

SAINT PAUL.

Chief Clark—The few arrests now being made speak well for the good of the city.

Dr. Quinn—Attempted suicides and dead bodies are getting to be quite common.

W. P. Murray—The convention is waiting for Mr. Blaine to cable the result.

City Engineer Ruedt—The force on the Maryland street grading will be doubled in order to complete the work this year.

Chorus of Louisville Excursionists—The sights around here are simply superb, and cannot be exaggerated.

Charles A. Dana—My prospects for the secretaryship of the board of education are growing higher.

Capt. Berger—I don't like his politics, but the Globe is the best local paper in St. Paul.

J. F. Reese—Yes, a gentle zephyr carried off my mustache, but it will not affect me when it comes time for campaign speeches.

Editor States Marshal Campbell—I can't tell you a thing new to-day—I am too busy in the court to think of anything.

J. Bell, Registrar of Deeds—I came up from Chicago to-day. The Minnesota people are having a lively time there.

Some of them were broke, and a St. Paul man struck me for no reason at all. He said he'd been touched for $8.

D. F. Reese—It looks as if our man, Blaine, was going to be there.

Judge Frederick Nelson—Don't you think I have got my office fixed up pretty nicely?

Editor William Cole—No, I don't know anything about shooting tournaments. My gun is rusty and I don't shoot.

Supt. W. W. Penderast—The prospect of this country does not depend upon the tariff, and is not the result of our tariff laws.

Indeed, I don't know but what we would be even more prosperous under a tariff than we are at first thing. He said he'd been touched for $8.

Senator D. W. Hixson, of the man—I do not care much who is nominated for president, as long as he is a good man.

E. G. Bailey, of Billings, Mont.—They are ready to commence work on the Billings, Clark's Forks & Cook City and the Rocky Fork & Cook City railroads.

But are waiting for the money to come. Ex-Mayor C. D. O'Brien—The Chicago convention will not accomplish much in keeping with its conduct so far as it nominates John L. Sullivan.

CASUAL CHATTERS.

M. J. Bell, registrar of deeds, who has been attending the Chicago convention, refers amusingly to the ruse he had to employ to get into the convention last Wednesday.

Delegate Freeman had offered him tickets Monday and Tuesday, but Mr. Bell declined them, preferring to let some of the other boys have them.

When Wednesday came he had to go and buy a ticket, so he got a veteran's ticket for $2.50. He discovered, however, that this would not admit him to the parquette, so desiring the best, the convention would allow him to take an assistant sergeant-at-arms and would like to see him.

The officer took him to another with the remark: "This is an old friend of Capt. M.—"; was out with him last night, and wishes to see him."

"Right, certainly," replied the other; "there he is, right up there beside the chairman; go right up that aisle, and they'll show you up on the platform."

Al Flournoy tells a good story on the father of Henry Watterson. Some years ago Nat Goodwin was in Louisiana and did the town with the star-eyed goddess editor. Mr. Watterson took Nat to his home and introduced him to Mr. Watterson.

Mr. Watterson said to Mr. Goodwin: "You are a man of the land of the white man, to the exclusion of Henry, and he didn't miss any right good fellowship, either."

THE CHICAGO CONVENTION.

Not Much Local Interest in the Ballot Display.

The balloting for candidates at the Chicago convention was belittled by the various newspapers in St. Paul, but did not attract very much attention.

A UNION OF HEARTS, Accompanied by a Glittering Display of Friendly Offerings.

The greatest social event of the past week in which St. Paul society is directly interested was the wedding at Tuesday at Chicago of Herman Scheffer, cashier of the Commercial National bank of this city, and brother of Hon. Albert Scheffer, to Miss Adelle Giesler, stepdaughter of the late Chicago banker E. S. Fryer.

They were united at the magnificent residence of the bride's father, at Lake View, overlooking Lincoln Park. The ceremony occurred at 7 p. m., and friends and relatives of the contracting parties were present by the hundreds from all over the country.

The services were performed in one of the bay windows of the mansion, the bride and groom standing beneath a floral arch and wedding veil, and all the decorations were of the most lavish scale. The bridesmaids were Miss Lehmann, of Chicago, and Miss Schloss, of Milwaukee.

The groomsmen were Alfred Scheffer, brother of the groom, and John H. Glade. The bride was attended in a Worth toilet of white moire, with a train of tulle and diamonds.

In the wedding procession the bride was preceded by her two little sisters and followed by a congratulatory telegram from Germany, France, England, Canada, the South, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Milwaukee and St. Louis.

The reception lasted from 7 to 11 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. Scheffer started the next day for Lake Elmo, where they are now spending their honeymoon.

An array of presents was displayed by the happy couple, among them being a solid morocco trunk filled with silver, and a case of gold jewelry.

The bride's case of gold jewelry included a pair of diamond earrings, a pair of diamond studs, a pair of diamond bracelets, and a pair of diamond necklaces.

MUSICAL CHILDREN.

The Last of the Series of Public School Concerts.

"St. Paul is the best city in this country when it comes to taking an interest in what the school children are doing."

said one of the leading instructors in the city schools last evening after he had caught a glimpse of the vast audience in the opera house.

"There may be some empty seats in this house when a first-class opera company appears here, but there is never a vacant seat when the little folks give any kind of an entertainment, especially such as tonight's concert. It is a most commendable spirit, and very gratifying to the teachers."

The programme of the concert was the same as that rendered on Friday evening, but the programme was so arranged that the positions of many of the members were changed.

The primary chorus from the Humboldt school performed some difficult evolutions in marching, and the little captain quite distinguished herself as a commander.

Miss Bridges sang the "Flower Girl" so exquisitely that she was encored several times and responded with an operatic selection.
