SAINT PAUL. COMMANDED BY REX,

PHENOMENAL WEATHER. Signal Service Figures for the

Year Just Ended. A review of the weather at St. Paul shows that 1888 was one of the coldest years since 1880, and it was also dryer than the average. The year 1875 was years since 1880, and it was also dryer than the average. The year 1875 was colder, but the difference between the two was only one-tenth of a degree. The mean temperature was 39.9 deg., and total rain and melted snow, 25.86 inches, making a deficiency in temperature, 3.7 deg., and in precipitation, 13.13 inches. The showing for the year in several ways is the most eventful on record. The initial month, with a minimum temperature of 41.2 deg. below zero, and the terminal one, with 58.1 above, and a daily mean of 49.5 deg.—these on Jan. 21 and Dec. 24, respectively, are unprecedented here. The temperature continued below average for the first five months of the year. The sixth month was average, and the tendency the rest of the year was above average, but the increase was not sufficient to overcome the great deficiency principally resulting from the low temperature of the early months. The rainfall was decidedly more than average for the first seven months, owing to the excessive spring rains, but the closing months were exceedingly dry. There was no oppressive heat during the summer season. The temperature went above 90 but twice, once in July and once in August. On both occasions it attained the maximum for the year, 94 deg. It fell below 32 deg., or "freezing point," during 168 days, and remained below that point at all times during 183 days. The last "killing frost" of the spring season was May 13, and the first killing frost of the fall season came Sept. 29. There were no light frosts observed during the interval, 137 days, or about four and one-half months, that the temperlight frosts observed during the interval, 137 days, or about four and one-half months, that the temperature was actually favorable to the growth of vegetation. There was an average cloudiness of 5.6; 71 days were clear, 171 fair and 124 cloudy, and 119 with .01 inch or more of precipitation. Evidences of electric activity were much more frequent than in 1887, and there were twenty-seven electric disturbances-of the nature of thunder storms. July had 9; June, 5; April, 4; August, 3; September and May, 2 each, and October and November 1 each. That occult force also manifested itself That occult force also manifested itself seven times in a less demonstrative, but in the more mysterious aurora or polar light, of which May had 3 displays and January, February, June and and January, August 1 each.

By frugal and industrious habits he early acquired a small fortune, which was wisely invested in real estate, and at the time of his death his realty holdings here were valued at close to a million dollars. Among other property which he held were valuable business lots on Cedar and Robert streets, fine residence sites on Wabasha street and Oakland avenue, a large tract of ground on the West Side flats between Wabasha and Robert streets, two frame blocks on the West Side flats between Wabasha and Robert streets, two frame blocks of twenty-eight stores at the East Seventh street fill, and a ten-acre tract in Swede hollow. A characteristic of the deceased was his belief that all real estate should be productive of wealth, whether held for speculative purposes or used for active business purposes. With this idea in view the Swede hollow property was staked off Swede hollow property was staked off into small lots, and leased to tenants in such a manner that a certain number of such a manner that a certain number of square feet of property were annually productive of a certain amount of money, which made it not only possible to hold the property for speculative purposes, but enabled him to reap a handsome profitant ally. He refused many offers for this property from railroad corporations who desired to use it for yard purposes, and in one instance the figures approximated $100,000.

Merchants Must Be Prompt in Taking Out Their Licenses.

Viewing the Eclipse of the Sun From All Parts of the City.

Indulgence in Stimulants Cuts Short a Burglar's Career of Crime.

