Result of the Minneapolis and St. Joseph's Slugging Match.

Several Well-Contested Association and League

Short Horses Take the Money in Very Slow Time on Fair Tracks.

Minneapolis won another game yes-terday, and worked up the line to fourth place. The sun shone brightly all fore-noon, but after dinner the clouds began to pile up, so that when 4 o'clock came around it looked very much like rain. In consequence the audience at Athletic park which witnessed the ball game between the local artists and the malasmall one, in comparison with the previous ones. Still, the bleachers were full, and the grand stand presented quite a respectable appearance, and John Barnes, of St. Paul, was heard to sigh and whisper: "Would my crowds were as large." rial gentlemen from St. Joe was a rather were as large."

Morrison was in the box for Minneapolis, and long, lank Jantzen stood behind the bat and caught him. Dugdale was on the score card to catch, but owing to some misunderstanding he had gone and had the barber run the clippers over the foliage on his face, and when the game began he showed up in one of the boxes with his best girl and her younger sister. Little Knell and the gentlemanly Frenchman with an Irish name, Mahaney, and the accent Mah, started the game as St.

on the Mah, started the game as St. Joe's battery.

Minneapolis proved an easy mark in the first inning. Minnehan flew out to Kreiz, and Miller and West were retired in a pretty double play by Cartwright and Knell. But St. Joe came to bat and knocked out two runs, much to the astonishment of the locals, who allowed them to do it and aided them in avery possible way by tendering them lowed them to do it and aided them in every possible way by tendering them three errors, a wild pitch and two bases on balls. The boys had all been out fishing the day before, and when they saw the two runs and the many errors scored against them, they were very much afraid that Manager Morton would sit down on any more event. much afraid that Manager Morton would sit down on any more excursions to the lakes. Morton was sitting up in one of the boxes, and seemed to read their thoughts, as, after expectorating freely on his own shoes, he exploded with: "You betcher life you won't go fishing again." They all braced up when they came to bat, though. Reddy Hanrahan hit an easy recording to MyCycy on third but he you won't go fishing again." They all braced up when they came to bat, though. Reddy Hanrahan hit an easy grounder to McVey on third, but he monkeyed with it so long that Reddy got to first. Then he stole second, and came home on a wild pitch. Hengle and Foster were allowed to take bases on bad balls. Turner and Morrison followed, and very kindly allowed. Knell came home on a wild pitch. Hengle and Foster were allowed to take bases on bad balls. Turner and Morrison followed, and very kindly allowed Knell to fan them out. But then Jantzen came to bat, and, after striking wildly and fiercely at two balls, he stopped long enough to give Hengle and Foster the wink, and then sent the ball sailing over the left field fence. The ovation he received when he returned from his trip around the diamond was a caution to weak lungs and diphtheritic throats. One gentleman kindly volunteered to lend him his coat, while a more enthusiastic crank yelled out hysterically: "Here, take my shirt; I've got another in the wash." To top off that inning Minnehan made a safe hit, and Joe Miller brought him in with a home run over the left field fence.

Their exultation did not last very long, however, as the Missouri people when they came to bat knocked out ix more runs. It was going to be a slugging game, and no doubt about it. Three singles, a home run by Knell and a two-bagger by "Old Reliable" Bill Kreig, were made off Morrison that inning, and it made him look very sick indeed. When Bill Kreig came to bat everybody was betting that he would strike out, as they were onto Bill from last year, when he made ex-Manager Gooding's life miscrable; but they got left, as the two-base hit testifies. If they had bet that Foster, the phenomenon whom Mutrie, of New York, kept sitting on the bench for two years, would fan out, they would have been almost sure of winning their money, as there is no man in the country outside of a lightning-rod agent who can converse so fluently with space as can Foster. He made a long single, though, yesterday, which startled even himself. Out in the field, however, he tumbled about just as artisfically as ever, and aided very material'y in fattening up the visitors' score by letting in two runs in the second inning. But that can all be forgiven now, as Minneapolis won the ond inning. But that can all be for-given now, as Minneapolis won the game, and he broke his record by mak-

In the fourth inning Knell thought he was being hit too hard, so he was re-placed by Crowell, who pitched the re-mainder of the game. He might as well have stayed in, however, as the locals have stayed in, however, as the locals went at Croweil tooth and nail and pounded him for thirteen hits and nine runs. Mahaney took his place.. Schell-hasse came in from right field to catch, and Morrison, of course, had to make his customary home run and let people know he was in the game. In the eighth inning, with two men on bases, his club came in contact with the sphere, and the consequence was that the sphere went over dence was that the sphere went over the fence, and three men went around the bases and cut a notch in the home plate. Several gentlemen in the audi-ence threw dollars at Morrison, not

MINNEAPOLIS.

THE ROCHESTER HORROR. Sensational Reports Emanate From Minneapolis Concerning George W. Knettle's Death.

