WILL PLAY BALL.

The Fifteen Young Athletes Who Will Wear the Minneapolis Uniform

And Contest for the Pennant for 1888 in the Western Association.

A Review of the Base Ball Statistics and the Prospects for This Year.

Why the Old Team Lost Games So Easily and the People Lost Confidence.

Money for Ball Playing, But Not a Cent for Amateur Exhibitions.

The Public Knows What It Wants and Will Not Be Hoodwinked.

The base ball season for Minneapolis is almost upon us. The cranks have talked the chances of the local team either to grasp the pennant or be hurled into last place, as the case may be.

He is not in the ball business for his health, and he knows that a good team and good results must precede any profits. If there is such a thing as a "good ball town," it will do it this year.

THE NEW GROUND. A Rearrangement of Everything --Great Improvement Noted. The habitual warmer of seats in the grand stand on the bleaching boards will scarcely recognize the Minneapolis ground when he seats himself for the opening game this season.

Manager Gooding is disposed to say nothing as to the relative efficiency of the team, but thinks he has a good aggregation of ball talent and is willing to spend money to improve it. In getting his material he has acted on the principle that a large investment in men means a correspondingly large return in patronage, and the result will show the wisdom of his course.

Is Minneapolis a Good Location for a Team or Is It Not? Nothing succeeds like success. The base ball manager knows this, thoroughly. For two years Minneapolis has been a "poor ball town" and money has been sunk in the effort to support an organization.

THE MANAGEMENT. Hands and Heads That Will Control the Team's Destiny. The franchise for Minneapolis is owned and the team will be managed this year by W. E. Gooding, who has purchased all rights, privileges and leases from R. O. Foster.

THE OUTFIELD

Believed to Be Strong at Bat and in the Field. The most promising coterie of the coming team, in the opinion of the management, is the outfield. Few will be the high balls sent out gardenwards that are not readily eaten up. Jevne, McClellan and Patton certainly make a strong trio, and will admirably hold up their end of the game.

THE LEADING TOPIC.

Views of Various Men on the Uppermost Thought in Minneapolis. The question was asked several men yesterday what they regarded as the most important matter before Minneapolis to-day. Their variety of views is expressed below:

THE INFELD.

New Strength With New Blood--The Apparent Outlook. It has already been stated that Minneapolis was weak the season through at second base. This weakness demoralized the entire infield, and to a many of the defeats can be directly traced. For this season the center bag will be a strong point, well covered. The effect will be noticeable toward third base, and better work will surely result.

CATCHING TALENT.

The Receiving Ends of the Batteries Are All Right. Three catchers have been signed for the coming season and the management believes they are "all right." Two are new and unknown, and one is well known and popular. The importance of this position can not be overestimated.

A CHARCOAL SKETCH.

I sketched my love at a break of day, I sketched my heart at a break of day, I sketched my soul at a break of day, I sketched my life at a break of day.
