

SAINT PAUL.

TERSELY TOLD.

There is scotch fever at 384 Aurora avenue. The cause of Sophy Johnson against Nicholas Cassen was yesterday dismissed.

The case of James D. Glass against Newton R. Frost is being tried before Judge Brill and a jury.

John Quinlan, a wife beater and drunkard, was sent out for thirty days yesterday by Judge Cory.

Judge Nelson, of the United States district court, has refused a new trial in the case of C. A. Cogge well against Conrad Bohm.

The jury rendered a verdict in favor of Patrick H. Thornton et al. in the personal injury case of John Fisher against them.

Albert Larson, employed by J. H. Nickel in operating a planing machine, was badly cut yesterday morning. He was attended by Dr. Donnan.

Edward Hoxten was yesterday examined and ordered sent to the insane asylum at Rochester. He was taken there on the evening train.

The cause of the St. Louis Elver Deles Improvement company against the C. N. Nelson Lumber company is still on trial before Judge Kern.

The cause of Carrie K. Johnson against the United States Fire Insurance company for reformation of an insurance policy is being heard before Judge Olin.

Marie Nelson and Gust Peterson were married in Judge Cory's chambers yesterday. The parties are the ones figuring in a bastardy case pending before the court.

Clara W. McHoste has commenced an action against William Hall and others, to quiet title to the undivided one-half of lot 4, block 4, of East and Morrison's addition.

His Honor Mayor Smith, who has been on a duck-hunting trip in the district west of Lake Park, Minn., arrived home yesterday, and spent the day at his office in the city hall.

In the cause of The Northern Pacific Live Company against the Union Live Company, funds in the hands of the Northwestern Telephone Exchange company have been garnished.

James Hogan appeared in the municipal court yesterday morning to answer to a charge of assault and battery. The charge was shown to be frivolous, and Hogan was discharged.

The first in the series of Home club lectures will be given at the People's church at 4 o'clock this afternoon by Dr. A. A. Wood. The subject will be "Hereditary Influences." All ladies are invited, and the lecture will be free.

James R. Roche, the respectable son of respectable parents, died in the county jail at 2 a. m. Wednesday morning. Roche was under arrest for larceny, and when confined in the jail to await trial on the charge he was suffering from alcoholic delirium.

Courland Babcock has commenced an action against Alfred J. Condit, Ambrose W. Brynes and their wives to foreclose a mortgage for $12,000 on an undivided third of the southeast quarter of section 7, township 20, range 23, in Ramsey county, Minn.

There will be a regular meeting of Acker post at their hall, corner Seventh and Wabasha, at 7:30 o'clock this evening; no muster. At 8 o'clock the business of the post will be done.

The doors will be opened, Gov. W. R. Marshall will read a paper on the battle of Nashville. Women's auxiliary corps, Sons of Veterans and all friends are invited.

The ladies of Epworth M. E. church will give a social entertainment and reception for Rev. A. A. Wood, who is here to hold a church for another year, at the church, corner Aurora avenue and Mackubin street, this evening at 7:30 o'clock. A literary and musical program has been arranged, and refreshments will be served. Everybody is cordially invited to be present.

An eight-year-old son of Christian Gruenwald, residing at 305 E. 7th street, was run over and badly injured on West Seventh street yesterday afternoon, by one of the Sulzhaner brewery drays. The boy was attempting to jump into the wagon, when he stumbled and fell under the wheels. He was taken home in the central patrol wagon.

Miss Winifred H. Carr, a young lady, denies that she is the teacher referred to in the charge made by Inspector Maxfield against Secretary White, of the school of education, for having completed the school of education referred to by the euphonious name of "Miss Girty." Miss Melvin has felt very much harassed since the charge was made by Inspector Maxfield, and for her peace of mind wishes to make a contradiction.

The report of the health department for the past month shows: Deaths, 229; births, 312; marriages, 154; zymotic diseases, 48; constitutional disease, 27; local, 13; developmental, 1; casualties, 10, including 3 in railroad accidents, 2 from street, 2 suicides and one from a falling back. Contagious cases reported, 64, of which appeared in houses having sanitary accommodations, 10 in well-ventilated residences. Rate, 10.12.

A great mass meeting will be held at the People's church at 10 o'clock next Sunday afternoon in the interest of the Evangelical Alliance. Rev. Dr. Frank Russell of New York, the field agent, will be present and make an address on the subject. The meeting will be held at 10 o'clock in the morning. Dr. Russell is a brilliant platform speaker, and as all the churches are interested in his work the audience will be unusually well crowded. Rev. Dr. A. H. Heath, president of the local alliance, will have charge of the services.

