PLANNING FOR MONEY.

A Mass Meeting Discusses the Soldiers' Home Site.

The mass meeting called at Harmonia hall last evening to raise money for the Soldiers' home site opened with but a few gentlemen present, and this somewhat discouraged the chairman, Capt. Shuler, who, after a few remarks, said that if the people of Minneapolis did not want the home they did not have to have it, and, for one, he did not propose to do any more begging. Col. C. W. Johnson did not take this view of the matter, and thought that the money could be raised. Even if but half was raised by Sept. 10, and a promise was given that the rest would soon be raised if the commission would extend the time, and he wanted the committee given more time in which to raise the money.

Maj. Henderson, of the commission, said he did not think that the commission would extend the time, as it had been a hard fight to get the site located at Minnehaha Falls. There was no doubt but that the money could be raised, said he, for it must be, or the home would go elsewhere. He thought the people of Minneapolis should bow their heads in shame if the money could not be raised. A. J. Blethen followed with an eloquent speech, in which he gave the rich men who had refused to contribute a severe going over. He said that if it was a gala entertainment at Harmonia hall, at which Mayor Ames and Gov. McGill were present, instead of a meeting to raise money for a soldiers' home, the hall would be crowded. He favored the plan of having the committee appointed to raise funds form in line Monday morning, headed by a drum corps, and march into the big dry goods stores and demand of the proprietors that they contribute something. He would also have the drum corps camp at the door and play until the committee came out with the money. In concluding he said that the money must be raised or Minneapolis would be forever disgraced.

W. P. Roberts said he had been in the other cities which wanted the home, and he could tell the business men of Minneapolis that they would never regret securing the home. If they did not they would find their profits decreased one-half in a short time.

Col. Johnson favored Maj. Blethen's plan of raising money. He did not think the business men of Minneapolis should be abused, as they had done very well thus far. Maj. Hale said that if Minneapolis allowed the home to go elsewhere she would be forever disgraced. The idea of securing the home should, he said, be presented to the business men from a business standpoint. Then when they were convinced that to secure it would help their business, the money would be raised in no time. Dr. Hance did not like the idea of a crowd going to solicit subscriptions, as it would have a tendency to prevent business men from giving.

At this point a large delegation from the various posts in the city entered, and the work of taking up subscriptions went merrily along. Several hundred dollars were pledged, leaving the amount now to be raised about $10,000. It is expected that this will be raised inside of a few days, as the total amount, $50,000, has to be all in by Sept. 10. On motion of Col. Johnson it was decided that the committee to raise funds should be enlarged and hold a meeting this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the real estate exchange, when plans for raising the money will be decided upon.

A WOMAN'S NERVE

Is Said to Have Paralyzed Some of the Leading Business Houses.

An evening paper devoted a column and a half of its more or less valuable space to relating how a Mrs. I. F. Curtiss, living at 605 Seventh street south, induced certain merchants to sell her household goods on time and then did not pay her bills. Mr. Curtis, the lady's husband, formerly ran a confectionary store at the corner of Sixth street and Hennepin avenue, but left for Chicago last spring. Since then Mrs. Curtiss, who seems, like Mrs. Toodles, to have possessed a mania for buying things, visited some of the leading merchants and having awed them into submissiveness both to her gorgeous attire and aristocratic bearing, ordered about everything she desired to be sent to her house. When thirty days or so had passed an interesting struggle on the part of the merchants to replevin their goods began, and there have been no less than seven attachment suits begun. That is one side of the story. The other is that Mrs. Curtiss was expecting to receive some money, which has failed to come, the merchants became alarmed, and made themselves ridiculous. At all events, it is hardly probable that the woman is a professional swindler, as the enterprising evening paper makes her appear. Janney Bros., Bladon & Gibbs, Folds & Griffith, J. C. Gjertsen, and McLara, are said to be the principle sufferers, and they have each succeeded in getting back a good portion of the goods.

PASTING IT TO 'EM.

Continuing the Good Work of Fines For the Benefit.

It was intimated yesterday that the "assessment" made at the great ball match was not at an end, and that additional victims to the good cause would be announced to-day. Umpire Ames has come to the front with his proclamation announcing these fines, as follows:

PROCLAMATION.

To all my good and loyal subjects having the same wherewithal to respond—Greeting:

Know ye, that by virtue of my office as umpire in the interest of fair play and womanity, and especially in the interest of the Widow Tolleffson, and by the authority vested in me as deputy sheriff and high lord executioner of bank accounts and plethoric pocketbooks, I have assessed you in addition to whatever other amounts you may feel disposed to contribute the various sums set opposite your respective names, and have authorized the business manager of the Journal to collect the same and acknowledge the receipt thereof—the private understanding being that the matter shall be "kept standing" until said assessments are paid. Also that all who are assessed too much may "plead poverty," and that all assessed too little may demonstrate that fact. Some of the assessments are levied because of the doings of the parties at the ball grounds, and the balance for not being there. Each person assessed may supply additional causes himself, provided the assessment be paid, and all not assessed may assess themselves, it not being intended to hurt people's feelings by overlooking them.

