

THE DAILY GLOBE

PUBLISHED EVERY DAY AT THE GLOBE BUILDING, COR. FOURTH AND CEDAR STREETS.

BY LEWIS BAKER.

ST. PAUL GLOBE SUBSCRIPTION RATES. Daily (Not including Sunday) 17c. In advance $2.00 (3m. in advance) $5.00 6m. in advance $10.00 1 year in advance $18.00

WEEKLY ST. PAUL GLOBE. One Year, $18.00. Three Mo., $5.00. Rejected communications cannot be preserved. Address all letters and telegrams to THE GLOBE, St. Paul, Minn.

Eastern Advertising Office, Room 21 Tribune Building, New York. Consignments of the Globe always kept on hand for reference. Patrons and friends are cordially invited to visit our Eastern office while in New York.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Indications: For Minnesota, North and South Dakota: showers, preceded by fair in South Dakota and Southern Minnesota. For Wisconsin: stationary temperature in Eastern Minnesota; southerly winds; severe local storms to-morrow afternoon. In Southern Minnesota and Eastern and South Dakota: showers.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS.

Table with columns: Place of Observation, Barometer, Thermometer, Wind, Clouds, etc. Rows include Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis, etc.

LOCAL FORECAST.

For St. Paul, Minneapolis and vicinity: Fair weather, followed by showers; no decided change in temperature.

THE STORY OF A DAY.

Minnesota Prohibitionists nominate a state ticket. A general tie-up is threatened on the Illinois Central. Henry M. Stanley made a doctor of civil laws by Oxford. The house of representatives rejects the free coinage bill.

THE TWINE FACTORY.

Thanks to the persistent efforts of Messrs. HALL and LATHROP, of the Farmers' alliance, the twine factory in Illinois has been compelled to follow the instructions of the last legislature in making provision for the establishment of a twine factory at Stillwater. There have been peculiar forces at work in opposition to this movement, and it is a matter of common history, as well as of common history, to say that but for the individual efforts of Messrs. HALL and LATHROP, the whole matter would have been dropped long ago, and the public would have been deluded into the belief that it was utterly impracticable to use convict labor in twine manufacturing.

FAVOR DISARMAMENT.

The German emperor will probably secure the authority of the reichstag for the larger increase of the army as a peace offering, but it is constantly being pointed out that the German legislature is pushing through the growing demands for the army. The Catholic vote is indispensable to the passage of the measure, and the pope is committed to a policy of reduction or general disarmament. In the joint legislature of Austria and Hungary, for the first time in several years, there is opposition to the army bill. In Italy only personal influence saves the budget from assault. The people are doing their thinking on the army bill, and their protests find voices of growing distinctness. The young men are especially opposed to the vast paper army by reason of the demand it makes upon their time.

AN ABSURD TAX.

The revised tariff will not benefit the tin mines in the Black Hills if they should prove to be as productive as has been claimed. It is to be placed upon tin ore, although the Black Hills sandstone has been asked for 30 per cent. If a tin-plate factory is established somewhere in the East, it will pay its tin abroad if it can get it any cheaper than in this country. The state bill does not change the tin-plate schedule. It will tax the users of tin $16,000,000 a year. From a strictly industrial, home-market point of view, this tax of tin plate is wrong. It should be on the free list, with a view to encouraging the immense canning industries, and aiding them to compete in the South American and other foreign markets with the European producers of canned goods. It is an absurdity to tax the people of this country millions of dollars a year in order in some future era to induce capitalists ment. And that is to demand the removal of the present prison board and the appointment of a new one known to be friendly to the establishment of a twine factory at Stillwater. Enough has already been developed to make manifest the hostility of the present board to the whole business. Under the management of a hostile board the new scheme is sure to have had lines. It is a matter of primary importance to the farmers to state that this new industry should be launched under the most favorable circumstances. The governor ought to be impressed with this fact, and if he does not forthwith proceed to appoint a new board, then the farmers will be forced to elect a new governor.

PORTER IS SEEN.

The St. Paul gentlemen who are down at Washington trying to get an honest census return for Minnesota had a satisfactory interview with Superintendent PORTER yesterday. Our Washington dispatches bring the news that the St. Paul gentlemen are somewhat startled by the nature of the evidence laid before him relating to the Minneapolis returns, and has promised to accompany the St. Paul delegation when they visit the attorney general and assist in explaining matters to that official. While Mr. PORTER was exceedingly polite, and admitted that the evidence of fraud had made a decided impression upon him, still he insists that he must give his counterparty a fair trial. It is very hard to convince him as we have seen in the case of the district attorney. Still, as Mr. LINCOLN used to say, the only way to accomplish anything is to keep pegging away. The St. Paul gentlemen are staying in the city until they are qualified, and they know what they are there for.