The common council finally disposed of two important questions at its meeting last evening. It first selected the official newspaper for the year, and then appropriated a sum of money for ice palace and carnival purposes. Not withstanding the counter attractions of New Year's day, aldermen were punc tual in response to President's Bickel's call to order, Ald. Leithauser and Hamm being the only absentees. Ald. O. O. Cullen is chairman of the committee on printing, and his report in regard to city printing recommended that the contract should be let to the Dispatch, that newspaper to be the official organ of the city. He also reported that a communication had been received from Lewis Baker, manager of the Globe Publishing company, to the effect that their bid and specimens were inadvertently not sent to the common council, and that they desired to be understood as having offered no bid. J. D. Cunningham was employed by the committee as an expert to determine the lowest bids tendered. His conclus ons were: First, That the bid of the Pioneer Press being 28 cents per inch for council proceedings, and 37 cents and 25 cents per inch, respectively, for all other advertisements, and the bid of the Dispatch being 25 cents and 20 cents per tee on printing, and his report in regard cents per inch, respectively, for all other advertisements, and the bid of the Dispatch being 25 cents and 20 cents per inch, respectively, for all work done, upon the face of the bids the Dispatch is the lowest. Second, That by comparison of the mode of printing an additional 16% per cent would be ga.ned in favor of the Dispatch.

Ald. Sanborn moved that the St. Paul Dispatch be designated by the common council of St. Paul as "the official paper of said city for 1889, in which shall be published all ordinances and other proceedings and matters required by the laws of the state and city."

The motion was seconded by several members and adopted unanimously.

A communication was read from a newly-formed society, the Rice Street Villas union. The members requested that the grading of Rice street from Maryland street to the north city limits should have its full width, with an eightfeet sidewalk on each side, the grading to be done in such a manner as to remove the no bridge over the Northern Pa-should have listen which, which alregate feet sidewalk on each side, the grading to be done in such a manner as to require no bridge over the Northern Pacific railroad crossing. The matter was referred to the committee on streets.

Upon motion of Ald. Kavanagh, the chief of police was instructed to notify persons whose business requires them to take out a license that unless said license is taken out prior to Feb. 1, they will be prosecuted in the manner provided by law.

President Van Slyke, M. D. Munn, W. M. Bushneil, Whitney Wall and others waited upon the council to Jurge the appropriation of $20,000 for the ice palace and carmyal. When this subject was ready for discussion, Ald. Cullen maved that the council go into executive session, and that the representatives of the press and public retire. A general exodus was being made when Ald. Sanborn proposed that the reporters be allowed to stay, with the understanding that they would not publish the proceedings.

President Bickel said there was no

President Bickel said there was no objection to this, and the council practically signified their assent, when Ald. Cullen said he objected to the reporters remaining. This ended the matter, Ald. ### STUDYING ASTRONOMY. Schedule Time Made by the Sun and Moon. Smoked glass was at a premium in this city yesterday, and the eclipse of the sun was viewed by thousands of people. Groups congregated on the street corners, each man provided with a small piece of the fragile material, which was kept glued to the eye until the moment of totality. Persons whose houses face west, and who rejoice in the luxury of a broad verandah, invited friends to spend New Year's day and enjoy the novel spectacle presented by the passage of the moon across the bright face of Old Sol. There was a continuous line of observers along the route from Dayton's bluff to Minnehaha Falls, and at Fort Snelling the long porticos of the parracks presented a lively aspect, with squads of soldiers possessing the inevitable glass. From the hill near the rifle range an excellent view of the eclipse was obtained, and the crest of the mound was alive with bluecoats, who, instead of the regulation army cap, wore coma small piece of the fragile material,

About 5 o'clock all that remained visible of the broad face of the sun was a crescent which was easily discernible to the naked eye.

Sergt. Lyons, of the United States signal service, said: "This station is not supplied with instruments which enabled me to note the transit of the moon, and therefore I made no better observation than I could with a common glass. The eclipse was nothing unusual or out of the order of the phenomena, and there is nothing in the atmosphere indicative of a cold wave. I have had no reports of such, and the indications are for bright, clear and fair weather. The season is very likely to continue with this weather, and in that event, which I think is very probable, the ice palace cannot be built with ice obtained anywhere about here." obtained anywhere about here."

A CORNED CROOK.

Policeman Goven Makes an Important Arrest.

