number of consular agents in the North Sea, with a view of affording more efficient protection to English fishermen and guarding as far as possible against the depredations of the pirates, which were enacted at Ostend a few days ago, on the occasion of the arrival at that port of a British vessel laden with fish.

IN PARLIAMENT. A Lively Evening Session of the Commons. LONDON, Aug. 26.—Sir James Ferguson, parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, stated in the house of commons this afternoon that Austria, Hungary, Germany, Holland, Italy, Spain and Denmark had joined the conference in favor of the arrangement of a union among European nations concerning sugar bounties. France, Russia and Portugal, he added, had also announced their intention to join the conference. Sir James Ferguson also announced that it was true that Ayoub Khan had escaped from a prison in India, but that he did not know in what direction he had gone. The O'Gorman Mahon, Nationalist, the newly elected member of the house of commons for Carlow county, entertained the house this afternoon and took his seat. He was greeted with cheers by the Parnellites members. Sir Charles Stansfeld, one of the late Gladstone's recruits, resumed the debate on Gladstone's motion for an address to the queen praying for nullification of the government's proclamation of the Irish national league. He said the late government did not ask the house of commons to pass their Irish League bill on a vote, but that they had their demands on parliament returned of grave odors. There had been committed 7,788 odors during the previous year, and twenty-six odors during the first half of the year. Sir George contended that the house of commons was not justified in taking as chief salary under the government, it was with a resolution to wage war against crime and against that only, and he maintained that policy on the whole. "Let the house understand," he continued, "that if the proclamation of the league is sanctioned every Irishman belonging to the league will not leave the command of the government will be liable to be punished as a common criminal. And that liability will not depend on any judicial proceeding, worthy of the name. In conclusion, he complained that the statements made by Mr. Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, and only given out last night left me no time for the examination of their character. Mr. Balfour had presented a series of alleged facts in justification of the government's action. These allegations the house should have a chance to corroborate or refute before coming to a decision. Sir R. E. Webster, attorney general, held that it was wrong why there was not more convictions in crime in Ireland was simply because of terror of the league. He reminded the house that Earl Spencer's government had repeatedly sanctioned land league measures, and that Sir George O. Trevelyan had supported these proclamations on the ground that the objects of the Land League were to separate Ireland from Ireland and England. The objects of the existing league, said the speaker, were the same, his aims had not changed. Abundant evidence had already been adduced as to the evil working of the league. The government would not now try the experiment whether the suppression of league meetings would not

LESSON THE INTIMIDATION. [Irish cheers.] They were told this would be the death struggle, and either the league or the government would go down. [Irish cheering.] He did not fear for the result. The government would be supported by the commons and the lords. The speaker, Mr. Hartington (Nationalist) said that as one largely responsible for the league he desired to reply to the calumnies that had been hurled at his character. He read letters from branches of the league condemning the practices which the league declared the league promoted. The continued hobnobbing of Mr. Chamberlain with Mr. Trevelyan in the lobbies during the past week has attracted a great deal of attention and provoked considerable criticism of the Birmingham man's discretion in thus leaving himself open to attack upon the charge of dealing with the opposition in terms of familiarity. Such a charge against Mr. Chamberlain would be groundless, however, as all who know him have faith that he would openly return to the liberal party, if he were not bound to all, and not stoop to questionable methods of making terms with his former political companions. Mr. Trevelyan's attack upon the government proclamation was a masterly argument and created a great impression upon the minds of several of the Unionists, which, however, was removed by the subsequent able speech of Lord Hartington, who was also at the best.

OF VISCONTI FROM HYDROPHOBIA. A Viscount from hydrophobia, again brings into prominence as a subject of discussion, M. Pasteur's system of treatment of the disease, which his coachman was bitten by a rabid fox last January and were both treated by M. Pasteur. Neither showed any unfavorable symptoms, and the coachman, who is now well, never having suffered from his wound since it was healed. Lord Donerale's death is attributed by his physicians and friends to his age and not to the inefficiency of M. Pasteur's system, but a person so well known and so long a resident in the city, and the return of the disease in this case proves the worthlessness of the Frenchman's theories.

