JAMESTOWN, N. D., May 5.-The first section of the Northern Pacific westbound limited passenger train, which carries first-class passengers, mail and baggage, collided this morning with freight No. 18, one mile and a half this side of Crystal Springs station, thirty-six miles west. The collision occurred in a bend, and the trains were almost upon each other before the dan-ger was discovered. The passenwas in charge of Conductor The freight conductor was Schehr. The firemen and engineers of both trains jumped. Engineer Bass, of the passenger, broke his back and died almost immediately. Fireman Keller, of the passenger, and Engineer Beall and Fireman Kellum, of the freight, escaped without serious injuries. The postal car jumped the track and was a complete wreck. Both clerks were badly injured. They had to be dug out of the debris. Chief Clerk Slatterly, who was appointed under Cleveland, had recently received notification of his removal and was on Both engines and the mail and baggage cars left the track and were badly demolished. $\bf A$ number of freight cars were entirely destroyed. Three cars were loaded Washington territory horses, which were killed outright, or shot to relieve their sufferings. This is

THE FIRST ACCIDENT of consequence which has happened on the Dakota division for some time. Engineer Bass, who was killed, lived here. He formerly worked for the Northwestern, and had been with the Northern Pacific four years. He was about thirty years old, and was engaged to be marned in about ten days to Miss Miller, who was greatly shocked at the receipt of the news of her lover's death, and is suffering from a hemorrhage as the result. Doubts of her recovery are entertained. When the news of the wreck reached here Supt. McCabe. with three surgeons and the wrecking car left for the scene of the collision. The second section of No. 1 was held here until 6 o'clock awaiting the clearing of the Misunderstanding of train orders by operators at Steele and the conductor and engineer of the freight

ERLANGER PROTESTS Against the American Style of Handling Railroads.

WASHINGTON, May 5.-Baron Erlanger, the great European financier and capitalist, is at Wormleys, accompanied by his son Frederic and Alfred Slidell, of New Orleans. The baron cosmopolitan, and proves it registering from London and Paris. The baron has about $15,000,000 invested in American roads, notably the Cinemnati Southern, Cincinnati & New Orleans and Texas & Pacific. Some of Orleans and Texas & Pacific. Some of these are very permanent investments, if the market value of the stock is any indication. The difference between the cost and selling value of the stock is one of the principal reasons which brought the baron on this his first visit to America. Erlanger isunable to understand, however, several peculiarities about the management of American roads. "Over here," he says, "the operating expenses eat up 70 per cent of of the revenues, while in Europe they are only 50 per cent, yet freight rates here are much higher. If the managers of the American railroads want foreign capital to further support their lines capital to further support their lines they must reform their methods. There is no good reason for bankruptey to be staring them in the face when times are good." The baron professes a strong admiration for Jay Gould, while holding in reserve his opinion of Mr. Gould's methods. He expresses his surprise at the fine equipment of American railroads and believes that the South now presents a fine field for railroad development.

Perrin Insists He Merely Wanted to Call Attention to an Injustice.

Indignant Citizens Get Excited and Attempt to Lynch Him.

President Carnot Makes a Ringing Speech on the Revolution.