Crimes upon crimes against society have been charged to Old King Atcohol, and soverat has become his reputation as a promoter of evil that good people long ago learned to consider him an arch conspirator with the devil against mankind. Whatever may have been his past record for wickedness the old fellow really did the law-abiding populace a good turn yesterday morning.

When Patrick O'Connor alias "Speckled Paddy." a notorious crook, appeared on East Seventh street yesterday morning equipped with a basket containing a lunch, box of fuses, jimmy, steel drills, gunpowder and other accouterments of a professional safe blower, Old Alcohol took him under control, and undoubtedly prevented a "job." O'Connor was on his way down the street where he stepped into an open saloon at Seventh and Rosabel streets and take a smile with the new year. The liquor was good and drinks followed in rapid succession, and before he could leave the place he was in a state of intoxication, in which condition he walked into the arms of Officer Gavin. The officer examined the contents of the basket and arrested him as a suspicious character. At police headquarters he was recognized as Speckled Paddy, who was arraigned in court a short time ago with James White, and given a sentence of thirty days, which was suspended on condition that both of them leave the city.

condition that both of them leave the city.

The prisoner is a criminal of considerable note, and is represented in regues' galleries and police albums throughout the country. He has caused the police authorities of Chicago a great deal of trouble, and has operated extensively in many Eastern cities. Paddy was first arrested in St. Paul during the Villard reception in 1883, when, with three companions named Brown, Case and Stanton, he was arrested as a pickpocket and held until the crowd had dispersed. Later the quartette made a haul in Minneapolis, and one of the gang was killed in a quarrel over the distribution of the plunder.

NEW YEAR'S GREETINGS.

The Day Celebrated With Decorum and Propriety.

BUT FEW CALLS MADE.

Turning Over of a New Leaf Converts the Revelers for a Time. at Least.

New Year's day was observed in St. Paul in a very superficial manner. The which guard the treasures of the wholesale district were hermetically sealed, and the clerks and retainers of the large mercantile houses were allowed to en-joy a much-needed day of rest. The capitol and state and municipal offices, with a common accord, hung out their figurative baskets, and as a consequence those having legitimate business, or those having legitimate business, or literal axes to grind at the altar of state-bood, were forced to forego their desires until to-day, and lull into contentment the budding ambitions which surged under the respective broadcloth or jeans of the wearer.

The white-aproned attendants at the various places of public and fashionable resort had an abundance of leisure on their hands, and were not seriously ble resort had an abundance of leisure on their hands, and were not seriously embarrassed in their efforts to make change. The bar rooms, cigar stores and billiard rooms were comparatively deserted, and the poprietors would scarcely care to dispute the ancient proverb that a "good beginning makes a bad ending." The theaters gave a special matinee and received a LIBERAL SHARE OF PATRONAGE. The corridors of most of the hotels were deserted during the early hours of the day, although there were a number of politicians about the Merchants until the earlier evening trains carried them the earlier evening trains carried them to their respective homes. At the Ryan and Merchants elaborate dinners were served to tempt the epicurean tastes of the guests of each house. At the former hostelrie the usual Sunday even-ing custom of 5 o'clock dinner was adhered to.

There was little or no indiscriminate New Year's calling indulæed in, and moodish people seem to fancy that the good old austom is becoming rapidly obsolete, taking their cue, no doubt, from the decline of this once popular custom in the effete East. The young men of to-day take advantage of the holiday season and are prone to lie abed until the sun is well advanced in the path of his daily celestial course. There is a temptation to see the old year out, and not only bid the old man

No reveler feels like making an endeavor to achieve social making an endeavor to achieve social distinction the morning after a revel. A constitutional, a possible drink, a desultory game of billiards, or an afternoon at the theater permitted the time to pass pleasantly, if not rapidly, until the electric light dissipated the garish light of day, when the average man spent the interval until bedtime in the bosom of his family spent the interval until bedtime in the bosom of his family.

