

THE DAILY GLOBE

PUBLISHED EVERY DAY AT THE GLOBE BUILDING, COR. FOURTH AND CEDAR STREETS BY LEWIS BAKER.

ST. PAUL GLOBE SUBSCRIPTION RATES. Daily (except Sundays) 10c. In Advance $2.00 (3 months) $5.00 (6 months) $10.00 (1 year) $18.00.

DAILY AND SUNDAY. In Advance $1.00 (3 months) $2.50 (6 months) $4.00 (1 year) $7.00.

RECEIVED COMMUNICATIONS. Address all letters and telegrams to THE GLOBE, St. Paul, Minn.

Eastern Advertising Office, Room 46 Tribune Building, New York.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER. WASHINGTON, D. C., March 28.—For Minnesota, North and South Dakota: Fair weather; northerly winds; low temperature.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS. The cyclone is now a remnant of the storm that swept over the West last week.

THE STORY OF A DAY. Serv's cabinet is recognized. Liverpool dockers begin work. Gen. Sticks is made sheriff of New York.

A WORD IN SEASON. The seedtime for our Minnesota farmers is at hand. What will the harvest be?

THEY EXHORE. The organs of the protected monopolies are howling over the tididity of their forces in the face of the growing demands of the farmers and a good many other people.

THE WYOMING FRAUD. The female suffrage agitators are getting a fine send-off from a Republican.

NOT SO MUCH IN. Gov. Hill was pretty near cornered in the reform election scheme.

STATE SENTIMENT. The following buildings are damaged west of Spring street.

DEATH AND DESOLATION. The devastated district looks like a ruined village.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

THE GREAT STORM.

Later details of the Louisville calamity are gratifying in that they show the loss of life to be much less than was at first estimated.

In free and enlightened country like ours, such skullidgery will not be tolerated. Party ties sit too lightly on the masses of the people to give assurance of the success of questionable methods.

CHARLES SIGNERS. The sensational developments in certain portions of the administration of New York city recall the fact that people sign indorsements, petitions and memorials in a very loose way.

THE HORRID THINGS. The Chicago papers tell of the horrors of the destruction of water of that city.

KANSAS CITY CLAIMS $5,000. Kansas City claims $5,000, and hopes to be in the census list soon after the Twins.

NATIONAL POLITICS. Preliminary to the Autopsy. Dallas Morning News.

ANTE-ELECTION BAIT. A leading St. Paulian promise of the Republicans in the last general election was a speedy adjustment of the tariff inequities.

A RIDICULOUS OUTCRY. The outcry that the Republicans are making against the change which the Democratic legislature of Ohio has made in congressional districts of that state is amusing.

DRIFTING ON THE REEF. If indications at the home of President McKinley are any way of the present administration is surely going to pieces on the pension rock.

POSSIBLE ONLY UNDER THIS ADMINISTRATION. It is charged that Postmaster General Wanamaker has been using postoffice inspectors as detectives in investigating the charges of Republican candidates for postmasterships.

THEIR LAST OPPORTUNITY. Another Democrat has been unseated from the United States house of representatives. Our Republican statesmen are keeping their fingers crossed.

PROFICIENT IN ONE LINE. When it comes to reforming the tariff the Republican administration may not keep its promise.

HAED ON THE ORGANS. St. Louis Dispatch. The Republican organ, which were demanding the abolition of the sugar duty are trying to adjust themselves to the McKinley bill.

A CIPHER IN IT. If Donnelly wrote Merriam's speech he certainly put a cipher in it. Has anybody found one?

OVERLY KIND. Senator Washburn is overly kind to the editors of the state. While he would not make an effort to secure the appointment of Maj. Newton to a consulate, he generally petitioned for by the publishers of the state.

TO DOWN MERRIAM. Those who are planning for McGill to be an anti-confederate governor will find themselves in the soup.

GROSSLY DECEIVED. We believe that if you have put your faith in Merriam and Baker and the Pioneer Press and the Minneapolis Journal, and the small-fry politicians all through the country, as exponents of Republican doctrine, you will find yourselves grossly deceived.

STOUT CITY PROPOSES TO HAVE A CORN PALACE. Stout City proposes to have a corn palace, and Yankton a cement palace at the Chicago fair.

THE ANTI-LOTTERY LEAGUE IN NEW ORLEANS. The anti-lottery league in New Orleans is composed of leading Democrats.

DEATH AND DESOLATION.

The devastated district looks like a ruined village. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—Everywhere in the track of the storm is wreck and ruin.