PARIS, May 5 .- A man who gives the name of Perrin, and who says he is a marine storekeeper, fired a blank cartridge at President Carnot to-day when the latter was leaving the Elysee palace to attend the centenary celebration at Versailles. Perrin was promptly arrested. He was taken to a police station, where he made a statement concerning his act. He explained that he had no desire to kill the president; he merely wished to expose the fact that he (Perrin) was the victim of injustice. The crowd that had gathered in the neighborhood of the Elysee to witness the departure of the president became greatly excited and threatened to lynch the prisoner. The police, however, gathered in force and drove back the indignant citizens. Perrin complained that he had been unjustly punished by the governor of Martinique, and that he had appealed in vain. His family is in destitute circumstances. President Carnot and party proceeded through Chaville, where the president was ENTHUSIASTICALLY GREETED. Upon reaching Versailles the president inaugurated the memorial tablet affixed to the building in which the states general met 100 years ago to-day. The president and his escort then re-paired to the hall of mirrors in the palace, where there was a grand assemblage of deputies and senators. At the palace M. Leroyer delivered the address of welcome to the president. In the course of his speech he said: "Itis no longer humble deputies of the third estate, to whom even the privilege of standing upright was denied, but elected representatives of the nation. who, bowing before their freely-elected chief, pay tribute to the great dead to whom we owe our liberty. It becomes those old strugglers for liberty to remind us that the revolution bequeathed not only doctrines but lessons. If the revolution sinned by the AUDACITY OF ITS DREAMS, we sin by our want of self-abnegation by our incomplete knowledge of our duties, by hesitation as to our policy. If the revolution flew too high, we drag too low. The date 1889 invites us to realize a union of hearts in love for our country and its institutions." Leroyer concluded by asking President Carnot to raise his voice in order to guide Frenchmen in the direction of mutual concessions. President Carnot replied as follows: "With ardent hope for the future, I greet in the valace of the monarchy the representatives of a nation that is now in complete possession of herself; that is mistress of her destinies, and that is in full splendor and strength of liberty. The first thoughts of this solemn meeting turn to our fathers. That immortal generation of 1789, by dint of courage and many sacrifices, se cured for us benefits which we must bequeath to our sons as a most precious inheritance. Never, in our gratitude, can we equal the grandeaur of the ser vices rendered by our fathers to France and to the human race." In conclusion the president said: "The revolution was based upon founded modern society. After many cruel shocks France has finally broken with the personal power of one man, whatever title he may take. She now recognizes as sole sovereign the laws enacted by the representatives of the nation. Under the aegis of the republic, let us seek, in a spirit of mutual forbearance and concord, the irresistible strength of a united people, and thus enable France to maintain her post in the vanguard of nations. Vive la Re publique." The president's speech was received with fervent applause. At the conclusion of the address the presidential party proceeded to the Gallery of Battles, where they took luncheon. Afterwards they went to the park, where the president participated in the ceremonies attending the inauguration of the recently restored fountains. An immense throng was gathered in the park, and President Carnot received a most enthusiastic welcome. The weather was fine, and the spectacle presented was a brilliant one. At 6 o'clock President Carnot and his party started on their return to Paris, proceeding by way of Ville d'Avray, St. Cloud and the Bois de Bou-

THE BISHOP OF VERSAILLES, in an address to President Carnot, said that, though they had fallen victims in 1789, they had shared in the movement for reform. The clergy had never ceased to give proof of their readiness to sacrifice themselves for their country or their faith, and they still professed the same generous sentiments. He continued: "We never distinguish between the church and France in our affections or prayers. We hold it to be a Christian duty to salute with deference the representative of the national authority. We congratulate you upon your escape from the assassin. We rejoice that this tribute is paid to a man whose dignity of character commands the respect of all parties," In spite of heavy showers this evening there were crowds in the streets of Paris, viewing the illuminations. THE BANK ALL RIGHT. A Slight Run on the Anoka Na-

The slight run of yesterday took about $20,000 to satisfy demands, and it will probably be continued to a small extent to-morrow, but as the bank has between $80,000 and $100,000 cash on hand, and business men depositing instead of checking out, there is no possibility that its resources will be affected. The statement of the Pioneer Press that Pratt had plundered the Anoka National bank is false in every particular, as he has never had any connection whatever with it; neither have the officials ever left the legitimate banking business to indulge in wheat or other speculations Cashier Guderian said to-day tha the bank has cash enough on chand to meet all calls, and has been offered any amount of outside financial aid Any rerious results are not for a mo ment to be thought of.

WHERE IS CRONIN?

Well-Known Chicago Doctor

Mysteriously Disappears. CHICAGO, May 5 .- Dr. P. H. Cronin, a local physician somewhat widely known among members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and other Irish so cieties, disappeared last night in a mysterious manner. His friends express the belief that he has been foully dealt with. A stranger took the doctor off last night, it is related, ostensibly to attend an injured man in Lakeview. Since then Cronin has not been seen, and inquiry fails to bring to light any and inquiry fails to bring to light any injured man as such described. To-day a trunk was found on the prairie near Lakeview containing a mass of bloody cotton similar to that Dr. Cronin carried in his surgeon's case, and some hair, said to resemble in color the doctor's locks. A two-column interview with Dr. Cronin, in printed form, prepared by himself, was given to the newspapers to-night by his friends. It relates various circumstances purporting to show that a conspiracy of some sort existed to injure Cronin in reputation or person.

