People Who Delight to Be on Public Exhibition.

LADIES LOVE NAMES IN PRINT

Exceptions Are Those Who Wish Nothing Said of Their Last Reception.

GLOBE or other daily paper gives the average man in idea that the process of evolu-tion is going on with great rapidity in social circles. In fact, those who compose the inner circles seem al-ways to be on ex-hibition for the ed-hibition for the edification and amusement of those who stand without. Society is so charmingly frank nowadays. It is willing and and ious that all the world shall know how it lives and what it wears. A reporter, on being assigned for the first time to report a wedding or reception, feels some timidity about asking the hostess the names of all her guests, what she furnishes them to eat and how much the music and floral decorations cost. It seems like prying into other people's private affairs, and he would not be surprised to find a storm of indignation aroused by his queries. In reality there is no indignation felt. On stating his errand the hostess smiles pleasantly and answers his questions fully, often volunteering much addi-tional information. When the report of the reception or wedding is published, it is apparent from the interest of the receptor of wording is has lished, it is apparent from the interest manifested, that society demands and will have a full description of even the smallest details pertaining to any social affair. The paper which publishes the longest report is read with avidity. Personal gossip seems to have a rare fascination for people who have much leisure, and then so many people like to see their own names in cold type. Occassionally is found the lady who does not desire an account of her last reception published. Nor does she wish a "personal" every time she leaves the city for a few days. But that type of woman is so rare that she ought to be dated about 1,000 years back and placed on the shelves of a museum as a natural curiosity. The most progressive women of to-day are those who, through the medium of society, manage to keep the medium of society, manage to keep women of to-day are those who, through the medium of society, manage to keep themselves constantly before the public. Their object may be easily accomplished in either of two ways. A display of wealth or extravagance is one method, and an assumption of originality is another. The two methods are almost causally accounts blee although it is ity is another. The two methods are almost equally acceptable; although it is daily becoming more difficult to assume the role of originality. It is a question if this fashion of publicity may not have a good tendency, and, perhaps from our present system may be, evolved one which will furnish a full trusts of acceptance and yout he should be a superposed. quota of recreation and yet be shorn of some of the startled and comic features which are characteristic of nineteenth century society.

GAINING NOTORIETY. How H. A. Schwenberg Is Coming to the Front. H. A. Schwenberg, a resident of South Minneapolis, is rapidly making a name for himself. Some time ago he caused the arrest of Patrolman Shelley on a charge of murder, after that office had shot a prisoner who had knocked him down and was escaping. Yesterhim down and was escaping. Yester-day morning Schwenberg was arraigned in the municipal court on a charge of larceny preferred by T. M. Glaseo. A lot of fish and oysters had been stolenfrom Glaseo, and some of the goods were found in Schwenberg's possession. His story was that four men had given him the stuff. He was held to the grand jury under $500 bonds.

Wanted Them Out. Secretary Fred George, of the inspector's department at police headquarters, declares that he is going to post the following notice in the office:

> REPORTERS WILL TRANSACT THEIR BUSINESS and Depart in Peace.

He says this is necessary because a certain "item hustler" has abused his privileges by looking over some private The New Motor Line.

The Minneapolis & St. Paul Rapid The Minneapolis & St. Paul Rapid Transit company has secured a right of way through the village of Golden Valley, and will build a motor line running to Medicine lake early in the spring. The company has $500,000 capital stock, and among its stockholders are P. B. Winston, Joel Bassett, Sylvanus D. Morrison, Francis Morrison, Matt Walsh and Jacob Barge, whose identification with the scheme is a guarantee of its success. An application will be made to the city council early in January for a franchise for the use of certain streets to reach the center of the city.