The impression strongly prevails that the alleged killing of Taylor Combs, the colored man, by the attendants Peterson and Beckman, at the Rochester hospital for the insane is not the only instance of brutal treatment that has resulted in the death of patients, and a number of sensational statements have been made by patients who have been released from the asylum. George S. Hazeltine, of Minneapolis, once editor of the Penny Herald, who has been confined at the asylum, asserts that George W. Knettle, of Minneapolis, received treatment from which he died, and intimates that Al Hunter, also of Minneapolis, and two other patients, met a similar fate. He has offered no proof to substantiate his statements, and they are naturally received with considerable allowance. for the insane is not the only in-

What would seem to be corroborative evidence of some weight is the statement of J. D. Wishart, a Minneapolis printer who has recently been confined at Rochester as an inebriate. He does not claim to have been a witness, but says it was currently reported and understood by both employes and patients that Combs, the colored man, and George W. Knettle, of Minneapolis, were killed. The fact that he made his statement prior to the recent revelations, and that it tallies with the description of young Date as to how Combs met his death seems to be of some importance. The report that Knettle was killed has created a great sensation in Minneapolis, where he lived. Knettle was employed as a hardware clerk for twelve years by the firm of Janney, Semple & Co. He became blind and finally placed in charge of a confectionery and fruit stand at 615 Nicollet avenue. Financial worry and his affliction preyed upon his mind, and he began to show indications of insanity in a mild form. His relatives caused him to be sent to Rochester, where he grew rapidly worse, and finally died from "chronic brain disease," according to the coroner's death certificate. His wife was with him at the asylum for three days prior to his death. She says she received no intimation that he had been cruelly treated. He had a number of bruises upon his body, but it was explained to her that it had been found necessary to take his cane from him, and that in his blindness he had received several severe falls. She does not believe the statements that he was killed, and denies that he told her he had been kicked to death, as Wishart states was commonly reported at the asylum. There are other rumors and statements more or less authentic flying about, but until there is an investigation it will not be known how much credence should be given them.

THE CONDUIT SYSTEM.

Discussed by the Board of Trade at Its Monthly Meeting. The board of trade discussed the conduit system of Minneapolis as a principal topic yesterday morning at its regular monthly meeting. C. J. Buell, the redoubtable labor advocate and single tax man, a few weeks ago introduced a resolution to the effect that there should be one conduit system in the city, and that the board of trade recommend that the city construct that system and rent space for wires at so reasonable a rate that all companies would put their wires into them. J. N. Nind, chairman of the committee to which the resolutions were referred, said that there had not been a quorum of that committee, but three of the members had met and they would recommend that the resolutions be adopted. A. B. Barton was violently opposed to the recommendation of any such resolutions. He knew a tittle about electrical engineering himself and thought the board should be very slow about overturning all that the powers at the city hall had been doing in the past six months. It was a big question and he hadn't looked for it to come up. He thought it only just that all interested parties should be present when the vote was made. Mr. Buell moved that the resolutions be adopted, "so as to bring them under discussion," he said, and then he discussed them at length. The city council had already granted fanchises to three companies who would tear up the streets, and following the principles they had adopted, there was no limit to the number of times that the new companies would be blocking the streets, putting down their lines. He said there were a number of companies that objected to putting their wires into the Dorsett conduits. The city should build one tunnel below the main streets connecting with each building by means of branches through their basements. This, he calculated, would cost $20,000 a mile. J. M. Barlett sprang to his feet with the remark: "I am one of those who are willing to have the city streets torn up whenever a new company wants to put wires down. It is no detritax man, a few weeks ago introduced a resolution to the effect that there should am one of those who are willing to have the city streets torn up whenever a new company wants to put wires down. It is no detriment to the city. It shows progress; shows that we are doing something and there is plenty of room on the other streets to drive along. Besides every time the streets are torn up it gives laboring men work. I am surprised to hear a labor advocate such a monopoly as the city would make of such a conduit system. Every company knows best how to put in its own wires, and should have free permission to do it.

to do it.

H. A. Towne sided with Buell and said that all the cities of the old world were putting all their water mains and sewers and wires into one tunnel, and that it was time the American cities followed their example.

their example.

J. B. Bassett was not exactly prenor was he ready to vote against it, as he moved to have the question laid over for one month, and it was so disposed of. Capt. Reno read a communication from Thomas Lincoln Cassey, brigadier from Thomas Lincoln Cassey, brigadier general chief of engineers, relative to improving the river between Minneapolis and St. Paul for navigation. The captain deduced from the communication and old records that there would be $1,000,000 to be expended on the river between these two cities by July, 1800.

Sioux City.

