Frank Hughes and George Moore, the two crooks arrested Tuesday night upon suspicion by Inspectors Lawrence and Kinney, were discharged in the municipal court yesterday upon promis ing to leave the city. According to the inspectors, the men before leaving gave up some information of a sensational nat-ure. They were concerned with a man named Murphy in the buglarizing of a ewelry store at Osseo, rbut after lan-quishing in jail for about seven weeks vere discharged for want of evidence against them. They stated to the in-spector, according to the latter, that the jewelry, valued at $1,560, was brought to Minneapolis and sold for $200 to a pawnbroker named H. De Young, whose place of business is at 214 Washington avenue south. This De Young came to Minneapolis about a year ago and was recommended to the police of the city as a successful stool-pigeon for the de-tection of things. That is from his as a successful stool-pigeon for the detection of thieves. That is, from his knowledge and intimacy with criminals he would be able to furnish the police with valuable points and information. Some weeks ago he applied to the immortal police commission for a "button" to be put in his place of business. A "button" is a small knob which, when touched, would ring an electric bell at police headquarters and thus post the detectives when crooks known to De Young should visit his place. For conveying this information De Young asked $100 a month. This idea was warmly advocated by the idea was warmly advocated by the moral members of the police commis-sion, but was opposed by the balance of the board, who had a strong suspicion the board, who had a strong suspicion that the plan was being urged for the ultimate purpose of booming J. C. Gowdy, who has made some pretensions to being a detective, for the office of chief inspector, to which he has aspired. As he has been on intimate terms with the De Young it was conjectured that he would also be furnished with a "button" and given information in advance of the detectives. At least some authentic rumors about the city hall substantiate such a theory.

Mayor Ames, when asked last night if the above had come to his knowledge as a commissioner, answered that he believed the report was substantially correct and that the scheme was to enable Gowdy to loom up as a detective of rare ability in order that he might supplant Capt. Hankinson.

WORK FOR THE CITY. Cost of Paving and Bridge Building During the Year.

City Engineer Rinker has been at work upon his annual report, to be made to the council the first of next year, for a long time. It is not yet completed, however, as all the figures in some of the departments are not all in, and will not be obtainable for some days yet. The following figures show some of the work that has been done during the past year: The total amount of money expended on bridges during the year was $237,529.34, of which $233,119.51 was for new bridges, which are in course of construction or have been built: new steel arch bridge, substructure completed, superstructure under construction. $104.792.16: Twender to the indictment, on the ground that the facts stated in the indictment that the indictment stated that Peter and Mary Sauer sold liquor without first procuring a license, therefore, that the legal inference must be that one of them had a license and therefore no crime was committed. Judge Lochern sustained the demurrer, and the defendants were discharged. The county attorney then had Peter Sauer arraigned on a second indictment, and on which he stood trial and was convicted. The court gave him forty-five days in the county jail and ordered him to pay a fine of $75 and the costs of prosecution. of the West side canal has only occasionally shown over two feet depth since Monday, and it is the general expression of millers that they never before saw the river so low. There are some mills which have attempted to run, but could not keep even their empty machinery in motion. Three of these have practically closed down for the winter, as any improvement in the power until spring is considered extremely doubtful. In fact, the weather, being open and mild, has been in favor of the mills right along, and as soon as there is a and mild, has been in favor of the mills right along, and as soon as there is a solid freeze up a much worse condition of things may be expected. The daily output at present, though difficult to estimate, probably does not vary greatly from 20 barrels. BARNEY BALDWIN'S PLIGHT.

A Talk With a Natural Paradox ---The Second Case Now on Record.

Some new method of capital punish ment must be devised. There is a living witness to the fact that a broken neck does not necessarily cause death, and as the broken neck is the essential come. On the third floor of the Nicollet house yesterdary afternoon a convenphysicians looked with professional interest and much non-professional wonder at Barney Baldwin. who presents the anatomical paradox of a man living with a broken neck a man fiving with a broken neck.
About his waist is a powerful corset, which supports a steal arm coming up from behind and carrying a frame which holds his head erect. The moment this frame is removed, the head falls forward and utter unconsciousness ensues. The neck is broken at the sixth vertebra, and so the physicians have attested.

The neck is broken at the sixth' vertebra, and so the physicians have attested, following the example of the most noted surgeons of the world.

"This is the second case of broken neck I have seen," said Dr. Allen as he finished his examination. "The other was the case of my own father. He was thrown from a carriage and the cervical vertebræ were dislocated. But he not only lived, but the neck regained its strength. There is no doubt this man's neck is really broken."

Barney Baldwin is accompanied by his wife, an attentive little lady with Minnie Maddern hair, who does all in her power to make his life as comfortable as possible. She is familiar with his case and talks as glibly of the accident and its results as does Barney himself.

able as possible. She is familiar with his case and talks as glibly of the accident and its results as does Barney himself.

"Give an Irishman a fair show and he'll beat the world," said that redoubtable individual. "I have gone through enough to kill a dozen ordinary men. Yes, it was a railroad accident, of course. I was a railroad accident, of course. I was a brakeman on the Louisville & Nashville railroad, and the accident happened last 19th of March at Birmingham, Ala. I was on a caboose when the throttle of the engine flew open and the jerk threw me off. It was a desperate struggle for life. In the fall I dislocated my left shoulder, and the next moment broke my right arm trying to catch the step of a caboose as it went over me. As the engine came along I threw up my leg to catch the foot board and broke it in two places, and the next moment the ash pan struck me and I was gone. When I was picked up unconscious, I had my neck, both arms, both legs and five ribs broken. Suffer! Of course I do, and it makes me irritable, and sometimes flighty in my talk. For three months I lay on a rubber mattress filled with water. 'You furnish the science and I'll find the nerve,' I said to the doctors."

Yet in spite of all this, there Barney sat and talked easily of his bruises. He is cut and scarred from head to heels, and constantly wears the corset and mask. When the accident occurred he wore a gold watch in his pocket, which was missing for fourteen hours. Finally, after cutting a bolt head from his chest, near the collar bone, the surgeon cut the watch from his side, where it had been forced by the cruel pressure.

"I believe he will get well yet, "said Dr. Allen. "This I base on my father's case. I think the ligaments will gradually grow stronger until he can support his head without that frame. It may take two years yet."

"I can wait that long," said Barney, cheerfully, "but it is very tough. There is not a minute in which I don't suffer. Still I think I notice signs of improvement. For a while I could not see an Dropping into the furniture store of Charles P. Stevens & Son, on Fifth street, a reporter of the Globe noticed that the enterprising proprietors have recently added largely to their stock and many new and very elegant designs in furniture, especially suited for holiday gifts, are on display. No less than 125 different styles of tables are shown on the first floor, besides lovely rockers in silk plush and embossed leather, and the whole six floors of their great store is crowded with a wonderful variety of beautiful sofas, chairs, hall stands, cabnets and solid chamber suites, office desks, etc., such as would rejoice any housekeeper's heart to have. Their prices are all marked in plain English figures and are clear down to rock bottom. Just go in yourself to C. P. Stevens & Son's warercoms and you will find our reporter correct.
