And the Whisky Sour Remain Political Factors for Two Years More.

The House Kills Prohibition With a Two-Ton Club.

Windy Debates Prepare an Air Cushion for the Drys to Fall On.

High License and the Blind Pig May Remain Par-amours.

Stupid, uninteresting and barren of fruit! This criticism upon the prohibition debate in the house yesterday is borne out by the facts that if the vote had been taken without a single speech the result would have been the same; and that the subject in itself with its mandarin sentimentalism, sumptuousness, etc., etc., and its innumerable, worn out, having been summarily dumped into the tureen last November, the prohibition leaders might have spared the state the agony of yesterday. These sentiments are reflections from those of the fifty-nine who returned them to the dish yesterday from which they had crawled without warrant. Excepting the efforts of Judge Fleming, John Day, Smith, Mr. Lane, Mr. Ives and Mr. Hay, the argumentative and the oratorical flights carried none of the speakers beyond the garble of a chicken-coop. The moral ground taken by the speakers overlooked the Slough of Despond, and his argument became so hopelessly entangled with the matter of Cold Harbor that it was hard to say whether he was reciting a Century war article or Underwood's Gettysburg oration. Mr. Lane proved himself to be a man of no great ability. He was not as good as his own voice. He was not as good as his own voice. He was not as good as his own voice.

LONG TONGUES Wagged for Many an Hour in the Debate.

Representative Hays opened the debate after the house had gone into committee of the whole to consider his bill favoring the submission of a constitutional amendment to the people prohibiting the sale and manufacture of liquor in this state. He said: "It is a question of great interest not only to us but to the people of the state. I do not think that the spirit shown here by the advocates of the amendment warrants the inference of faintness. It is claimed that this act infringes upon personal liberty, and that prohibition is not a personal liberty, but the infringement of personal liberty, which might as well say the same of every criminal law in the state. We deny that a man has a right to do that which injures his neighbor. The law has a right to step in and restrain him. Shall we say that any practice which produces crime shall not be considered a personal liberty? We oppose to this evil we are taxed to give it to others as a luxury. I claim that this is an infringement of our personal liberty which we have a right to resist. "The liquor traffic is striking at the very foundation of our homes. Marriage is decreasing, and the principles which we have inherited from our fathers are being undermined. "As to the question of prohibition not prohibiting, Mr. Hompe cited the testimony of the governor of Kansas that crime and drunkenness were prominent here, and quoted from official Iowa documents. Representative Hays then claimed that the enactment of a prohibitory law in Michigan would destroy the Republican party. Why, bless you, we have lost the liquor control long ago and we have nothing to show for it now. The prohibition law now rules are more solidly Republican than ever before. Your danger lies in the denying of the act of submission to the voters of the constitution of Republicans into the third party. I am not here to threaten the Republican party, for whatever reason I might have, but I am here to believe that, as in Kansas, the party here will eventually pass this act. Do you propose to continue in the rut of the old party? I believe that the liquor license may have lessened the number of saloons, as far as temperance is concerned it is an almost absolute failure. The brewers of Nebraska, and their business improved under high license, and so do those of Illinois. "It has been proven to me that the man in this state who dares to oppose the liquor interests of the state placing himself in a very delicate position. But gentlemen, defeat this measure if you can, for it will not come. The time will come when the home will triumph over the saloon."

BLOOD AT BRUNSWICK

An Alcohol Debauch at a Minnesota Village Ends in a Murder.

Mrs. Hanson Shot Through the Lungs—Her Brother-in-Law Wounded.

The Union Pacific and Northern Pacific Resort to Winchester.

Each Trying to Hold Jefferson Pass by Force of Arms.

Special to the Globe. MORA, Minn., March 7.—A mysterious shooting affair occurred this afternoon at Brunswick, seven miles west of here, at the house of Mrs. A. E. Hanson, in which Mrs. Hanson and a brother-in-law, Jacob Hanson, were severely wounded, the woman fatally. She was shot through both lungs and the man through both legs. The shooting is claimed to have been done by a man named William Nating. The story told by the man making the report is that he had been drinking some alcohol, which he had taken with him from Mora. After a time they became drunk, especially Nating, and a quarrel arose. Nating said that Hanson had shot him with a stick of wood, and about the same time the shooting occurred. When he came to, he was accused of the deed. Nating said he had no revolver on him, but was told that he used one that was in the house lying on the mantel. At any rate, the shooting was done, and Nating was arrested. There were present in the house besides Nating and the two wounded parties a young man and woman, son and daughter of Mrs. Hanson, who were drinking some alcohol. The affair looks as though he had been run down by a man named Nating, an expert marksman. The Nating family has a bad reputation, and it is thought that the shooting was done by some of the family who Nating was unconscious, and in the morning he was found dead. Nating was arrested at the location at which he was shot. D. M. STROCKS, AGENT, Commissioner.

WARLIKE MEASURES. The Union Pacific and Northern Pacific Sending Armed Men to Hold Jefferson Pass.

