

APPALLED AT IT.

The Republican Managers Endeavor to Shrink From the Irish Circular, But the Responsibility is Fastened on Them, and They Cannot Evade It.

Further Republican Insults Offered at the Doors of the Sanctuary.

Archbishop Ireland Says the Circular Was Wrong and Uncalled For.

Bishop Cotter, of Winona, Calls it the Vile Work of an Assassin.

Chairman Campbell Plainly States Where the Responsibility Must Rest.

Appalled at the unforeseen result of their infamous circular attempting to array the Irish Catholic vote against Judge Wilson, the Republican managers are squirming and wriggling in a vain endeavor to evade the responsibility and avert the wrath to come. But it will not do. Gov. William K. Merriam is directly responsible for that circular. It was done coldly and deliberately by his campaign managers, with his free consent and approval, and he pays the bill. The infamous circular was printed in the office of the St. Paul Dispatch, and was charged on its books to Gov. Merriam. For this gross and deliberate insult to the Catholics, for dragging their religion into the dust, he will be held strictly accountable. It matters not what tools he employed in the way of men. They were but his tools, and his money foots the bills. His managers were yesterday busily protesting that they did not do it. But at that same moment they were engaged in an equally disreputable act. Yesterday morning, as the congregation of the several French Catholic churches were emerging from their places of worship, they were met by men who busily distributed copies of a campaign sheet printed in the French language. The paper bore a large picture of Merriam, accompanied by a fulsome piece of flattery for which he paid a big price. Near by was a villainous and anonymous attack on Judge Wilson. These papers were freely distributed. The men coming fresh from God's altar were offered this vile publication! Merriam conducting a disreputable campaign on Sunday in the very doorway of the sanctuary.

The honest Frenchmen were insulted and shocked, and this fresh evidence of Republican malignity added fuel to the fire of wrath already kindled by the Irish circular. It was the expression of opinion about the city that the Republican managers had gone mad. The gods would deliver they must make mad.

Judge Wilson's Views—Circular Denounced by Bishop Cotter.

The Irish circular sent out on Saturday reached Winona yesterday, and drew out the unqualified condemnation of all classes of the people, on neither side to politics. Judge Wilson was amazed and indignant, but he expressed himself as follows: "I am a Frenchman and an Irishman. In this I am the circular is concerned, every reference to religion is entirely unwarranted. P. H. Hahilly is my friend, earnestly aiding my election."

Bishop Cotter, of Winona, was asked to express his opinion of the circular, and said: "I esteem the friendship that has existed for the past many years between Judge Wilson and myself an honor. A life-long Protestant, he has never been known to me as a confederate, to use any influence, social or political, against any one. On religious grounds he has not a particle of sympathy with the Orange party. The character of the circular is evidently the work of political assassins than whom there are none more vile."

Archbishop Ireland being asked yesterday what he thought of the circular sent out by the Republican state committee, Judge Wilson of anti-Catholic prejudices, said: "The mentioning of the Catholic church in connection with the present state politics of Minnesota is utterly wrong and uncalled for. The Catholic church demands only fair play and justice. This she has uniformly received at the hands of the several executives of Minnesota, and this I am very confident she will continue to receive in the future. Mr. Merriam and Mr. Wilson are both, I know entirely above all suspicion of religious bigotry, and entirely incapable of unfairness to any section of the population on religious grounds. On the score of religious bigotry, on neither can an enemy cast the slightest reproach. Catholics as voters will base their choice on political considerations, their choice of a candidate."

In this connection it might be said that every Irishman in the state will remember the great meeting held at the assembly in Market Hall April 3, 1887, to protest against the passage of the election bill in the British parliament. Judge Wilson came up to the platform to attend that meeting and made the speech of the evening. The resolutions adopted by that meeting were drawn and offered by Judge Wilson. No wonder the Republican managers sink back, ashamed of what they have done.

The Pioneer Press of April 14 contained a report of this meeting, and its files will bear out the statement.

The bells were just tolling out their Sabbath morning call to players yesterday at South St. Paul, when a messenger rushed into town with a story of crime so frightful in its details that the faces of his hearers blanched as they listened. George Robarge, a French farmer living a mile and a half due west of the town, had killed two of the Rogers boys, his neighbors, and then had blown his own head to atoms with a double charge of shot from the same firearm. The tragedy was witnessed by a young woman, the wife of one of the Rogers boys, who was the only person who saw the crime.

A BRIGHT PROSPECT.

From All Over the State Come Tidings of a Democratic Victory.

Close and Conservative Estimates Give Judge Wilson a Plurality.

The Alliance Vote is the Puzzling and Potent Factor in the Fight.

From the Several Congressional Districts the Reports Are Flattering.

The State is on the eve of the election and at the close of one of the most exciting campaigns Minnesota ever knew.

The indications strongly favor the choice of Judge Thomas Wilson and the entire Democratic state ticket.

Elections are always uncertain, but there has never been a Northwestern campaign in which the Democratic party has shown so prominent a figure as in that just closing.

The Globe has received carefully prepared estimates from every county in the state. These estimates were reviewed again and again as the aspect changed from day to day.

It is believed they are not only more nearly correct than is usual with election estimates, but that they are very near the truth.

These estimates elect Judge Wilson by a plurality of about 5,000, which is not heavy, but will be sufficient to carry the state.

The great uncertainty lies in the Alliance vote. The appended estimate gives Mr. Owen about 42,000 votes, while he and his committee confidently expect 70,000.

If their figures actually exceed the Globe's estimate 10,000 they will carry the state.

THE O'SHEA NASTINESS.

It May Be Used in the Coming Campaign.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Mr. Parnell, it is said, will testify in his own defense to the charge of O'Shea's conduct in the divorce suit of Capt. O'Shea and will absolutely deny criminality.

It is rumored that the plaintiff in his possession verified evidence that may be used in the coming campaign.

Mr. Parnell will reply to the charges with counter allegations. Altogether the affair is about as unavailing as it can be.

THE JUNIOR BROTHER'S VERSION.

A Representative of the GLOBE arrives from St. Paul, Minn., with the body of the murdered man.

The place at which the two men came to their death is situated among a series of rolling hills on the high ground to the west of the town.

The Robarge house is a frame one with a porch on the west side, painted in light green, and more pretentious than most of the residences of tenant farmers.

Small trees and brush grow all about the place, and the track left by the fatal charge of duck shot is plainly discernible among the bushes.

A pool of water in the foot of a tree to the northwest of the house marks the spot where Ben Rogers fell. Ten feet away is the trail of the shot, which shows that the firing must have taken place about that distance.

Ben Rogers fell on his back, and the door post shows a split ending half-way to the roof. Due west of the house is the barn, which Robarge had shattered to splinters, and the frame structure, painted red, as most barns are hereabout.

All day long the Robarge family endeavored to find out the place where the fatal shot was fired. The desolate wife watched the terrible scene in silence.

She sat in the cold room with never a soul of her own sex to say the kind word to her that might bring tears to her eyes and ease the pain at her heart.

The arrangements for the funeral will be completed today.