UNITED STATES. It is reported here that Gen. V. Lathrop, United States minister to Russia, is about to resign on account of ill-health. The government has announced its intention to increase the number of consular agents in the North Sea, with a view of affording more efficient protection to English fishermen and guarding as far as possible against the depredations of the pirates, which were enacted at Ostend a few days ago, on the occasion of the arrival at that port of a British vessel laden with fish.

IN PARLIAMENT. A Lively Evening Session of the Commons. LONDON, Aug. 26.—Sir James Ferguson, parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, stated in the house of commons this afternoon that Austria, Hungary, Germany, Holland, Italy, Spain and Denmark had joined the conference in favor of the arrangement of a union among European nations concerning sugar bounties. France, Russia and Portugal, he added, had also announced their intention to join the conference. Sir James Ferguson also announced that it was true that Ayoub Khan had escaped from a prison in India, but that he did not know in what direction he had gone. The O'Gorman Mahon, Nationalist, the newly elected member of the house of commons for Carlow county, entertained the house this afternoon and took his seat. He was greeted with cheers by the Parnellites members. Sir Charles Stansfeld, one of the late Gladstone's recruits, resumed the debate on Gladstone's motion for an address to the queen praying for nullification of the government's proclamation of the Irish national league. He said the late government did not ask the house of commons to pass their Irish League bill on a vote, but that they had their demands on parliament returned of grave odors. There had been committed 7,788 odors during the previous year, and twenty-six odors during the first half of the year. Sir George contended that the house of commons was not justified in taking as chief salary under the government, it was with a resolution to wage war against crime and against that only, and he maintained that policy on the whole. "Let the house understand," he continued, "that if the proclamation of the league is sanctioned every Irishman belonging to the league will not leave the command of the government will be liable to be punished as a common criminal. And that liability will not depend on any judicial proceeding, worthy of the name. In conclusion, he complained that the statements made by Mr. Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, and only given out last night left me no time for the examination of their character. Mr. Balfour had presented a series of alleged facts in justification of the government's action. These allegations the house should have a chance to corroborate or refute before coming to a decision. Sir R. E. Webster, attorney general, held that it was wrong why there was not more convictions in crime in Ireland was simply because of terror of the league. He reminded the house that Earl Spencer's government had repeatedly sanctioned land league measures, and that Sir George O. Trevelyan had supported these proclamations on the ground that the objects of the Land League were to separate Ireland from Ireland and England. The objects of the existing league, said the speaker, were the same, his aims had not changed. Abundant evidence had already been adduced as to the evil working of the league. The government would not now try the experiment whether the suppression of league meetings would not

LESSON THE INTIMIDATION. [Irish cheers.] They were told this would be the death struggle, and either the league or the government would go down. [Irish cheering.] He did not fear for the result. The government would be supported by the commons and the lords. The speaker, Mr. Hartington (Nationalist) said that as one largely responsible for the league he desired to reply to the calumnies that had been hurled at his character. He read letters from branches of the league condemning the practices which the league declared the league promoted. The continued hobnobbing of Mr. Chamberlain with Mr. Trevelyan in the lobbies during the past week has attracted a great deal of attention and provoked considerable criticism of the Birmingham man's discretion in thus leaving himself open to attack upon the charge of dealing with the opposition in terms of familiarity. Such a charge against Mr. Chamberlain would be groundless, however, as all who know him have faith that he would openly return to the liberal party, if he were not bound to all, and not stoop to questionable methods of making terms with his former political companions. Mr. Trevelyan's attack upon the government proclamation was a masterly argument and created a great impression upon the minds of several of the Unionists, which, however, was removed by the subsequent able speech of Lord Hartington, who was also at the best.

OF VISCONTI FROM HYDROPHOBIA. A Viscount from hydrophobia, again brings into prominence as a subject of discussion, M. Pasteur's system of treatment of the disease, which his coachman was bitten by a rabid fox last January and were both treated by M. Pasteur. Neither showed any unfavorable symptoms, and the coachman, who is now well, never having suffered from his wound since it was healed. Lord Donerale's death is attributed by his physicians and friends to his age and not to the inefficiency of M. Pasteur's system, but a person so well known and so long a resident in the city, and the return of the disease in this case proves the worthlessness of the Frenchman's theories.

