NEARLY 20,000.

The School Superintendent's Report Shows Over 19,000 Pupils. The board of education met yesterday afternoon, with all the members present except Mr. Austin and Prof. Moore. The first communication of general im portance read was one from Health Officer Kirvington, embodying certain recommendations, based on Dr. R. O. Beard's investigation of the sanitary conditions of the schools. He recommended among other things the relief of certain overcrowded buildings; the of certain overcrowded bundings; the abandonment after the present term of the older portions of the Madison and Jackson schools and of the Lincoln school; substitution of steam-heating for furnaces in use in the Douglas and Humboldt schools; the equipment of all permanent buildings with the fan system of ventilation now in use in the High school and Marcy school; substitution of modern system of water closure of the state of the stat tets for older and poorer systems, and the removal of the yellow slat-blinds, which work a serious injury to the eye-sight of teachers and pupils. Supt. Bradley, in his annual report some important facts and recommendations. The number of pupils admitted to the school in May was 196. The number previously was 196. The number previously admitted was 19.181, making the total 19.877, an increase of 1,428 over the same period last year. The average daily attendance in May was 14.340. The events of interest during the month were the concert by the pupils on the 14th inst., and the exhibit or drawing, carpentry, wood carving and penmanship on the 27th and 28th. The latter was in quantity and quality superior, in the superir-27th and 28th. The latter was in quantity and quality superior, in the superintendent's opinion, to last year, and the exhibit highly gratifying. The sewing attracted great attention, and was warmly indorsed by the ladies who first urged its introduction into the schools. Much time, Prof. Bradley reported, had been spent assigning teachers for next year, and he felt confident of many valuable accessions to the ranks. Without making any recommendations Prof. out making any recommendations Prof. Bradley expressed grave doubts of the value of teachers' contracts, and said many Eastern cities had discarded them and also the annual election of teachers The great desideration he considered was stability and whatever tended to produce restlessness or expectation of frequent change worked harm. The committee on rules and the superintendent were instructed to define the boundaries of the various school districts and report the same to the July meeting of the board. The secretary was directed to have the annual report of the board prepared and ready for submission at the regular July meeting. This action was taken to bring the insubmission at the regular July meeting. This action was taken to bring the information regarding attendance before the state board of tax levy early in its session. The resignations of Edith I. Stewart, of the Bremer school, and Mattie P. Geer, of the Douglass school, were received and accepted. Miss Geer resigned because of ill-health.

The board heard arguments from citizens of Camden Place as to the proper location of the northern boundary

The representative of the Sturtevant heating and ventilating system was present, and explained the system. It will be tried in the Madison building providing the company furnishes a bond of indemnity to the board in ease of its failure.

The board went into executive session and advanted the list of tenchors for sion and adopted the list of teachers for next year, but on request of the super-intendent, declined to give them out for publication until the schools close. There are 505 of them against 444 at the close of the last school year.

A TRAIN LOAD NEXT.

An Eighth Ward Builder Has Wagon Loads of Lumber Stolen. A Paptst, who is putting up a number of dwellings on Grand avenue and East Thirty-fourth street, has been annoyed and put to serious loss by the depredations of lumber thieves, who have busied themselves with night visits to his piles of lumber, and carrying off wagon loads. Mr. Papst's attention was called to the mysterious disappearance of lumber by his foreman, and reported to police headquarters through a neighbor, and asked for protection, but was informed that none could be furnished him. Last Friday another load of lumber disappeared, and was traced by Mr. Papst and his foreman to a hollow at the foot of a hill a block away, where it had been piled and an attempt made to secrete it by covering it with hazel brush. Mr. Papst reported this loss, and asked that he be furnished an officer to watch the hill and nab whoever came to cart it off, but it could not be done. Then Mr. Papst hired a watchman, and yesterday morning the young man, while lying low behind a pile of wood, armed with a big revolver, saw a fellow drive up a big revolver, saw a fellow drive up and deliberately load his wagon with Mr. Papst's A I lath. When he had se-cured a load the watchman stepped out and parleyed with the thief, who sur-rendered and begged to be let go. The

At 6 o'clock the watchman whose name is Williams, returned and expected that his prisoner had gotten away from him. He told a fairy tale of the thief getting the drop on him, but Mr. Papst inclines to the theory that he was allowed to go free. Yesterday he again visited police headquarters, and had a lively time with Chief Brackett, who had no police protection to offer. who had no police protection to offer.