Slim Chances of Fusion. New York, Oct. 8.—Up to a late hour this evening the chances of a fusion ticket between the Republicans, counties and the so-called People's Municipal league on the city officers looked very slim. The night was spent in conference. At 12:30 o'clock in the morning the fusion conference adjourned until 10 a. m. without arranging any ticket. It was understood that the nomination for mayor would be offered to Gustave Schwab.

His Crime Found Him Out. LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 8.—Nathan Willett, a farmer living near Norfolk, has been arrested on a charge of murder, he having killed H. B. Woodward in Johnson county, Texas, seventeen years ago.

Peaches. This, the big week on Peaches, and the time for putting up a fusion ticket between the Republicans, counties and the so-called People's Municipal league on the city officers looked very slim. The night was spent in conference. At 12:30 o'clock in the morning the fusion conference adjourned until 10 a. m. without arranging any ticket. It was understood that the nomination for mayor would be offered to Gustave Schwab.

Use Pillsbury's Cash. Receives the highest award every where.

Furlong's, Eighth and Jackson. Best Potatoes, per bushel, 65 cents.

Adam Fetsch, 3d and Jackson. All varieties of Fine Cigars can be suited at Fetsch's. Box trade a specialty.

Furlong's, Eighth and Jackson. "Seal Brand" Java and Mocha Coffee (roasted), in 2-lb. cans, finest in the world, 50c lb.

7 Cor. Furniture Co., 184-186 W. 7th. Can save you 25 per cent on your stoves, Carpets, Stoves, Ranges, for cash or time.

Use Pillsbury's Cash. Receives the highest award every where.

Furlong's, Eighth and Jackson. O. B. Flour, per sack, $2.90.

Notice to Depositors. The quarterly interest term begins Oct. 1. Money deposited on or before Oct. 10 draws interest from Oct. 15, 1891, at 5 per cent per annum.

The Savings Bank of St. Paul, southwest corner of Jackson and Fifth streets. John S. Prince, president; Thos. A. Prendergast, vice president; Edward J. Meier, cashier. Capital and undivided profits, $120,000; deposits over one million dollars.

Masonic. A stated communication of Ancient Landmark Lodge No. 5, A. F. & A. M., will be held this evening.

Furlong's, Eighth and Jackson. P. B. Flour, 30c 60 lb. lower.

DISTRICTS IN DOUBT.

Republican Congressmen Are Shaking in Their Shoes Over Their Prospects.

Some Contrasts Not Flattering to Congressman S. P. Snider.

Why Solomon, the Unwise, Will Be Beaten in the Fifth District.

Several Minnesota Districts Ready for Political Somersaults.

Minnesota will be represented in the next congress by several Democrats.

This assertion is made advisedly. The state was so grossly misrepresented by the late legislation that, were no other factor at work, the change would be inevitable; but the five Republican congressmen having succeeded in obtaining re-nominations, it is as certain as fate itself that several of them will receive mandatory requests from the people to remain at home and allow their districts to be represented by men who will voice and vote the sentiments of their constituents. Never was it more apparent in the history of the state that Minnesota is for tariff reform and tariff reduction.

In this respect every one of the five congressmen has violated the trust reposed in him. Not only has he grossly misrepresented the people, but he has actually misrepresented his Republican constituency, which instructed him to vote for a revision of the tariff. His apology for the McKinley bill will meet the exigencies of the situation, for that bill, framed by Eastern manufacturers for the express purpose of levying a tax on the West, makes an average increase of about 60 per cent of the duties already in force. Never was Minnesota so stirred up over the matter of tariff taxation, and on that issue alone are several Republican congressmen doomed. But there are still other issues.

In the Fourth, the metropolitan district, which two years ago gave such a large Republican majority, Capt. S. P. Snider is doomed. Outside of his vote for the McKinley bill, which he can neither explain nor defend, he has been recognized as too narrow for this great constituency. Capt. Snider is "a good fellow," but his vast interests of this district demand a man of more ability and broader mind than Capt. Snider possesses. Ability is recognized nowhere more quickly than in the halls of congress, and ability and influence go hand in hand. St. Paul has suffered severely from the lack of ability as through his narrowness, but his narrowness in Twin City matters has lost him the confidence and esteem of even his political friends in this city. Hon. J. N. Castle presents a brilliant and striking contrast to the sorry figure cut in congress by Capt. Snider. Mr. Castle is brainy, gifted and broad-minded. He is an ideal candidate, and would make an ideal representative from the greatest congressional district in the nation. His talents and his oratory would make him at once conspicuous in congress, and would bring him an influence that would insure to the benefit of the Twin Cities. He would represent the entire district, as might be expected of a man who has been recognized by the independent voter will contrast him with Capt. Snider, and the result will be a vote for Castle. Picture, for instance, Capt. Snider and J. N. Castle in joint debate. The angels would weep at such a spectacle!