UNITED STATES. It is reported here that Gen. V. Lathrop, United States minister to Russia, is about to resign on account of ill-health. The government has announced its intention to increase the number of consular agents in the North Sea, with a view of affording more efficient protection to English fishermen and guarding as far as possible against the depredations of the pirates, which were enacted at Ostend a few days ago, on the occasion of the arrival at that port of a British vessel laden with fish.

IN PARLIAMENT. A Lively Evening Session of the Commons. LONDON, Aug. 26.—Sir James Ferguson, parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, stated in the house of commons this afternoon that Austria, Hungary, Germany, Holland, Italy, Spain and Denmark had joined the conference in favor of the arrangement of a union among European nations concerning sugar bounties. France, Russia and Portugal, he added, had also announced their intention to join the conference. Sir James Ferguson also announced that it was true that Ayoub Khan had escaped from a prison in India, but that he did not know in what direction he had gone. The O'Gorman Mahon, Nationalist, the newly elected member of the house of commons for Carlow county, entertained the house this afternoon and took his seat. He was greeted with cheers by the Parnellites members. Sir Charles Stansfeld, one of the late Gladstone's recruits, resumed the debate on Gladstone's motion for an address to the queen praying for nullification of the government's proclamation of the Irish national league. He said the late government did not ask the house of commons to pass their Irish League bill on a vote, but that they had their demands on parliament returned of grave odors. There had been committed 7,788 odors during the previous year, and twenty-six odors during the first half of the year. Sir George contended that the house of commons was not justified in taking as chief salary under the government, it was with a resolution to wage war against crime and against that only, and he maintained that policy on the whole. "Let the house understand," he continued, "that if the proclamation of the league is sanctioned every Irishman belonging to the league will not leave the command of the government will be liable to be punished as a common criminal. And that liability will not depend on any judicial proceeding, worthy of the name. In conclusion, he complained that the statements made by Mr. Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, and only given out last night left me no time for the examination of their character. Mr. Balfour had presented a series of alleged facts in justification of the government's action. These allegations the house should have a chance to corroborate or refute before coming to a decision. Sir R. E. Webster, attorney general, held that it was wrong why there was not more convictions in crime in Ireland was simply because of terror of the league. He reminded the house that Earl Spencer's government had repeatedly sanctioned land league measures, and that Sir George O. Trevelyan had supported these proclamations on the ground that the objects of the Land League were to separate Ireland from Ireland and England. The objects of the existing league, said the speaker, were the same, his aims had not changed. Abundant evidence had already been adduced as to the evil working of the league. The government would not now try the experiment whether the suppression of league meetings would not

LESSON THE INTIMIDATION. [Irish cheers.] They were told this would be the death struggle, and either the league or the government would go down. [Irish cheering.] He did not fear for the result. The government would be supported by the commons and the lords. The speaker, Mr. Hartington (Nationalist) said that as one largely responsible for the league he desired to reply to the calumnies that had been hurled at his character. He read letters from branches of the league condemning the practices which the league declared the league promoted. The continued hobnobbing of Mr. Chamberlain with Mr. Trevelyan in the lobbies during the past week has attracted a great deal of attention and provoked considerable criticism of the Birmingham man's discretion in thus leaving himself open to attack upon the charge of dealing with the opposition in terms of familiarity. Such a charge against Mr. Chamberlain would be groundless, however, as all who know him have faith that he would openly return to the liberal party, if he were not bound to all, and not stoop to questionable methods of making terms with his former political companions. Mr. Trevelyan's attack upon the government proclamation was a masterly argument and created a great impression upon the minds of several of the Unionists, which, however, was removed by the subsequent able speech of Lord Hartington, who was also at the best.

OF VISCONTI FROM HYDROPHOBIA. A Viscount from hydrophobia, again brings into prominence as a subject of discussion, M. Pasteur's system of treatment of the disease, which his coachman was bitten by a rabid fox last January and were both treated by M. Pasteur. Neither showed any unfavorable symptoms, and the coachman, who is now well, never having suffered from his wound since it was healed. Lord Donerale's death is attributed by his physicians and friends to his age and not to the inefficiency of M. Pasteur's system, but a person so well known and so long a resident in the city, and the return of the disease in this case proves the worthlessness of the Frenchman's theories.