St. Joseph, May 5.—Sowders and Crowell made a pitchers' battle of the game to-day, and Carroll's three-bagger and Ardner's home run were the only ong hits made. The support of Sowders, barring Tredway, was excellent, while at times the support of Crowell was wretched. St. Joseph was first at bat and sent but three men to the plate in the first inning. Kreig got first on balls in the second, but Werrick's work at short right field cut off prospective hits by Smith and Mahoney, and no runs resulted. In the third Whitney's first on balls, Arkwright's hit by pitcher and Curtis' four bad balls filled the bases, with two men out. Ardner made a desperate effort, but flew out to Tredway. In the sixth, after Shellhasse had been retired at first on Pickett's assist of his hard-hit grounder, Curtis reached second on Tredway's must of his high fly, and Ardner hit over the lest-field fence for

A HOME RUN, and the first and last runs for St. Joe were scored, though Kreig got in two good singles the next two times at bat. For St. Paul Hawes began by an out at first on Crowell's assist of his slow grounder. Murphy had better luck, and on a slow throw by Whitney and a very close decision saved his life at first. He went to second on a passed ball, was advanced to third by Smith's fumble of Pickett's easy grounder, and scored when Ardner dropped the ball on Schellhasse's assist to cut off Pickett's attempted steal. Pickett started for third immediately after, but was too slow, and Tredway wound up the run-getting by striking though Carroll opened the second with a triple to center, nobody could hit hard enough to get him home. In the fifth Carroll opened by striking out, but the third strike was too hot for Schellhasse and when he gathered the ball up back by the grand stand CARROLL'S FAST RUNNING had carried him to second. Reilly's hit and Curtis' error took him across the plate and Reilly to second. Reilly went to third on Werrick's sacrifice fly to Mahoney and scored on Schellhasse's error on the throw-in. Broughton's double in the seventh and Murphy's single in the eighth, the former a scratch hit down the left foul line, were the only hits made by St. Paul after this inning. The fielding of the visitors, with the exception of Tredway, who made two exception of Tredway, who made two errors, was fine. The second base play of Ardner and the throwing of Schellhasse to second were the fielding features. It is the opinion of the local public that the St. Paul team is by far the strongest of the Western association seen here this season, including Omaha. The score: The score:

third consecutive time Kansas City administered a crushing defeat to the Browns to-day, winning the game in the ninth inning by pounding King for ten safe hits and eleven earned runs, breaking all the records of the game. NEW YORK, May 5.—The largest as semblage of people who have ever witnessed a game of base ball at Ridgewood park, L. I., went to the grounds to-day to witness the battle between the Brooklyn and Athletic teams. Before 4 o'clock every seat in the inclosure was occupied, and a wall of humanity began to form around the field. The crowd in center field was so dense that many of the spectators could not even see the players. The game was started and the crowd behaved well in spite of the absence of uniformed police. The Brooklyn team scored a run in the opening inning, and the Athletics scored one in the third. The score remained tied until the sixth inning, when the visiting players scored four runs. The Brooklyn players then began their half of the inning. As Foutz went to the bat the crowd in the center field began to close in. Several persons, including President Byrne, of the Brooklyn club, tried to keep the crowd back, but without avail. In a few minutes the whole field was a sea of humanity, and the players of both teams went to their dressing-rooms. No further effort was made to clear the field or continue the game. Some of the on-lookers claimed that Welch, the center fielder of the Athletics, called to them to close in and they did so. It is doubtful if there would have been any trouble if the home team had had the lead. Um-would bring the whole matter up before the next meeting of the American association. He claimed that the Athletic fielders incited the trouble. The attendance was 12.614. Score: Welch, m.... A B 26 5 8 3 16 10 0 Totals.

CINCINNATI, O., May 5.—The Cincinnatis won to-day's game from Louisville by their superior batting. Ehret was first pitted against the Reds and he was knocked out of the box. Hecker, who took his place, fared but little better. The fielding of Holliday and Mullane and the batting of Keenan and Baldwin were the features. A ground rule allowing but two bases was necessary on account of the big crowd in the field. CINCINNATI. AB R 1B S HP O A E

DID PORTER RUN AWAY

Gen. Butler Says the Admiral Didn't Fight Well at New Orleans.

In Fact, He Says He Rushed Pell Mell Down the River and Out to Sea.