Colored Old Fellows, Although Injured, Get Out Safely. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—At Thirteenth and Walnut streets, Odd Fellows hall, a colored lodge, was in session.

AGONY ON EVERY FEATURE. The Bodies of Four Laundry Girls Found Together. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The scene at the ruins of Virgil S. Wright's cigar store at 1230 o'clock this afternoon, where the four bodies and mangled bodies of the Louisville clothing establishment of Levi, Newberger & Co., and a large number of others have lost their roofs.

POSSID INTO THE STREET. The car track and was splintered as a bit of railing was seen. Even the heavy iron boiler was blown clear across Walnut street, not more than forty feet from the four unscathed dwellings.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

WRECK AND RUIN.

The devastated district looks like a ruined village. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—Everywhere in the track of the storm is wreck and ruin.

Colored Old Fellows, Although Injured, Get Out Safely. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—At Thirteenth and Walnut streets, Odd Fellows hall, a colored lodge, was in session.

AGONY ON EVERY FEATURE. The Bodies of Four Laundry Girls Found Together. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The scene at the ruins of Virgil S. Wright's cigar store at 1230 o'clock this afternoon, where the four bodies and mangled bodies of the Louisville clothing establishment of Levi, Newberger & Co., and a large number of others have lost their roofs.

POSSID INTO THE STREET. The car track and was splintered as a bit of railing was seen. Even the heavy iron boiler was blown clear across Walnut street, not more than forty feet from the four unscathed dwellings.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

WRECK AND RUIN.

The devastated district looks like a ruined village. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—Everywhere in the track of the storm is wreck and ruin.

Colored Old Fellows, Although Injured, Get Out Safely. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—At Thirteenth and Walnut streets, Odd Fellows hall, a colored lodge, was in session.

AGONY ON EVERY FEATURE. The Bodies of Four Laundry Girls Found Together. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The scene at the ruins of Virgil S. Wright's cigar store at 1230 o'clock this afternoon, where the four bodies and mangled bodies of the Louisville clothing establishment of Levi, Newberger & Co., and a large number of others have lost their roofs.

POSSID INTO THE STREET. The car track and was splintered as a bit of railing was seen. Even the heavy iron boiler was blown clear across Walnut street, not more than forty feet from the four unscathed dwellings.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

WRECK AND RUIN.

The devastated district looks like a ruined village. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—Everywhere in the track of the storm is wreck and ruin.

Colored Old Fellows, Although Injured, Get Out Safely. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—At Thirteenth and Walnut streets, Odd Fellows hall, a colored lodge, was in session.

AGONY ON EVERY FEATURE. The Bodies of Four Laundry Girls Found Together. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The scene at the ruins of Virgil S. Wright's cigar store at 1230 o'clock this afternoon, where the four bodies and mangled bodies of the Louisville clothing establishment of Levi, Newberger & Co., and a large number of others have lost their roofs.

POSSID INTO THE STREET. The car track and was splintered as a bit of railing was seen. Even the heavy iron boiler was blown clear across Walnut street, not more than forty feet from the four unscathed dwellings.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS. The coroner and corps working amid awful confusion.

FIRE ACCENTUATES THE HORRORS OF THE WRECK. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The Carpenter-Anear iron works on Eighth street, a four-story building, was blown down.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

WRECK AND RUIN.

The devastated district looks like a ruined village. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—Everywhere in the track of the storm is wreck and ruin.

Colored Old Fellows, Although Injured, Get Out Safely. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—At Thirteenth and Walnut streets, Odd Fellows hall, a colored lodge, was in session.

AGONY ON EVERY FEATURE. The Bodies of Four Laundry Girls Found Together. Louisville, Ky., March 28.—The scene at the ruins of Virgil S. Wright's cigar store at 1230 o'clock this afternoon, where the four bodies and mangled bodies of the Louisville clothing establishment of Levi, Newberger & Co., and a large number of others have lost their roofs.

POSSID INTO THE STREET. The car track and was splintered as a bit of railing was seen. Even the heavy iron boiler was blown clear across Walnut street, not more than forty feet from the four unscathed dwellings.

THE FRISKING TORNADO. Took the middle of the Louisville City Railway company's building at Twelfth and Jefferson streets, southwest corner.

SHAPED LIKE A FUNNEL. The terrible storm cloud seen long before it struck the city.

CREMATED IN A CELLAR. Three men burned to a crisp in sight of hundreds.

HOAR OF THE CYCLONE. The waves dashed in fury upon the bank, threatening to carry everything away.