UNITED STATES. It is reported here that Gen. V. Lathrop, United States minister to Russia, is about to resign on account of ill-health. The government has announced its intention to increase the number of consular agents in the North Sea, with a view of affording more efficient protection to English fishermen and guarding as far as possible against the depredations of the pirates, which were enacted at Ostend a few days ago, on the occasion of the arrival at that port of a British vessel laden with fish.

IN PARLIAMENT. A Lively Evening Session of the Commons. LONDON, Aug. 26.—Sir James Ferguson, parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, stated in the house of commons this afternoon that Austria, Hungary, Germany, Holland, Italy, Spain and Denmark had joined the conference in favor of the arrangement of a union among European nations concerning sugar bounties. France, Russia and Portugal, he added, had also announced their intention to join the conference. Sir James Ferguson also announced that it was true that Ayoub Khan had escaped from a prison in India, but that he did not know in what direction he had gone. The O'Gorman Mahon, Nationalist, the newly elected member of the house of commons for Carlow county, entertained the house this afternoon and took his seat. He was greeted with cheers by the Parnellites members. Sir Charles Stansfeld, one of the late Gladstone's recruits, resumed the debate on Gladstone's motion for an address to the queen praying for nullification of the government's proclamation of the Irish national league. He said the late government did not ask the house of commons to pass their Irish League bill on a vote, but that they had their demands on parliament returned of grave odors. There had been committed 7,788 odors during the previous year, and twenty-six odors during the first half of the year. Sir George contended that the house of commons was not justified in taking as chief salary under the government, it was with a resolution to wage war against crime and against that only, and he maintained that policy on the whole. "Let the house understand," he continued, "that if the proclamation of the league is sanctioned every Irishman belonging to the league will not leave the command of the government will be liable to be punished as a common criminal. And that liability will not depend on any judicial proceeding, worthy of the name. In conclusion, he complained that the statements made by Mr. Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, and only given out last night left me no time for the examination of their character. Mr. Balfour had presented a series of alleged facts in justification of the government's action. These allegations the house should have a chance to corroborate or refute before coming to a decision. Sir R. E. Webster, attorney general, held that it was wrong why there was not more convictions in crime in Ireland was simply because of terror of the league. He reminded the house that Earl Spencer's government had repeatedly sanctioned land league measures, and that Sir George O. Trevelyan had supported these proclamations on the ground that the objects of the Land League were to separate Ireland from Ireland and England. The objects of the existing league, said the speaker, were the same, his aims had not changed. Abundant evidence had already been adduced as to the evil working of the league. The government would not now try the experiment whether the suppression of league meetings would not

LESSON THE INTIMIDATION. [Irish cheers.] They were told this would be the death struggle, and either the league or the government would go down. [Irish cheering.] He did not fear for the result. The government would be supported by the commons and the lords. The speaker, Mr. Hartington (Nationalist) said that as one largely responsible for the league he desired to reply to the calumnies that had been hurled at his character. He read letters from branches of the league condemning the practices which the league declared the league promoted. The continued hobnobbing of Mr. Chamberlain with Mr. Trevelyan in the lobbies during the past week has attracted a great deal of attention and provoked considerable criticism of the Birmingham man's discretion in thus leaving himself open to attack upon the charge of dealing with the opposition in terms of familiarity. Such a charge against Mr. Chamberlain would be groundless, however, as all who know him have faith that he would openly return to the liberal party, if he were not bound to all, and not stoop to questionable methods of making terms with his former political companions. Mr. Trevelyan's attack upon the government proclamation was a masterly argument and created a great impression upon the minds of several of the Unionists, which, however, was removed by the subsequent able speech of Lord Hartington, who was also at the best.

OF VISCONTI FROM HYDROPHOBIA. A Viscount from hydrophobia, again brings into prominence as a subject of discussion, M. Pasteur's system of treatment of the disease, which his coachman was bitten by a rabid fox last January and were both treated by M. Pasteur. Neither showed any unfavorable symptoms, and the coachman, who is now well, never having suffered from his wound since it was healed. Lord Donerale's death is attributed by his physicians and friends to his age and not to the inefficiency of M. Pasteur's system, but a person so well known and so long a resident in the city, and the return of the disease in this case proves the worthlessness of the Frenchman's theories.

