FATALITIES NEAR SIOUX FALLS. Special to the Globe.

SIOUX FALLS, Dak., Jan. 13.—Reports of the victims of Thursday's blizzard are beginning to come in which show the storm to have been by far the most destructive to life of any ever known in this section. A young Norwegian name unknown, who works for O. G. Gunderson, five miles northwest of here, was found at noon yesterday frozen to death. He had wandered fifteen miles out of his way in trying to reach Gunderson's house, from which he was less than half a mile when he started. Harry L. Thorpe, of this city, found the stiff remains of Miss Altrandy, a school mistress at St. Olaf, near here, at noon today. By her side was a fifteen-year-old pupil of hers who has not yet been identified. Miss Brandy tried to reach her home on Thursday night with the storm, and it is thought he cannot recover. One of his horses was dead. Reports from the country state that the loss among cattle and hogs was very large. Efforts are being made to raise the blockade, and trains may be running by Monday night or Tuesday morning.

TRAGEDIES NEAR GARY. Special to the Globe.

GARY, DAK., Jan. 14.—The only serious result of the terrific blizzard, so far as reported, is the death of a young boy, Charles Staltzberger, of Altamont township. A son of Mr. Staltzberger had his nose broken last Monday by the wind, and he was unable to recover. One of his horses was dead. Reports from the country state that the loss among cattle and hogs was very large. Efforts are being made to raise the blockade, and trains may be running by Monday night or Tuesday morning.

A TOUCHING CASE OF PATERNAL HEROISM -- CASUALTIES NEAR HURON. ATORRA, Dak., Jan. 14.—Reports of casualties of Thursday's storm begin to come in. Several countrymen in this afternoon and recite instances of suffering from the storm. Among the particulars elicited are those attending the death of Joseph Chambers, six miles southwest of Huron. Mr. Chambers had two sons, one nine years and the other eleven, went one mile distant to water their cattle. They were on foot and each of the boys had a horse. The father, seeing the indications of a storm, sent the older boy home as he was unable to ride. The younger boy reached home safely. Chambers and Johnny, the nine-year-old boy, returned to drive the cattle. They were snowed out and lost. Johnny was killed through the storm, and he so badly frozen as at first represented, says that when his father saw they were lost he took the boy's horse and rode to him and wrapped him up the best he could. They had no overcoats or extra clothing. Johnny says he was so cold that he could not get up. His father went out and called and the St. Bernard dog barked, but no answer came. Then the father and dog got out and the father said, "Johnny, I cannot go and leave you here." The boy urged, but the father would do no more than call for aid, within certain limits. Twenty minutes later the dog kept with the boy. Through the night they had conversations about perishing, but the father kept assuring the boy that he would only die if he died. The boy knew that his father was freezing but was quite comfortable himself and said that he would die with him. When morning came, the father was still alive. Discovering that Johnny was awake the father said to him, "Now, Johnny, I know you will take your horse and get out of here." They prayed, and soon after the father was dead. The boy was buried covered up, except his head, in the snow. He lay still through the night.

THE DOG FOUND SENTRY and afforded the cue by which the bodies were found soon after daylight by a searching party. Johnny thinks his father had not been dead more than an hour when found. Johnny's feet are slightly frozen also, the tips of his fingers, one thumb badly. Dr. Smith, who called, says there is no doubt but that the boy was restored in a short time. Mr. Chambers was a little over thirty years of age, and was a native of Iowa. His solicitude for the safety of his children was so great that he would not have left them alone. He was a very good man, and his death is a great loss to his family. The boy is attending them. They think they will recover. Bell O. Holland, a teacher in the teachers' neighborhood, remained all Thursday night in the school house with her pupils. A searching party has been out most of the day, but failed to find the body of Thomas Gilkeson, the milkman. Frank and William Nielson, brothers living on the D. L. St. Paul farm, were found to death this morning. They formerly lived in Chicago, and their parents now reside here. Joseph F. Wilson was with the Nielson boys, but cannot be found. They were out with stock. Adam Gerber, living near Ionia, is reported lost, and no trace of him can be found. It is probable that others will be added to the death list. The Northwestern railroad is endeavoring to clear the east line. They have engine, snow-plows and a large force of men at work.