THAT MARKET

For the North Side Talked Over

A well-attended meeting of the North A well-attended meeting of the North Minneapolis Improvement association was held last night, the topic of principal importance under discussion being the proposed North Minneapolis market. Two propositions were laid before the meeting. Theodore Hays, representing his father, Lambert Hays, had to present the vacant block lying at the corner of Twelfth avenue north and Third street. This, he proposed, should be bought by a company that was to be formed from the association, he taking a large interest in the capital stock, and formed from the association, he taking a large interest in the capital stock, and pushing matters. He presented a suggestion of the building to be erected. This was to extend along Third street for 240 feet, and consist of two outer sheds thirty feet wide and two inner inclosed sheds forty feet wide. He wished a committee to be appointed to investigate the place and proposed that if the closed sheds forty feet wide. He wished a committee to be appointed to investigate the plans and proposed that if the value set on the property was not what the association deemed right, they might appoint a committee of three disinterested parties to appraise it.

When he had set forth the advantages of his project the association discussed the rights of Mr. Gale, and the rights he would not have in the spring of 1891. The sentiment was that North Minneapolis should have a market, and that when Mr. Gale's franchise was exhausted, their market would be the one and only licensed and central market of the city.

James W. Lawrence came in later in the evening and was called on to make his proposition. It is the old one of the Washington rink transformation. After elucidation on the adaptability of the building, the favorable location of the site for trade from all quarters, etc., he proposed that a company be made up from the association and North side people, that he and the other down town capitalists would take a large amount of the stock, and that in less than a week the proposed transformation could be made and the market opened. He also offered to choose a committee with the association to appraise the property.

THE OUTPUT REDUCED, But Still Exceeds 100,000 Barrels per Week.

The Northwestern Miller in its issue of to-day will say: "The flour output was pared down somewhat last week, but still exceeded 100,000 barrels. The fourteen mills in operation, to varying degrees, produced an aggregate of 105, 000 barrels—averaging 17,500 barrels daily—against 113,700 barrels the week before, and 162,000 barrels for the corressponding time in 1888. Another falling off will probably occur in the output the current week. There were thirteen mills grinding to-day, but two of the number are to stop to-night, thereby taking off 2,500 barrels per twenty-four hours, while several more will observe decoration day. Those running to-day were producing at the rate of about 15,500 bbls. daily. The flour trade continues very dull, the demand being rather more restricted, with prices about 10c lower. About everybody is getting some orders, but they are usually small in size and come from a wild range of territory. Most of the mills run until they get out of orders, then shut down for a few days to accumulate enough for a few days to accumulate enough for a short run, and again start up, thus being almost constantly up and down in their operations. Several firms which have had moderate quantities of flour stored here have been shipping more or less of it lately, and there is now left about 80,000 bbls., almost all of which is patent. The direct exports of the week were 36,730 bbls., against 35,170 for the preceding week. degrees, produced an aggregate of 105,-AMUSEMENTS.

THE CHILLED FLOWERS

And Their Needs, and the Culture Requisite for the Plants. pecial to the Globe.
FOUNTAIN, Minn., May 27.—The rains have been falling at intervals, and mostly at night, for the past two weeks, which has made it very fine for the flower gardens and transplanting or setting out of the new plants that have been purchased, and particularly for

been purchased, and particularly for new shrubbery.