UNITED STATES. It is reported here that Gen. V. Lathrop, United States minister to Russia, is about to resign on account of ill-health. The government has announced its intention to increase the number of consular agents in the North Sea, with a view of affording more efficient protection to English fishermen and guarding as far as possible against the depredations of the pirates, which were enacted at Ostend a few days ago, on the occasion of the arrival at that port of a British vessel laden with fish.

IN PARLIAMENT. A Lively Evening Session of the Commons. LONDON, Aug. 26.—Sir James Ferguson, parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, stated in the house of commons this afternoon that Austria, Hungary, Germany, Holland, Italy, Spain and Denmark had joined the conference in favor of the arrangement of a union among European nations concerning sugar bounties. France, Russia and Portugal, he added, had also announced their intention to join the conference. Sir James Ferguson also announced that it was true that Ayoub Khan had escaped from a prison in India, but that he did not know in what direction he had gone. The O'Gorman Mahon, Nationalist, the newly elected member of the house of commons for Carlow county, entertained the house this afternoon and took his seat. He was greeted with cheers by the Parnellites members. Sir Charles Stansfeld, one of the late Gladstone's recruits, resumed the debate on Gladstone's motion for an address to the queen praying for nullification of the government's proclamation of the Irish national league. He said the late government did not ask the house of commons to pass their Irish League bill on a vote, but that they had their demands on parliament returned of grave odors. There had been committed 7,788 odors during the previous year, and twenty-six odors during the first half of the year. Sir George contended that the house of commons was not justified in taking as chief salary under the government, it was with a resolution to wage war against crime and against that only, and he maintained that policy on the whole. "Let the house understand," he continued, "that if the proclamation of the league is sanctioned every Irishman belonging to the league will not leave the command of the government will be liable to be punished as a common criminal. And that liability will not depend on any judicial proceeding, worthy of the name. In conclusion, he complained that the statements made by Mr. Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, and only given out last night left me no time for the examination of their character. Mr. Balfour had presented a series of alleged facts in justification of the government's action. These allegations the house should have a chance to corroborate or refute before coming to a decision. Sir R. E. Webster, attorney general, held that it was wrong why there was not more convictions in crime in Ireland was simply because of terror of the league. He reminded the house that Earl Spencer's government had repeatedly sanctioned land league measures, and that Sir George O. Trevelyan had supported these proclamations on the ground that the objects of the Land League were to separate Ireland from Ireland and England. The objects of the existing league, said the speaker, were the same, his aims had not changed. Abundant evidence had already been adduced as to the evil working of the league. The government would not now try the experiment whether the suppression of league meetings would not

LESSON THE INTIMIDATION. [Irish cheers.] They were told this would be the death struggle, and either the league or the government would go down. [Irish cheering.] He did not fear for the result. The government would be supported by the commons and the lords. The speaker, Mr. Hartington (Nationalist) said that as one largely responsible for the league he desired to reply to the calumnies that had been hurled at his character. He read letters from branches of the league condemning the practices which the league declared the league promoted. The continued hobnobbing of Mr. Chamberlain with Mr. Trevelyan in the lobbies during the past week has attracted a great deal of attention and provoked considerable criticism of the Birmingham man's discretion in thus leaving himself open to attack upon the charge of dealing with the opposition in terms of familiarity. Such a charge against Mr. Chamberlain would be groundless, however, as all who know him have faith that he would openly return to the liberal party, if he were not bound to all, and not stoop to questionable methods of making terms with his former political companions. Mr. Trevelyan's attack upon the government proclamation was a masterly argument and created a great impression upon the minds of several of the Unionists, which, however, was removed by the subsequent able speech of Lord Hartington, who was also at the best.

OF VISCONTI FROM HYDROPHOBIA. A Viscount from hydrophobia, again brings into prominence as a subject of discussion, M. Pasteur's system of treatment of the disease, which his coachman was bitten by a rabid fox last January and were both treated by M. Pasteur. Neither showed any unfavorable symptoms, and the coachman, who is now well, never having suffered from his wound since it was healed. Lord Donerale's death is attributed by his physicians and friends to his age and not to the inefficiency of M. Pasteur's system, but a person so well known and so long a resident in the city, and the return of the disease in this case proves the worthlessness of the Frenchman's theories.