DIGGING ITS OWN GRAVE.

The Republican party dug one-half of its grave yesterday, when the lower house of congress refused to pass the free silver coinage bill. The other half will be dug when the senate passes the bill. The Republican party is digging its own grave. The party is digging its own grave. The party is digging its own grave.

BECOMING DEMORALIZED.

In the debate before the Prohibition convention in Chicago, the head of the Republican anti-saloon committee, and Mr. MILLS, the Prohibition party man, the latter diagnosed the political situation as peculiarly favorable for the Prohibition party. The necessities of his argument were subserved in this, of course, but an impartial observer can see that the Republican party shows very pronounced symptoms of war in its members. As St. Paul, Minn., is the headquarters of the party, it is time for it to die, and its dissolution is already commenced.

AS WELL AS HE KNOWS.

There is a diversity of sentiment among the recently returned editors in regard to President Harrison's reception of them. Some of them feel that they were treated as very poor quality. He cannot, of course, have reference to the Shoreham. Perhaps there was something of disgust in the REED interdiction in the house restaurant.

TOO WELL ORGANIZED.

The people who think the trouble existing in St. Paul and Minneapolis on the census frauds will knock Gov. Merriam out of the gubernatorial race will find, when the returns come in, that they are badly mistaken. Gov. Merriam has the best organized political machine that ever existed in Minnesota. He has selected one leading, influential Republican in every county in the state to take charge of and look after his interests. These men have the governor's pocket money, and those who recall the campaign of two years ago know what that means.

WHERE TRUE PROTECTION IS.

Cleveland Plain Dealer. The people and all classes of people find red protection under the arms of Democracy, never in the treacherous promises of the Republican party, which falsely assumes to be the party of "protection."

EVERYTHING GIVES WAY TO THE TARIFF.

Mr. McKinley thinks we ought to raise camels in this country and stop the importation of 6,000,000 pounds of camel's hair per annum. Consequently he removes camel's hair from the free list and claps a duty of 77 per cent. on it. Providence and the laws of nature have to succumb to the omnipotence of the tariff.

WELL, RATHER!

"Have we Republican governments?" asks the Atlanta Journal. That's what we have, and it's a daisy, too. The Journal's query is a severe reflection on those able-bodied patriots, Quay, Reed, McKinley & Co.

SUPERVISORS OF FEDERAL ELECTIONS.

Some of the leaders in Quebec of the opposition to the imperial federation assert that the province will annex itself to the United States first. They have no doubts as to the latch string on this side being out.

THE GOOD WANAMAKER.

The good WANAMAKER changed the postoffice of Johnsonburg, Pa., to Quay, and the people would not have it. The fact is owned by a man in Palatka, Fla. During a successful raid upon his headquarters by Confederate troops during the war this relic was captured.

PROTECTING OSTRICH FEATHERS.

McKinley expects that the picturesque ostrich and the ungainly camel will become familiar features in the American landscape within a very few years. Verily, great are the blessings of high protection!

gray matter in them, particularly publishers, artists, editors, business men and murderers. As these classes get through with this head furniture there is no reason why they should not oblige the professor.

A LATE NEW ORLEANS PAPER.

The Press club in Chicago ought to love DEWEY for the $3,935 his address put into their treasury. He is a nice man, and talks charmingly, but he won't quite suit the West for president.

THE WHITE HOUSE LADY.

The White house lady is given the credit of accepting the cottage at Cape May without looking through the closets and cupboards. No statement is made as to what they contained.

THE OHO PROHIBITIONISTS.

The Ohio prohibitionists have taken strong ground against allowing anything but water at the world's fair. No one will be required to drink.

A GUY.

A guy took the prize at Harvard for a poetical translation of an ode of HO-ACE. There were sixteen male competitors.

QUESTIONS FOR DUNNELL.

Mr. Dunnell, you told your hearers at this place that you would vote for a reduction of taxation if elected. This was the one question put you by the voters for the McKinley bill. Do you suppose you would have got half the votes you did had you told that audience that you would vote for a reduction of taxation if elected?

RAILROADS IN CHINA.