TRAINS BLOCKED. More Snow Along the Northern Pacific in Manitoba. Some of the roads were in a better condition yesterday, while others were not much, if any, better of than they were on Friday. All the roads were hard at work doing the best they could to clear the track of snow. Some of the roads are endeavoring to clear the east line. They have engine, snow-plows and a large force of men at work.

ANOTHER DEATH LIST. Special to the Globe.

CANTON, Dak., Jan. 14.—The storm that raged throughout Dakota for nine hours Thursday night was the first real blizzard since 1870. The thermometer did not run low, but the blinding snow and the high winds, which were blowing from the north, were the worst of the storm. The blizzard struck Southwestern Dakota and Western Iowa at just about the time the people were closing for the day, and it is feared that many children have perished in the country. Where the teachers refused to allow the children to go to school, they were taken home. Reports of fatalities from Thursday's storm are still coming in. A young boy, near St. Paul, died while returning home from a neighbor's at Woodlawn. T. J. POTTER ILL. The Well Known Railway Magnate. Special to the Globe.

DR. MORSES, IOWA, Jan. 14.—T. J. Potter, the well known railway magnate, new general manager of the Union Pacific, is completely broken down in health. Several severe hemorrhages of the lungs have nearly destroyed his vitality. It was his intention to visit the Pacific slope during the winter, but his medical advisors decided it unsafe to travel. To-day Helena has been virtually shut in, no through trains arriving or departing, and only a few local trains are running. The main line of the Northern Pacific, which has been completely collapsed under the pressure of overwork. He is a young man, and had a most remarkable career, rising from a common brakeman on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road to the responsible position of general manager. He had just been promoted to the position of general manager of the Union Pacific company.

IOWA LEGISLATURE. Special to the Globe.

DES MOINES, IOWA, Jan. 14.—The Iowa senate divested itself of all partisanship this morning, and by a unanimous vote adopted the report of the committee on elections, seating Senator Cassatt, of the Fifteenth district. The report found that the irregularities charged in Monroe county were merely clerical, and did not invalidate the election. The executive council did not take that view of it when canvassing the vote last month, and ordered a special election in three precincts on the 17th inst. The action of the senate settles the case, and the election will probably go by default. The most important bill introduced was the repeal of nearly all our present railroad laws, and applies to Iowa the principle of the interstate law making the RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS ELECTIVE INSTEAD OF APPOINTED. Senator Young has introduced a resolution authorizing the attorney general to obtain additional counsel and bring action against the railroads for violating the law against pooling.

HIS CAREER ENDED. A Notorious Young Desperado Meets Death at the Hands of a Saloonkeeper. Special to the Globe.

CHURCH'S FERRY, DAK., Jan. 14.—Neal McKeague was shot and killed by T. A. Hillerman, a saloonkeeper, tonight about 6 o'clock. The original cause of the trouble was the fact that Hillerman had prevented McKeague from cheating at cards in a game the night previous. McKeague had been trying to start a row all day and finally crossed the street, drawing a .44-caliber revolver at the same time, with the intention of shooting Hillerman. Hillerman, who was behind the bar, shot at McKeague, hitting him in the head and spattering his brains all over the bar room. He then quietly walked across the street and shot himself up to a justice of the peace. McKeague was a notorious desperado and feared by all who came in contact with him. He came to Church's Ferry three years ago fresh from a penitentiary in Canada, where he served a term for attempted rape. He was the principal in several murders, and was expected to be released in five years ago, in which he was charged, and by many believed guilty, with the murder of George Wilson and several other men. He was a man of great force and energy, and was a great deal of money in his department. He was a man of great force and energy, and was a great deal of money in his department.
