TRIBUTE TO THE DEAD

Funeral Services Over the Remains of the Late Courtlandt Palmer.

Distinguished People from All Professions Show Their Respect.

An Eloquent Oration Delivered by Hon. Robert G. Ingersoll.

Pure Thoughts, Brave Words and Generous Deeds Can Never Die.

Special to the Globe. NEW YORK, July 26.—The late home of Courtland Palmer at 117 East Twenty-first street wes crowded almost to suffocation by the friends who came to attend his funeral service. The Nine-teenth Century club, of which Mr. Pal-:ner was the founder, was largely represented in the gathering. The remains of the deceased advocate of freemains of the deceased advocate of free-dom of thought reposed naturally in a rosewood coffin, which was laden with flowers, in the parlor of the house. Among the friends in attendance were Mayor Hewitt, President Forster, of the board of aldermen; Assistant District Attorney Jerome, Rabbi Gottheil, Moncure D. Conway, Raymond Perrin, Daniel Thompson, Cyrus Butler, Dr. Abbe, Mrs. Beard, Pearl Eytinge, Robert Blissert, John L. O'Sullivan, the spiritualist; I. H. Bailey and Dr. Thomas Robertson. After Macgrane Cox had sung the "Evening Star" song,

Cox had sung the "Evening Star" solig, COL. ROBERT G. INGERSOLL, in accordance with a request made by Mr. Palmer some time before his death, delivered an address. He said: "My friends, a thinker of pure thought, a speaker of brave words, and a doer of generous deeds has reached the silent haven that all the dead have reached and where the voyage of every life must end; and we as friends who even now are hastening after him are even now are hastening after him are met to do the last kind acts that man may do for man—to tell his virtues, to lay with tenderness and tears his ashes in the secret place of rest and peace. Some OPEN HANDS OF DEATH

we find only what has been given away.
Let us believe that pure thoughts, brave words and generous deeds can never die. Let us believe that they bear fruit and add forever to the well-being of the human race; that a self-denying life increases the moral wealth of man and gives assurance that the future will be better than the past. A free and inde-pendent man, one who demanded rea-sons and demanded freedom and gave what he demanded—one who refused to be slave or master-such a man was Courtlandt Palmer. He was an honest man. He gave the rights he claimed. This was the foundation on which he built. To think for himself, to give his thoughts to others—this was a privilege and a right, a duty and a joy with him. He believed in personal

He believed in personal INDEPENDENCE AND IN MANHOOD.
He investigated for himself; majorities were nothing to him; no error could be old enough or plausible enough to bribe his judgment. He was a believer in intellectual hospitality. He insisted that those who spoke should hear; that those who questioned should answer; that each should strive, not for a victory over others but for the not for a victory over others but for the discovery of truth, and that truth when found should be welcomed by every human soul. He knew that truth has no fear of investigatiom, that it has no fear of being misunderstood, that

He knew that its enemies are big-ptry, fear and darkness, and that its friends are freedom, bravery and light. He felt that the living are indebted to the noble dead, and that each should pay his debt; that he should pay it by extending to the best of his power the good that has been done, that each should be the bearer of truth. This was the religious of dead mitthiu the was the religion of deed within the by the head and proved by the heart; a religion that appealed to reason. It was a religion to develop the civiliza-tion of the human race by enlighten-ment and education, by teaching each to be noble enough to live for all. This is the GOSPEL OF MAN.

the gospel of this world; this the religion of humanity. This is the philosophy which contemplates, not with scorn, but with pity, with admiration and with love. He denied the supernatural, the phantoms and ghosts who filled the deluded land of fear. There was but one religion for him, a religion of pure thoughts, noble works, self-denying deeds—the religions of hope and help. History was his prophet, reason his guide, duty his deity, happiness his end, intelligence the means. He knew that man must be the providence of man. He did not believe in religion and science, but in the religion of science. He ence, but in the religion of science. He lived and labored for his fellowman. He welcomed light. According to his light he lived. The world was his country;

TO DO GOOD HIS RELIGION.

There is no language to express a hobler creed than this, nothing grander, more comprehensive, nearer perfect. He was afraid to do wrong, and for that reason was not afraid to die. He kn ew the end was near; he knew his work was done: he stood within the deepen-ing twilight knowing that for the last time the gold was fading from the west, and that there could not fall within his eyes the trembling lustre of another dawn. He knew night was coming, but dawn. He knew night was coming, but in that night the MEMORY OF GENEROUS DEEDS shone like stars—kind words can pay a tribute to the man who lived his ideal, who has turned aside neither by envy nor hatred, nor contumely, nor slander, nor scorn, nor fear. What words will do we do with love and justice. Farewell, dear friend; the world is better for thy life. The world is braver for thy death. Farewell; we loved you living and we love you now."

Col. Ingersoll finished by reading one of Mr. Palmer's poems. After an inter-of Mr. Palmer's poems. After an intermission of five minutes religious services were read by Mrs. Courtlandt Palmer's pastor, Rev. R. Heber Newton. Mr. Palmer's body was taken to the crematory at Fresh Pond, L. 1., where it will be reduced to ashes this

A Russian Nobleman Travels All the Way to Cleveland But to No Purpose.

CLEVELAND, O., July 26 .- The upper ten of Cleveland society are discussing an interesting romance just now. They are telling how a beautiful young lady of Chatham, Ont., who has been visiting here for some time, refused to marry a Russian nobleman. The couple met in Germany two years ago on a ralway reach of man within the circumference of the unknown, a religion understood by the head and proved by the heart; a religion that appealed to reason. It member of a noble family. A correspondence enough and three weeks ago spondence ensued, and three weeks ago spondence ensued, and three weeks ago the count came to Cleveland to meet the young lady by appointment. Dinners were given at the count's hotel, and he was in turn entertained by her friends, but all his professions of love were in vain, and a few days since the young lady left for Canada and the count do lady left for Canada and the count de-parted sorrowfully for Russia. The young lady's friends refuse to permit the use of her name.