It has been mentioned that the people of China were getting away from the conservatism and superstition that put them in the path of railway enterprise. The Chinese are staying in the empire, but a recent decree of the emperor directs work to be undertaken on a road 700 miles long. Aside from the absurd superstitions, there has been an apprehension that railways would lead to the danger of invasion. This is quite as rational as the objection to the British parliament to the building of a tunnel to connect with France. China finds need of railroads for military reasons, in view of the Siberian movement in Russia. Commercial considerations and a progressive spirit are also operative. This road runs 500 miles south of Peking to a port with large export trade, and will be followed by roads opening up the more important districts to trade and the foreigner.

A BOOMER BATTER.

The person who believes that an honest count of the citizens of Minneapolis could be made without a vigorous protest by the Russian Commercial representatives and a progressive spirit are also operative. This road runs 500 miles south of Peking to a port with large export trade, and will be followed by roads opening up the more important districts to trade and the foreigner.

A PARTY MAN FIRST.

Congressman Constock was severely roasted by the alliance congressional convention for his vote in favor of the McKinley bill. Doubtless Mr. Constock was one of the distinguished members of that section not so long ago as to be forgotten, is now in Mississippi, seeking a Republican nomination for congress, but he will only need a Republican caucus to remove him from the contest, whether he has many votes or not, but it was supposed that some of his efforts in Dakota would make it uncomfortable for him to be designated by those he had associated with.

NO NEW ROLE.

So far as any one knows there is no role that would be new to him. He has been on every side of every question that ever came before the people of this state in his political career. He is inconsistent. Two years ago, for instance, he was the nominee for governor on the labor ticket, and opened a vigorous warfare on the Republican party. But all of a sudden he abandoned his new party, gave up his nomination and took the stump for Gov. Merriam. This sudden and miraculous "flip" is supposed to have been occasioned by disinterested zeal for the welfare of the farmer.

AS WELL AS HE KNOWS.

There is a diversity of sentiment among the recently returned editors in regard to President Harrison's reception of them. Some of them feel that they were treated as very poor quality. He cannot, of course, have reference to the Shoreham. Perhaps there was something of disgust in the REED interdiction in the house restaurant.

DAUGHTERS OF BACHELORS.

There are several names presented in view of the Democratic state convention of North Dakota at Grand Forks, July 16, that have popular elements as candidates for governor. Among them are McCORMACK, of Grand Forks, and Judge ROSE, of Jamestown. There is excellent material for all the positions.

TOO WELL ORGANIZED.

The people who think the trouble existing in St. Paul and Minneapolis on the census frauds will knock Gov. Merriam out of the gubernatorial race will find, when the returns come in, that they are badly mistaken. Gov. Merriam has the best organized political machine that ever existed in Minnesota. He has selected one leading, influential Republican in every county in the state to take charge of and look after his interests. These men have the governor's pocket money, and those who recall the campaign of two years ago know what that means.

WOMEN OF THE WORLD.

Mrs. Barr writes all her novels with a typewriter. Mrs. James Brown-Potter does not like the Australian system of dramatic criticism. Mrs. Harrison likes "Little Annie Rooney." By her request the Marine band played "The Girl of the Year" at a walk. Republicans in Ohio are weary over "King" Bob Kennedy's proceedings. Mrs. Josephine C. Robertson, of Aurora, Ill., has had a husband's census enumerator. Her average was 262 names per day.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

WHY THEY DO IT.

Two women leaped over the backyard fence to the city of the silver moon. While each told the other, in confidence, the scandals she'd gathered around the town. For women must gossip, or they can't live. Their lives are secrets never made to keep. So they lean on the fence in the gloaming.

PERSONAL.

Princesses Maud and Victoria of Wales wear sailor hats of fine white straw, with narrow brim and blue band. The betrothal of Princess Victoria, sister of Emperor William, to Prince Adolf, of Schaumburg Lippe, is official. John Chavrus, a reformed cannibal from the Fiji islands, is lecturing in Georgia. He says he never did anything in his life that he regrets so keenly as the eating of his fellow-men.

PERSONAL.

Lady Florence Dixey is not a stranger to fame, and does not propose to be. In the things which she has promised to do in the near future is to appear in Hyde park riding astride her horse.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Alice Shaw has signed a contract to be the first woman to appear in the czar and nobles. The inference is that the czar has done so much whistling himself to keep up his courage that he has got tired and wishes to pay some one else to do it for him. The handsome American will do it most charmingly.