The Democratic prospect is not less bright in the Fifth district, once the banner Republican stronghold of the state. Hon. A. J. Whiteman has everything in his favor. He is a brilliant and aggressive campaigner, which he will close a winner. The spectacle of S. G. Comstock, who votes as a high platform, is a spectacle to be remembered. It is a spectacle to be remembered. It is a spectacle to be remembered.

Some Very Remarkable Cases of Recent Occurrence. St. Louis, Mo. Democrat.

St. Louis, Mo. Democrat. St. Louis, Mo. Democrat.

JESTING AT DISTRESS

Only a Few Celts Are Starving, Says Irish Secretary Balfour.

This Utterance Is Intended to Throw Voters Off the Scent.

British Ship Owners Tired of Being Dictated to by the Dockmen.

Italy's Prime Minister Claims That Irredentism Menaces the Dreibund.

London, Oct. 8.—Mr. Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, writes to the Central News as follows: "I have, of course, received endless reports and communications of all sorts regarding the potato crop in the West of Ireland. No positive or final conclusion can be formed until the potatoes are dug, toward the end of October, but all testimony of any value and which is not obviously untrue, indicates that the cry of general famine is wholly absurd. Although in some localities the failure is undoubtedly serious, the measures taken by the government will without question suffice to deal with any emergency which may be beyond the power of the ordinary poor law machinery to meet."

Mr. Balfour's statement regarding the potato crop is issued as the result of pressure from his friends, who desire to deal with any emergency which may be beyond the power of the ordinary poor law machinery to meet."

Mr. Balfour is expected to go into the matter more in detail in his forthcoming speeches. It may therefore be taken as a sign that the government officially rejects the idea that any distress exists, except such as can be relieved easily and by ordinary measures.

TOILERS ASK TOO MUCH. Union Dockmen in London to Be Locked Out.

London, Oct. 8.—In reference to the dispute between the Allan and Wilson-Hill Steamship companies and the dockers' union, Beckett Hill, of the Wilson-Hill line, says in an interview that his associates will not submit to a continuance of such moves, especially at a time when work is slack, as it is in the winter season. The ship owners' federation will at once open a register and a free labor agency, with a provision for a sick fund and other advantages. The union men will then be all locked out. Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

JESTING AT DISTRESS

Only a Few Celts Are Starving, Says Irish Secretary Balfour.

This Utterance Is Intended to Throw Voters Off the Scent.

British Ship Owners Tired of Being Dictated to by the Dockmen.

Italy's Prime Minister Claims That Irredentism Menaces the Dreibund.

London, Oct. 8.—Mr. Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, writes to the Central News as follows: "I have, of course, received endless reports and communications of all sorts regarding the potato crop in the West of Ireland. No positive or final conclusion can be formed until the potatoes are dug, toward the end of October, but all testimony of any value and which is not obviously untrue, indicates that the cry of general famine is wholly absurd. Although in some localities the failure is undoubtedly serious, the measures taken by the government will without question suffice to deal with any emergency which may be beyond the power of the ordinary poor law machinery to meet."

Mr. Balfour's statement regarding the potato crop is issued as the result of pressure from his friends, who desire to deal with any emergency which may be beyond the power of the ordinary poor law machinery to meet."

Mr. Balfour is expected to go into the matter more in detail in his forthcoming speeches. It may therefore be taken as a sign that the government officially rejects the idea that any distress exists, except such as can be relieved easily and by ordinary measures.

TOILERS ASK TOO MUCH. Union Dockmen in London to Be Locked Out.

London, Oct. 8.—In reference to the dispute between the Allan and Wilson-Hill Steamship companies and the dockers' union, Beckett Hill, of the Wilson-Hill line, says in an interview that his associates will not submit to a continuance of such moves, especially at a time when work is slack, as it is in the winter season. The ship owners' federation will at once open a register and a free labor agency, with a provision for a sick fund and other advantages. The union men will then be all locked out. Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint docks, declares in an interview that matters have become so bad that the company feel compelled to do so without the sanction of the leaders.

Mr. Morgan, secretary of the joint