FOUND A FLAW.

A Serious Defect in the Title to the New Court House Site.

While the court house and city hall commission has been holding meetings and getting in readiness to erect the new building, it has quietly leaked out that there is a serious flaw in the title to the Washington school site recently sold to the commission. From all that can be learned it appears that block 77, whereon the building is located, is made up of two additions which run together, and a correct survey of the line between them would show that a part of lot 2, lying on Fifth street, has never been deeded by the original owner, one Mr. Coolbaugh. The plats of the property were made in 1856, and the school board acquired title to their half of the block about that time. The widow of Mr. Coolbaugh is still living, together with three children. They are Frank Coolbaugh, Mrs. W. E. Jones and Mrs. George W. Hale. But whether or not their title to the land as heirs has expired is a matter of the utmost importance, and it is being carefully investigated. It is extremely likely, however, that as the school board has occupied the land for more than twenty years and entered under a color of title the claim of these heirs will be entirely cut of. But right here comes another question, and one that may lead to serious complications, and that is how far the statute of limitation would run against these heirs, some of whom, it is said, were minors. Whether or not this may stop the negotiations between the court house commission and school board cannot be learned. The parties in interest are all extremely reticent about the matter, and efforts to get at the exact status of of the case have thus far proved unavailing. But it has been observed that there is a big flutter in the neighborhood of the register of deeds, which indicates that some one has struck a snag. It is also said that quite a number of suits are likely to grow out of just such complications, where in the early days of Minneapolis additions were joined together and little or no value attached to the land, and no attempts made to make an accurate survey.

AT THE EXPOSITION.

Some New Rules---Items of Interest About the Show.

The Exposition management yesterday published the rules for the show which will be strictly enforced. Summarized they amount to this: A smoking room is provided and outside of that room the weed cannot be indulged in. Sweeping, etc., must all be done early, before 8 a. m. Exhibitors will not be allowed to sell and deliver goods unless they have privileges. Exhibitors and employes will be required to present tickets to the gatekeepers, who will detach a coupon for every admission. Any ticket presented by other than the person whose name it bears will be taken up and canceled.

The gentleman in charge of the government models says it is surprising to see the ignorance of people who have always lived inland about nautical things. One man wanted to know which was the fore and which the aft end of a vessel. All of the models are mounted on their stands in glass cases, but are not yet in proper position. Model No. 1 is of the Twin screw steel gunboat designed by Chief Constructor T. D. Wilson, U. S. N., to meet the requirements of the board of which Capt. John G. Walker, U. S. N., was president. The model is just five feet in length. Model No. 2 is just four feet long, and is a little daisy. It represents the single screw steel gunboat, designed also by Chief Constructor T. D. Wilson, U. S. N.

W. A. Kennedy & Co., the well-known biscuit manufacturers, will have an exhibit of crackers in which that dainty staple of food will be distorted into all manner of shapes and figures.

Regan Bros. in their show will have an old-fashioned water mill which will turn out the raw material from which they manufacture their celebrated goods.

A handsome line of carriages, buggies, all kinds of vehicles in fact, will comprise the sights offered by F. L. Darrow & Co.

THAT MILK CASE.

Vernon Held to the Grand Jury Under Heavy Bonds.

C. D. Vernon, arrested some days ago on a charge of selling adulterated milk, was again up in the municipal court yesterday afternoon, when he was held to the grand jury under bonds of $500. The case is a decidedly interesting one, inasmuch as the fate of some twenty-five other milkmen rests on the decision of some of the questions that are brought up in the case against Mr. Vernon. As this is the first case that has come up since the new milk law was passed, there is naturally much general interest in it. When first arrested Vernon claimed he did not know that he was selling adulterated milk. The assistant dairy commissioner did not believe this, and on going to Northfield, where the milk came from, found several cans ready for shipment, and on testing the milk found it above the standard. This time, when Vernon was brought into court, he raised several questions as to the constitutionality of the law, under which he was arrested. This law provides for a penalty of not less than $25, and not more than $300, or imprisonment for not less than one month, and not more than six, and provides that the district and municipal courts shall have jurisdiction in these cases. Vernon objects to the laws in two points: First—That the municipal courts are only allowed jurisdiction in cases were the extreme punishment is not more than a fine of $100 or an imprisonment of three months in jail. Second—That the law is contrary to section 27 of the constitution, which provides that no law shall embrace more than one subject, and that must be expressed in the title. It is also claimed that the law embraces two subjects, that it is not to prevent deception in dairy products, but that it is a law extending the jurisdiction of municipal courts. Assistant County Attorney Jamison, backed by an opinion from the attorney general, holds that the law providing for the extension of the jurisdiction of the municipal court is merely a clause to provide for the enforcement of the law.

James Marquett, a resident of this city, is suing his wife, Maggie, for divorce, claiming she deserted him a year ago in Illinois.