PERSONAL.

Herr Oskar Oehschlager, one of the most noted sportsmen in Europe, has died in Berlin. His horses contested in every European horse race, and his greatest achievements were in Germany. He was bold both on the turf and on cards, and after extraordinary success in both, his luck turned and he died a poor man at the age of fifty years.

PERSONAL.

James Wormley, whose name is perpetuated in the famous hotel in Washington, was a colored man and formerly a hackman. Making money at the business he was a very successful man, and he accumulated a lively fortune. Among his early business ventures was a saloon which has grown to the present hotel.

PERSONAL.

The complete name of Mary Anderson's husband is Antonio Fernando Rodriguez. He was a very successful man, and he accumulated a lively fortune. Among his early business ventures was a saloon which has grown to the present hotel.

PERSONAL.

It is not generally known that there are wagons manufactured in St. Louis that in any other city in the country. The entire South and Southwest are supplied with wagons manufactured at this point. In the line of factory wagons and carriages St. Louis manufactures beat the world, shipping even to Europe and Australia.

PERSONAL.

The cars on the Jungfrau railway have movable flaps, which may be extended by the guard until they nearly reach the summit. The flaps are made of the car becomes a kind of piston acting in the car as a cylinder, and the air acts as an automatic brake to check the speed of the descending air.

PERSONAL.

The man who is really anxious to do something for you is usually poor.—Aitchison Globe.

PERSONAL.

The return of Dick Croker is expected to silence all the other croakers.—Boston Herald.

PERSONAL.

"Who wrote the 'Story of a Hansom Cab'?" "I don't know. Some hack wrote it."—Munsey.

PERSONAL.

The reason most poets think to no purpose is that their thoughts are idyl thoughts.—Philadelphia Press.

PERSONAL.

Prof. Charles, in discussing a fire what is indispensable? Charles—Fire.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

PERSONAL.

To the hannel coil that is left over from last summer—"My goodness! How you have grown—small."—Washington Post.

PERSONAL.

At first thought one might suppose the bar association to be the proper body to issue liquor licenses.—Pittsburg Chronicle.

PERSONAL.

The organist of an up-town church has a new variety of choir whose members are so inexperienced that he calls them the IV green.—Elmira Gazette.

PERSONAL.

Competition between enterprise, and enterprise has induced a grocer to advertise "genuine horse-radish, fresh from the horse."—Binghamton Leader.

PERSONAL.

It is all up with the baby when he takes to cry at midnight. Perhaps it is necessary to state that it refers to the household in general.—Terre Haute Express.

PERSONAL.

Her Duel With the Doctor. Wiener Tagblatt.

An extraordinary duel is reported to have taken place in Vienna. A few days ago a girl, aged nineteen, challenged a young doctor, who had offended one of her friends and refused to apologize. He was challenged to a duel with two seconds, a student and an officer of Reserves, and when he ridiculed the idea the girl threatened to shoot him publicly. The challenge was accepted, and a meeting, with seconds and doctors, took place in a hired room for a dual combat. All the rules for a duel with swords were strictly observed. The doctor first acted on the defensive, but was soon obliged to fight on equal terms, and left off after the second round with a wound in the left side, which was declared not to be dangerous. The girl, a student in the law, is said to be a very beautiful girl, and has been treasurer of Cass county six years. She is an American-born citizen, and a life-long republican.

PERSONAL.

OHIO SICK OF REED. Dayton Times.

Speaker Reed has set enough precedents for the next house, which will be Democratic, to "fire" him bodily and quickly. He will probably not have more than 3,000 or 4,000 majority in the next house. He is a very poor man, and another is being erected by Clark & McCarthy, of Minneapolis, for a book store. Since the general programme of the assembly was made out, the county superintendents of schools of Southern Minnesota have made arrangements for a meeting at the assembly building on July 15. The teachers' retreat will be conducted three weeks from July 15. Rev. T. De Witt Talmage lectures on July 15, 16 and 17. The county superintendents of schools on the Sunday morning following.

PERSONAL.

DOUGLAS COUNTY FAIR RACES. A Heavy Truck Prevents Fast Time. Special to the Globe.

ATKINSON, Minn., June 25.—This was the first day of the Jungfrau railway. There was a large crowd in attendance. There were three races—running, 2:30 trot and 3:00 pace. For the running race there were five entries, it being won by Jesse Barr, owned by W. W. Parker, of Minot, N