

MINNEAPOLIS.

INDUSTRIOUS MAIDENS.

Their vocations are diverse. Short-hand and typewriting a success.

HE life of a young woman who is dependent upon her earnings is not always as pleasant as it may appear to those who are comfortably fixed with the necessities of life. Minneapolis, like all great cities, is the home of thousands of girls who toil for their bread. The feminine, if without money, is the most humble of the humblest, and she will usually follow whatever vocation may appear to her as the most profitable. Wash-tub operator, spittoon wresler or head chambermaid in a 28-cent boarding house. This work is not always a criterion of female poverty. Some maidens seek elevated positions, such as private secretary, book-keeper, cashier and stenographer. The latter has within the past few years ushered itself to a place of prominence with the fair thousands of girls who seek office work nowadays to know more or less about "then scratches" and typewriting for their own pleasure as man or lawyer knows that he can dictate in a few minutes what it would take him half a day to write. Then, the merchant can appreciate his business and think no more about his correspondence until the amanuensis comes in a few hours for his autograph.

THE BOSS IS OUT.

This is practically a great advantage to business men, though many would not be better off if the typewriter had never been born. Take, for instance, the man whose business is almost entirely devoted to inventing schemes to "do" an appreciating public. He has the utmost confidence in the ability and fidelity of his stenographer and dictates at his thrilling letters setting forth "fortunes that will be his" and "prosperity that is his." The first thing he discovers is that the letter written by Hajar Forens has been sent to Charles H. Johnson, a man whose business is almost entirely devoted to inventing schemes to "do" an appreciating public. City Hall, Department, Minneapolis, Jan. 2, 1890. My dear friend: I have been reading the letter you have written me and I am glad to hear that you are well. I have been thinking of you very much lately and I hope you are all well. I have been thinking of you very much lately and I hope you are all well. I have been thinking of you very much lately and I hope you are all well.

Continued out of a position. To most people shorthand seems hard to learn, but as a matter of fact, it is not. An ordinarily intelligent person in six months can learn to write from thirty-five to fifty words a minute. Some even go on to learn to write words, but not many can do that and read their notes without additional information from the dictator. Typewriting is also easy to learn, but a difficult often confronts people with big fingers. The key notes, or alphabet keys, are not so easy to strike together that one is likely to strike two and oftentimes three steps at the same time. This, of course, causes confusion. It must not be supposed, however, that this is the case with all our pretty female stenographers.

A CHURCH'S GREETING. The First Baptist Reception to Its New Pastor.

One of the most enjoyable receptions that could be imagined was given at the First Baptist church last evening, and the new pastor, Mr. J. W. H. Smith, was welcomed to his new home by a large number of friends. The reception was held in the vestry of the church, which was beautifully ornamented with palms, and the new pastor, Mr. J. W. H. A DREARY OUTLOOK. The S. P. C. A. Discuss the Condition of the Society.

A small but interested gathering of the members of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was held yesterday at the board of trade rooms, being the occasion of their annual meeting to elect officers. President Cheney called the meeting to order and Secretary Smith made a report for the last year. Many of the cases reported were found to be in a condition that demands the most prompt attention. The report was read and the members of the society were informed that the society has not been able to show their true financial condition. The Flour Outlook. The Northwestern Miller in its issue of to-day will say that the output of flour was again increased last week, being 143,710 barrels—averaging 23,951 barrels daily—against 135,780 barrels the week before, and $8,000 for the corresponding week in 1889. The amount of the manufacture will be smaller the week before, and $8,000 for the corresponding week in 1889. cutting of about 5,000 barrels. One of these, representing 1,000 barrels, will be stored in a mill, but the production for the week is not likely to exceed 100,000 barrels, if it reaches that figure. This curtailment is directly traceable to the fact that the mills are not running at full capacity. The production for the week is not likely to exceed 100,000 barrels, if it reaches that figure. IN MUNICIPAL COURT. Only Two Cases of Interest Before Judge Mahoney.

Isadore Monach, the ex-treasurer of the Turner Building association, who is alleged to be a defaulter to the amount of $2,000, was brought before Judge Mahoney on the charge of embezzlement. Through his attorney he offered to pay the amount of the bonds in the sum of $7,000 by the grand jury. His bonds were ex-acted by Ald. Jacob Stoff and Ralph Reese.

One of the most important events of the week was the reception which was given by Mrs. H. Alden Smith at her residence, 1403 Harmon place, yesterday afternoon. The house was beautifully decorated with palms of various kinds and the reception was a most successful one. The guests were received by Mrs. Alden Smith and her daughter, and the evening was spent in the most enjoyable manner.

Disease Demons. A very interesting lecture was delivered at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, in the Lyceum building, by W. McDonald, entitled "Disease Demons, Ancient and Modern." In opening the lecture the speaker referred to the ancient meaning of the word demon, which made no exceptions between good and bad demons. According to the ideas of some of the tribes of Tasmania, disease is caused by the entrance of a demon into the body, and the demons which followed the outbreak of disease in some cases were actually ascribed to the conflict between the soul of the person and the bad demon.

PLENTY OF MONEY NOW. The City Has No Trouble in Placing Its Bonds.

City Comptroller Calderwood and the committee on ways and means of the council yesterday opened the bids for $50,000 4 per cent bonds, and the bids were all in excess of the amount required. The bonds were sold at a premium of 100 to 105, and the interest was 4 per cent, payable semi-annually. PERSONAL AND SOCIAL. F. S. Staples is visiting in Stillwater. The First club dance at Malcolm's hall last evening was a success. Miss A. Hill and Mrs. A. H. Hill left for St. Louis yesterday.