UNITED STATES. It is reported here that Gen. V. Lathrop, United States minister to Russia, is about to resign on account of ill-health. The government has announced its intention to increase the number of consular agents in the North Sea, with a view of affording more efficient protection to English fishermen and guarding as far as possible against the depredations of the pirates, which were enacted at Ostend a few days ago, on the occasion of the arrival at that port of a British vessel laden with fish.

IN PARLIAMENT. A Lively Evening Session of the Commons. LONDON, Aug. 26.—Sir James Ferguson, parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, stated in the house of commons this afternoon that Austria, Hungary, Germany, Holland, Italy, Spain and Denmark had joined the conference in favor of the arrangement of a union among European nations concerning sugar bounties. France, Russia and Portugal, he added, had also announced their intention to join the conference. Sir James Ferguson also announced that it was true that Ayoub Khan had escaped from a prison in India, but that he did not know in what direction he had gone. The O'Gorman Mahon, Nationalist, the newly elected member of the house of commons for Carlow county, entertained the house this afternoon and took his seat. He was greeted with cheers by the Parnellites members. Sir Charles Stansfeld, one of the late Gladstone's recruits, resumed the debate on Gladstone's motion for an address to the queen praying for nullification of the government's proclamation of the Irish national league. He said the late government did not ask the house of commons to pass their Irish League bill on a vote, but that they had their demands on parliament returned of grave odors. There had been committed 7,788 odors during the previous year, and twenty-six odors during the first half of the year. Sir George contended that the house of commons was not justified in taking as chief salary under the government, it was with a resolution to wage war against crime and against that only, and he maintained that

LANDED IN THE RAIL.

Rev. Dr. Seymour, of Janesville, Minn., Reached New York Yesterday.

In Company With His Female Companion in His Travels Abroad.

The Clerical Seducer Arrested and Held For the Minnesota Authorities.

The National Conference of Charities and Corrections Sitting at Omaha.

Special to the Globe.

WASCEKA, Minn., Aug. 26.—Rev. Dr. Seymour, of Janesville, Minn., reached New York yesterday, in company with his female companion in his travels abroad. The Rev. Dr. Seymour, who is a member of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections, was in the city for a few days, and will be held for the Minnesota authorities.

A NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF PEOPLE INTERESTED IN PRISONS AND CHARITIES.

OMAHA, Aug. 26.—The first morning session of the fourteenth annual national conference of charities and corrections was called to order in the Exposition building by President H. H. Giles. The session was opened with prayer by Rev. Charles W. Savidge, of the M. E. church of this city. The first business was the election of L. C. Stewart, of Illinois, as one of the secretaries of the conference in place of Mr. Giles.

Revenue Agents at Work. GRAND FORKS, Aug. 26.—Two portly specials of Uncle Sam have been doing the city this week, investigating the liquor establishments, and thus far have found everything correct among the saloons and restaurants. Little more than a few dollars in excise duty has been collected.

A Big Corn Crop. VOLGA, Dak., Aug. 26.—The report that frost Wednesday morning, greatly damaged corn in this county is untrue. No frost was reported here, and the crop is very light and has only appeared in certain localities. Fully four-fifths of the corn crop is safe from injury by frost, and will be ready for the market by September. It will be the largest corn crop known in Brookings county.

The Minor Normal School. MILNOR, Aug. 26.—At a meeting of the promoters of the Normal school of this place, this week, steps were taken to make the institution a permanent one by erecting a building. The design is to make the institution a sort of training school for teachers. The success must wait with so far as quite flattering, and is more than was at first anticipated.

The Early Birds. FARGO, Aug. 26.—Some of the Republicans of Fargo, of all ages and previous condition, organized a Young Men's Republican club Thursday night. Some individuals apparently expect to take the field in anticipation of personal notice in the coming year. They seem to down some other fellows. Fargo has some Republican politicians who expect to see a light for them in certain official positions next year. There will probably be another club if this one survives the winter.

Unfavorable Weather. YANKTON, Dak., Aug. 26.—The continual cold and rainy weather during the past week has been unfavorable to the growing of grain. The crops are gathering small grain, a large portion of which will be ready for the market. Corn will suffer to some extent by this weather, but as this crop is very advanced, no great danger is apprehended. There have been no frosts yet.