New Year's day is proverbially the time for good resolutions, and what wonder is it that an aching head and empty pocket caused many a man to make a virtue of necessity and remain at home during the evening? A hank make a virtue of necessity and remain at home during the evening? A bank account with lodgings to let, is often the harbinger of a multitude of virtues, and more than one man yawned through last evening indulging in the supposition that he was a martyr to the cause of social purity, when in reality he had no means at his disposal wherewith to take a last look into the vortex. There were a dearth of parties, or balls, to round out an evening's fun, and by 10 o'clock the streets were well nigh deserted, the chance wayfarer being greeted with an occasional but desolate "Hack, sir!"

There were a few receptions in commemoration of the day. The levee at the Gospel Temperance Union rooms drew forth a large crowd, and filled the rooms from 3 o'clock until the close. A cordial welcome was extended to all, and the mutual interchange of civilities was a sufficient guarantee that none

Springer, and a duo for niano and cornet was well rendered by and W. W. W. Springer, and a duo for piano and cornet was well rendered by George Skinner and Sidney Mecker.

Among the social events of New Year's day was the reception of Mrs. G. F. Clifford, assisted by Mrs. W. A. Somers. Mrs. S. W. Boyot, Mrs. D. W. Silts, Miss E. M. Leacy, Miss E. M. Clapp and Miss A. A. Woodbury, from 3 to 7 o'clock at 213 East Winifield street.

In response to 2,000 invitations sent out by the Young Men's Christian association Saturday, 700 callers presented themselves to the hospitality of the reception committee, who entertained the company between the hours of 6 to 8 o'clock last evening. One hundred and fitty persons sat down and dined with the committee. Exercises consisting of recitations, songs and speeches were held in the lecture room from 8 to 9, after which the audience retired to the gymnasium to witness an athletic exhibition by members of the association. Before the commencement of these exercises, speeches were made by James Suydam, R. C. Jefferson, F. M. Finch ercises, speeches were made by James Suydam, R. C. Jefferson, F. M. president; James Snydam, vice president; Thomas Cochran, Jr., T. W. Forbes and R. L. Jefferson. Much credit redounds upon T. C. Horton, general secretary, for his untiring efforts to please all. New Year's eve the association held a watch meeting in the lecture room. About 300 persons were present, many of whom wero brought to the meeting by the invitations posted in saloons about the city. A 'ight lunch was served at 2 o'clock Now Year's morning. Those present watched the old year out and welcomed the new by listening to testimonials of Christian young men, short addresses and prayers.

A New Year's party was given by Mrs. George Rochat, of West Third street, to a few friends yesterday afternoon. The prettily decorated apartments were thrown open to the company, and their verdict bore out the charming little hostess as a delightful entertainer.

Mr. Slaughter alighted between the rails directly in front of the advancing engine, and escaped probable death by but an instant, in which time he was able to spring from the tracks. Fortunately Foot fell outside the track, as he was so badly injured that he was unable to rise. Both men were badly bruised, and Mr. Foot sustained a severe sealp wound nearry three inches long, and a fracture of the bones of the right hand. It is claimed that at the time of the accident there was no flagman at the crossing.

The first day of the new year was socially ushered in by dances at the Sawyer. Music hall and Opera House hall, where the Home club, Maennerchor society and ty Leaf club, respectively, made merry. During the day many business places were closed, the chief signs of activity being confined to the lake front, where a highly animated turkey shoot was in progress on the ice during the afternoon. At the prison all general labor was suspended, and the convicts remained locked in their cells, the only happy variation of the monotony being the serving of an extra dinner bill of fare to the isolated inmates. The resident Shattock cadets gave a dance at the Sawyer house last evening; a largely attended bal masque was given at the North Second Street hall, and the villagers of South Stillwater danced at Sons of Hermann hall. At the Sawyer house Manager Young had a New Year's dinner for which many townspeople forsook their accustomed boards. No arrest for any cause was made New Year's eve or y crossing Mondoy.