In the case of the Moline, Milburn & Stoddard company against Phillip Henk, the defendant moves that a change of venue be taken from Hennepin county to Carver county, in the Eighth Judicial district. The grounds of this motion are that the defendant at the time of commencing action was and still is a resident of Carver county.

The Perkins Windmill and Ax company, of Indiana, brings suit against John M. Hoover for $938. Hoover has been acting as agent here for the company since Jan. 1, 1886, and the arrangement not proving satisfactory, plaintiffs recently canceled his contract as agent, and demand an accounting for windmills and fixtures shipped him from time to time on consignment.

John E. Lundin is plaintiff in a suit against George G. Jacoby. It seems that Jacoby had Lundin arrested some time in August, 1886, for subscribing himself as security on the bond of a saloon license, claiming that Lundin was already bondsman in behalf of another party in the same business, and that, in order to be accepted as security in the second case, he perjured himself. Lundin was released upon examination into the circumstances, and now claims his reputation is damaged to the extent of $5,200.

RATHER DILATORY.

The Council Decides to Make Haste as Slowly as Possible.

ORDINANCES RECOMMITTED.

The Subway Franchise---The City Hospital to be Further Considered Before Acted Upon.

At the special meeting of the city council yesterday afternoon a communication was received from the Legal Retail Liquor Dealers' association which read, "While we consider high license an unjust and unequal tax upon persons engaged in the sale of malt and spirituous liquors, it is still more unjust and unequal to compel some to pay this high license and then do business by the side of other, who pay nothing; that when a man pays $1,000 license he should be protected from the ruinous competition of those who sell liquor and pay no license at all." It is therefore asked that the council appropriate $500 to be expended in the detection of people selling without license. The resolution was referred to the license committee.

THE CITY HOSPITAL

question again stirred up some little discussion. Ald. Gibson, from the committee on health and hospitals, reported that a building had been rented at the corner of Eleventh avenue south and Eighth street, from S. W. Farnham, for a term of three years at $960 a year. Ald. E. M. Johnson wanted to know what right the committee had to rent a building without being authorized to do so. Ald. Gibson said the committee had rented the building, as it found itself thwarted in endeavoring to obtain a hospital location by the friends of other hospitals. It found this building could be rented cheaply, and so rented it, and asked the council to confirm the action. Ald. Johnson wanted the committee's action referred to the committee on hospitals and a committee composed of one alderman from each ward. Ald. Gibson stated that this had already been done, but the matter was so referred notwithstanding, the following committee being appointed to act with the committee on health and hospitals: Alds. Cooley, Gleason, Hanscom, E. M. Johnson, J. L. Johnson, McArdle, Morse, Norenburg, Parker, Phillips, Reeves, Vogt.

THE CONDUIT FRANCHISE.

Ald. Cooley, from the special committee on the National Subway company franchise, reported a number of amendments to the ordinance granting the franchise, as follows: Changing the term from fifty to thirty years; providing the city shall have the use of conduits for the police and fire telephone and telegraph wires free of rent; requiring that two miles of conduit shall be laid by Dec. 1, and one mile thereafter annually; specifying that no exclusive franchise is granted; that the company shall not use over one-fourth of the space set aside for under-ground wiring; requiring removal of conduits if they do not prove satisfactory at the company's expense; requiring that a written acceptance shall be filed within five days from the passage of the ordinance.

Ald. Cooley wanted the ordinance given its second reading, but Ald. Mills objected to haste in so important a matter, and the ordinance was tabled for the time being upon his motion.

MISCELLANEOUS MATTERS.

The opinion of the assistant city attorney prescribing the powers of the police commission in answer to the inquiry from the mayor, was not read, but was ordered published. Another veto of a franchise to the street railroad was received and referred back to the committee on ordinances. The ordinance granting an extension of the Bryant avenue street car line was given its first and second readings, the amendments suggested by the mayor in his veto having been made.

The salary of M. G. Molan as an assistant in the office of the city clerk was fixed at $1,000.

An invitation to attend the opening of the exposition was accepted.

The recommendation of the committee on health and hospitals that the board of health be given control of scavenger licenses was adopted, as was the recommendation that a milk inspector should not be employed, but that the board of health shall have analysis made of milk.

Ald. Stoft offered a resolution pledging the good faith of the city to ask the legislature to authorize the issuance of $30,000 in bonds for the completion of the Franklin avenue bridge, which was passed without debate.

The ordinance consolidating sixty-seven grade ordinances into one, was given its final reading.

Adjournment was taken to next Friday evening.

A Good Investment.

Health and Happiness come to all who persistently use Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This powerful alterative effects in the system a change that seems little short of miraculous. No medicine has been in such universal demand for years. Give it a trial.

"If any one suffering from general debility, want of appetite, depression of spirits, and lassitude, will use Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I am confident a cure will result, for I have used it, and speak from experience. It is by far the best remedy I ever knew."—F. O. Loring, Brockton, Mass.