The Proper Kind of Gas. FARGO, Aug. 26.—Expert parties from the gas and electric companies of Pennsylvania are reported about to commence work to test the theory that natural gas in paying quantities is to be found in the vicinity of Fargo. It is the kind of gas needed for the city, and there is a surplus of some other sorts.

Have Brought Suit. DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 26.—Harty and Work, the two men who were recently worked by Constables Potts and Hamilton's too careless handling of their revolvers, have brought suit against these officers' bondsmen for $5,000 each.

Iowa Corn. MASON CITY, Ia., Aug. 26.—The prospects for an abundant yield of corn are as favorable as ever. Many pieces are out of the way of frost. The nights are cool, with light frosts. The rains have moistened up the ground and many are now doing their fall plowing.

Receiver for Morse's Estate. ST. CLOUD, Aug. 26.—G. C. Waller was today appointed receiver of the E. H. Morse estate by Judge Collins, pursuant to the request of the creditors. Mr. Morse's whereabouts are still unknown.

The New Democratic Paper. ST. CLOUD, Aug. 26.—The first issue of the Northwest News, the new Democratic exponent, will appear Sept. 10. It will have contributions from leading Democrats in many states.

Democratic Enterprise. MILNOR, Aug. 26.—Elmer Wilsey has received his commission as postmaster of this place, and has celebrated the event by ordering a hand-saw post office outfit which will be here in a week or so.

Resumed Business. MILNOR, Aug. 26.—Linton, the pioneer merchant of Sargent county, who made an assignment last spring, has resumed business.

Sherman and Party. TONOXO, Aug. 26.—Hon. John Sherman and party arrived here last night from their trip over the Canadian Pacific. They left for Niagara Falls this morning.

Over a Ledger. RED WING, Aug. 26.—John Anderson, an employe at the stone quarry of Andrew Danielson, south of town, while at work yesterday afternoon was precipitated over a sharp ledge about twenty feet in height, striking head foremost, and died last evening. He had been in this country only three weeks, was thirty-five years of age, and leaves a wife and three children.

The Divisionists. Special to the Globe. FARGO, Dak., Aug. 26.—A bare quorum of the North Dakota division commission gathered here to-day, and issued a call for a convention to be held in Fargo Oct. 4, each county in the north to be awarded one delegate for each 300 votes cast for congressman last year. Some name from most of the counties will be attached to the call. It was voted to invite Geo. Mellette, of Watroun, an ex-congressman Kilmer, of Pierre, to be present.

The Duluth and Denver Line. Special to the Globe. WATROUW, Dak., Aug. 26.—A rousing meeting of the board of trade and other citizens was held to consider the proposition of the Duluth & Denver Railroad, to locate their machine shops and Dakota division headquarters in this city. Much interest was manifested and a committee appointed to confer with the railroad officials to formulate a plan of operations for raising a bonus, securing depot and yard grounds, right of way, etc., to report at a future meeting.

A Church and a Mission. Special to the Globe. ST. CLOUD, Aug. 26.—The ladies of St. Paul's church are busy decorating the exterior of a miniature church building, to send to the Minneapolis exposition. All kinds of grain and grasses will be represented in the trimming.

The National Conference of Charities and Corrections. Special to the Globe. WASECA, Minn., Aug. 26.—Rev. Dr. Seymour, of Janesville, Minn., reached New York yesterday, in company with his female companion in his travels abroad. The Rev. Dr. Seymour, who is a member of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections, was in the city for a few days, and will be held for the Minnesota authorities.

Revenue Agents at Work. GRAND FORKS, Aug. 26.—Two portly specials of Uncle Sam have been doing the city this week, investigating the liquor establishments, and thus far have found everything correct among the saloons and restaurants. Little more than a few dollars in excise duty has been collected.

A Big Corn Crop. VOLGA, Dak., Aug. 26.—The report that frost Wednesday morning, greatly damaged corn in this county is untrue. No frost was reported here, and the crop is very light and has only appeared in certain localities. Fully four-fifths of the corn crop is safe from injury by frost, and will be ready for the market by September. It will be the largest corn crop known in Brookings county.

The Minor Normal School. MILNOR, Aug. 26.—At a meeting of the promoters of the Normal school of this place, this week, steps were taken to make the institution a permanent one by erecting a building. The design is to make the institution a sort of training school for teachers. The success must wait with so far as quite flattering, and is more than was at first anticipated.