Gen. Sherman Regrets the Revival of the Story Just at This Time.

The Ill-Feeling Between Butler and Porter Dates From 1864.

Special to the Globe.

Boston, May 5.—The Herald to-day prints an interview with Gen. Butler, in which he says Admiral Porter is the officer to whom he referred in his speech Wednesday night as running away at the battle of New Orleans. The general says: "At the time the forts were passed by Farragut, 1 was following him where I could see the whole proceedings. 1 was well up the river on my headquarters boat, the Saxon, watching the progress of the fight. Porter was in command of the mortar flottilla, and was ordered to bombard the water batteries below Fort Jackson after Farragut had passed up. Farragut got well by the forts about sunrise, and it was 7 o'clock or after, perhaps, when the incident connected with Porter took place. My army was nearly thirty miles down stream on transports, which were anchored at the head of the passes. About the time I mentioned my men on the transports saw Porter's whole fleet rushing DOWN THE RIVER PELL MELL, and out to sea. When Porter rushed by my troops he cried out: 'The rebels are coming down the river; get out of here as fast as you can.' He came back the next day. I did not know of this occurrence until several days afterward, at the time when Capt. Boggs, sent by Farragut, met me at the quarantine station." "Were the rebels coming down the river, as Porter stated?" "They couldn't come. The only thing they had was the ponderous dry dock Louisiana and the two steamers to tow her. The Louisiana never had ma-chinery in her, and could not even be used as a water battery."

"I cannot tell, except that it was reported that the enemy was transferring heavy guns from the fort to the Louisiana, and Porter conjectured that the Louisiana was coming down stream after them."

The ill-feeling between Butler and Porter dates from 1864, when Porter accused Butler of not supporting with his land forces Porter's naval operations against Fort Fisher.

SHERMAN WON'T TALK. NEW YORK, May 5.—Gen. W. T. Sher-man declined to express an opinion today in regard to the Porter-Butler con-troversy, but said: "I was not at New Orleans, and don't feel qualified to say anything on the subject. The gentlemen concerned are be men, and capable of looking out for themselves. Butler was a gallant soldier, and Porter was one of the hardest hitters in the navv. I regret the revival of camp-fire stories. It is not right, especially just at this centennial time. These things have been discussed often enough, and ought to be dropped."

PORTER ROASTS BUTLER.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Admiral Porter is inclined to look upon Gen. Butler's utterances as a huge joke. He was told the contents of the dispatches. "And so Gen. Butler has been saying things about me?" he said. "Well, what if he has? I shall not take any notice of it. He knows what I think of him. I have said time and again that he is a coward, and worse. Now I suppose he wants to get even with me in his old age. Let him talk. Nobody believes him." PORTER ROASTS BUTLER.

his old age. Let him talk. Nobody believes him."

"But he says you ran away."

"Does he? Well, let him say so. I have in my possession a letter written to me by Gideon Welles after the capture of the forts thanking me for my efforts, and saying that but for my exertions Admiral Farragut could not have captured New Orleans. I do not want any stronger praise than Secretary Welles gave me in that letter. People who run away do not get to the head of the navy. There were three officers who were censured by Farragut, two of them unjustly. The other one has never, to my knowledge, satisfactorily explained his conduct. I suppose Butler meant him, but you say he referred to me. Well, well, well. It does not trouble me one bit. People who believe what Butler says must set history aside, and I have not the slightest regard for their opinions."

PATRIOTIC AMERICANS Form an Organization Called the

George Washington Club. NEW YORK, May 5 .- A new national patriotic club was organized at 719 East Ninth street Saturday night. It is to be known as "The George Washington Club," and its constitution provides that "Every man, woman and child who subscribes to the doctrine of patriotism may become a member." Letters of encouragement were received from ex-President Cleveland, Senator Evarts, Senator Blair, John G. Whittier, George William Curtis and others. Ex-President Cleveland's letter advised the club to elect young men as its officers. The officers elected were these: President, Arthur D. Cochrane; vice presidents, Senator Blair, Admiral Porter, Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, Hon. Amos J. Cummings, Albert Griffen, of Kansas; George of Scott, of Brooklyn; Samuel D. Hastings, of Wisconsin, and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor; secretary, Frank Allaben; treasurer, Charles R. Binger. All the officers chosen have accepted their positions.