Vegetation is said to be farther advanced than usual the present season, but on Tuesday night a hard frost occurred and laid many tender plants low. One woman had planted a plat of ground with extra early potatoes and they had grown into the budding, or rather were well budded to bloom, but the frost prostrated them and blighted her prospects of ready money in the near future. Alt the gardens suffered the loss of tomatoes and some other garden products that are rather tender. In the flower garden there were many plants destroyed that promised well on den products that are rather tender. In the flower garden there were many plants destroyed that promised well on Tuesday morning.

Many fields of corn which had got above the ground were touched in a greater or less degree. Grapevines that were budded suffered badly. Trees that had been set out for shade were completely robbed of every green leaf, and left very desolate-looking. Altogether the frost was rather hard on nature and pinching cold on humanity, where the house had gone through the spring cleaning and the stoves were in their summer quarters and the rooms could not be warmed. could not be warmed.

The first three days of last week will remain in the memory of many as the coldest of this spring, so far; and yet with the cold winds and rain, and frost, the first condensate whether her could represent the cold winds and rain. the few gardens that had early flower-ing plants showed up bright, and very pleasing to look upon, and almost made one forget to shiver in the chill and one forget to shiver in the chill and damp air that was abroad.

Not until Thursday did the sun shine with any apparent and genial warmth, nor was it possible for a woman thin in flesh to be out in the garden long enough to take proper care of plants they needed to be cared for just then, so that had to be left to the tender mercies of wind and cold weather, which was not inspiring and hopeful of future brightness and beauty. Alas and alas! The cold never killed one weed or injured a dandelion blossom, neither did it seem to prevent their growth or injurk their seeding qualities in the least, so far as I can discover.

There are people who will look upon the flowers of your garden and beg plants of you and feel agrieved and mortally offended if you decline to share with them, and so long as you have one left they will want it; and to such as want flowers, is it not better to putchase where they are kept for sale? Please, my lady readers, do not go begging flowers, roots and bulbs unless you can give something of the kind of equal value. Purchase your own, a few at a time if your purse is a shallow one—like my own, for instance—then you will feel quite independent.

You would not go to any lady and ask her to give you her best dress or her bonnet, or wearing apparel, yet you want that which she has paid her money for, and between her flowers and her asking for your dress or bonnet to wear, there is no difference at all. If you can make an equal exchange with her, make it; but do not make a beggar of yourself. You may have flowers from bulbs before the frost has entirely left the ground, and from other bulbs until the annuals come on the scene to make the garden beautiful from early spring until the late fall or the beginning of winter, and they year around, too. This is easily done, but it takes time uniess you have a full purse to commence at once, or can exercise self-denial and use the money that was to purchase a new fall done, but it takes time unless you have a full purse to commence at once, or can exercise self-denial and use the money that was to purchase a new fall or winter dress to purchase flowers with and get bulbs to bloom early and later on, for they are the only early blooming plants that we have, and they are sold very cheap, too, so that a few dollars go a long way toward making "a crack garden of flowers," as a little boy of this town calls my garden. There will be more pleasure and enjoyment of the flowers, as well as a sense of independence that they were bought and paid for, and not begged.

LOCAL MENTION. THE BOOM.

For Sale-Kampeska Dock Property. The reason the Watertown b going to be more lasting than at Ashland, Wis., where the bubble collapsed soon atter the boys got options on everything up there, is plain. For instance, dockage on Kampeska lake is cheaper than at Lake Superior ports. The minthan at Lake Superior ports. The mineral resources are undeveloped and the forests untouched. Jim Hill has not yet put a line of steamers on Kampeska's raging main, but it is rumored that an elevated railway will encircle its rockbound coast. Fishing is said to be good, sardines and suckers prevailing, and you can fish before June 1. Freight rates to the headwaters of Big Sloux creek may be had the same as at Mississippi, Missouri river or Rocky mountain points. For a bargain address A Z 947, Globe, Minneapolis.