Special to the Globe.
OWATONNA, Minn., June 3.—This afternoon while John Rasmusson and Hans Clausen were fishing in Straight river they found the body of Mathias Graif floating in the river about a mile and a half south of town. They pulled the body out of the water and laid it the body out of the water and laid it across their boat, and gave the alarm. His coat and cap were found on the bank, and a letter written in German was found in his pocket, stating that in this way he could relieve himself of his trouble the easiest. The coroner, J. H. Adair, appeared, and after examining the body, decided that no inquest was necessary. The deceased was one of the oldest settlers in this county, being about seventy years old. He leaves a large family of children, all grown except two.

WHISKY AND WOE. Andrew Anderson Drowns Himself at Fargo.

Special to the Globe.

FARGO, Dak., June 3.—J. G. Rice, while boat riding on the river this afternoon, noticed a man's coat sticking out of the water. Attempting to raise it with an oar, he brought to the surface the body of Andrew Anderson, a resthe body of Andrew Anderson, a restaurant keeper on Lower Front street. The water in which the body was found was not over two feet deep. Anderson was a Swede and had been in the city twelve years. He was unmarried. He has been on a spree for the past few days, and was last seen about 1 o'clock this afternoon. No marks of violence could be discerned upon the body. The theory is suicide while in a despondent mood.

BLOOD ON THE BRIDGE.

Another Tragedy Added to Sioux City's List. SIOUX CITY, Io., June 3.—The new pontoon bridge has been the scene of nother tragedy. This morning John Milligan came up from the river and in-formed Officer Barton that his partner, formed Officer Barton that his partner, named Dan Harrington, was being murdered on the bridge. The officer, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Curtis, hastened to the bridge, where they saw three men running to the Nebraska shore. Harrington was not in sight. Mulligan went over to Covington some time later in search of Harrington, but he could not be found. On the bridge, just where Mulligan says he and Harrington were attacked by the men, blood was found. It was fresh blood, and there was considerable of it. Mulligan says that he and Harrington were coming over from Covington; that they had a gallon of whisky. When on the bridge they were attacked by three men. Harrington was knocked down, but Mulligan made his escape. At a late hour this afternoon Harrington was found in a house in Stanton, on the Nebraska side. He is severely injured and cannot live. The officers cannot learn the names of the assaulting parties. assaulting parties.

ROBBED HIS NEIGHBORS. Questionable Enterprise of a Manitoba Farmer.

WINNIPEG, June 3.—For three years past the settlers on Cypress river have been the victims of numerous depreda-tions by unknown parties. It was thought by some that the crimes were the work of persons residing south of the boundary, but recent investigations by a Winnipeg detective have traced the various depredations to a well-to-do farmer residing in the settlement named Little. The culprit is charged with arson, inciting to arson, destroying cattle and horses and attempted murder. A warrant has been issued for his arrest, but he cannot be found, though he is supposed to be in hiding in the neighborhood. the boundary, but recent investig

LATPLE FALLS SCHOOLS. The Old Corps of Teachers to Be Retained.

The board of education has employed the same corps of teachers for the ensuing year, with the addition of Miss Floy Corbin, a re-cent graduate of the St. Cloud Normal school. The contract for erecting a two-room addition to the high school building has been let, which will make room for 400 pupils. Albert Bullow's ninety days expires next Saturday, by which time Gov. Merriam will set the day for his execution.

IN THE STORM CENTER. Unfortunate Position of a Little Falls Residence. Special to the Globe.

LITTLE FALLS, June 3.-A singular fatality seems to attach to D. M. Brooks' premises, in this city. On Decoration day a small cyclone smashed his covered carriage, and Saturday last another discarriage, and Saturday last another dis-turbance of the same character took place, demolishing a shed and scatter-ing the lumber in all directions. His residence seems to be in the cyclone storm center, as all of these disturb-ances start from the same place and travel in the same direction. A portion of one of his stacks of hay was taken several hundred feet into the air.

Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. special to the Globe.

ST. CLOUD, June 3.-All day a large force of men have been at work dec-orating the business houses on St. Ger-main and Fifth avenue, with bunting, main and Fifth avenue, with bunting, national colors and evergreens, in anticipation of the thirty-seventh annual session of the Grand Lodge of the L.O.O.F. of Minnesota, which will convene here to-morrow morning at 8:30, at the opera house. The grand lodge was met this morning at St. Paul by a committee from the local lodge, who returned with the grand lodge in an elegant special train chartered for the delegates, which left St. Paul at 7:45 via the Manitoba. It was 11 o'clock when the special train bearing the delegates of the grand lodge arrived, an hour late. All this long hour the large crowd patiently waited to welcome the visitors to the city. The delegates were met by the local lodge, and forming a procession, marched through the streets, headed by a band. St. Germain street never looked lovelier than it did to-night. Bright electric lights shone through evergreen trees on both sides, while above and on the fronts of business houses hung streamers of bunting tastefully looped. On Fifth avenue, at the intersection of St. Germain street, hung an immense flag, descending to within a man's height from the ground, and on the fringe on the bottom it bore the words. "Welcome Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F." Between 400 and 500 delegates are here.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only suce way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."