Special to the Globe. HELENA, Mont., March 7.—Last night 300 men left Butte for the Jefferson canyon armed with Winchester rifles. They were employees of the Union Pacific railroad, and were under the captaincy of a man named Kenna, an Illinois man. The men marched at once to the scene of disturbance. They had tents and all camp equipments, and their instructions were to hold the canyon. A large number of Northern Pacific men started from Helena for the same place and it seems certain that they will be in the canyon in a few days. The trouble is the possession of the canyon by either of the railroads and it comes about in this way: About five years ago the Union Pacific had got the canyon. The Northern Pacific, however, John Sumner, a cousin of Randall, was held as a witness, was granted $30 by order of the court, and took the case to the Supreme Court, Neb., where he has relatives.

SIGEL'S UGLY CASE. Special to the Globe. NEW YORK, March 7.—The examination of Pension Clerk Robert Sigel on charges of forgery, etc., was continued today. Sigel made a long and unimpressive attempt at justification of his acts, and Commissioner Shields held him in $5,000 bail on the charge of forging Mrs. Heineman's signature, and $15,000 on the other charges. The grand jury today found true bills against Sigel on all the charges.

FRIGHTENED PASSENGERS. Some Mischief Fires a Double Load of Buckshot Into a Crowded Coach.

CHICAGO, March 7.—The Cincinnati express, which came in on the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago road last evening, brought a badly scared lot of passengers. Two hours before reaching Chicago the train was fired upon by an unknown man, who took deliberate aim at the rear coach and sent two loads of buckshot crashing through the windows. Some of the passengers narrowly escaped serious injury. The shooting took place at 4:30 o'clock in the evening, near the station in Chicago. The train was running at a high rate of speed, not stopping at small stations. When about a mile south of Chicago, a mile from the station in Indiana, fifty-six miles from Chicago, the engineer noticed two men standing near the track. One had a double-barreled shotgun, supposing that they were looking for a man of special attention to them. The men stood motionless until the last coach was abreast of them, when the man with the shotgun fired a shot through the window of the last coach. The terrified passengers sprang from their seats and sent a shower of broken glass flying all over the car. For an instant they were almost paralyzed with fear, but realizing what had happened, they ran to the other end of the train. The men still standing by the track, all hidden by a cloud of smoke. An instant later the train sped around a curve. One of the passengers jerked the bell cord, and there was so much clack that the going in the locomotive cab did not ring. The train could not be stopped until a passenger ran about to the engine, where the conductor was found, and by that time several miles had been covered, and the conductor would not run back. An examination of the train showed that the last four windows on the left side were smashed to atoms. The outside of the car was riddled with shot, and a hand full of buckshot was found in the car. Fragments of glass were scattered in every direction. Several of the passengers were slightly cut. The prescription counter, where the thief drew an ax from beneath his coat and struck him down. Wehrung's hands were almost cut off in trying to save his head. His assailant has not yet been arrested. The store was robbed, but the police believe that this was done to avert suspicion as to the real motive of the crime. Wehrung was not insensible when discovered, and was removed to the hospital, where the doctors set to work to save his life. He will be able to get on his feet in a few days. The deed was done in the store, which was on the ground floor of a ten-story building. The store was on the corner of 10th and Broadway. The murder occurred, it is concealed from the view of customers in the store, and at its rear a window overlooks the street. Wehrung came to the store shortly before midnight, and as far as anyone knows, he was alone.

SLEPT THERE UNTIL MORNING. William Goulick, a boy who does chores about the place, rang the bell at 7 o'clock this morning, and found Wehrung, who was in his bed, dead. He went out to get rolls for Wehrung's breakfast, and the clerk went whistling behind the prescription counter. The clerk was not in sight, but when called by the plumber, answered faintly from behind the prescription counter. He had not finished dressing, but at the end of five minutes, another customer entered, he tapped with his foot on the floor, and the clerk, who had a faint voice, heard the other customer behind the counter. There a fearful sight was beheld. On the floor in front of a lounge lay Wehrung, his head hacked to pieces, and from a deep cut in his head the brain protruded. One of his hands was cut and pounded into the floor. The body was cut into a dozen places where the hatchet blade had entered his back. The walls and furniture were splattered with blood. The clerk then fled to the street, and the dying clerk placed upon the lounge, where restoratives were administered. His senses were not gone, and when questioned as to how he had received the cuts.

ANSWERED SLOWLY AND PAINFULLY. He had sat down on the lounge, when the sheriff, a third ward, assessor Tom Spillane, attorney M. Donahue, street commissioner, alderman first ward J. W. Everstine; second ward, James Button; third ward, William Bunyan; school commissioner at large, M. G. Spring.

Few Changes in Senate Committees Expected—Democratic Caucus.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—At no time within the memory of the oldest senator have there been so few changes to the executive committee of the Senate at the beginning of a congress as at present, or when changes were likely to be attended by so little friction. The first name on the list is that of Mr. Palmer, at the head of that of Mr. Padock.
