SKETCHED FROM LIFE.

They tell a strange story on Dr. Ancker in connection with a recent case under his charge at the city hospital.

It was late last Saturday night when a lady about fifty years old was taken in, suffering from a severe scalp wound.

She was carried in and laid in a position for convenient operation by the surgeon. Her hair was matted with blood, and blood was still welling from the wound.

The doctor at once proceeded to clip away the hair surrounding the wound, and had cut a small patch here, when the patient, recovering consciousness, exclaimed:

"Pull it off, doctor."

"Why the hair, pull it off."

The surgeon glanced significantly at each other, each possessed of the same idea—the woman's mind was wandering.

"What's she up to?"

"That's the way of spoiling the wig; can't you pull it off?"

Sure enough, a little tug brought away all the hair in a bunch.

The patient was as calm as a lamb, and the doctors had been trimming round a forty spot in a blonde wig.

I don't verify often that an exciting incident occurs at the postoffice. As a general rule, although there are plenty of people to be seen rushing in and out, the crowd is strictly on business.

Yesterday afternoon the record was broken when $29 in the bill of the day a large red-haired man, with a stubble beard on his face, stepped up to the general delivery window and asked:

"Anything for Patrick Maloney?"

The words were hardly out of his mouth before a distinctly Irish gentleman, who had been waiting for a copy of the "Globe," jumped and grabbed the speaker by the throat.

"I caught you this time, had you to see," he yelled, shaking Mr. Maloney like a rat. "Shure it's meself is Patrick Maloney, and divil a letter has Maloney had in my name for a long time."

The big man managed to free himself and was a gibe-and-take session, in which the honors were even.

"I'll teach you to be a rascal, onto a respectable gentleman," yelled the assailant once, recovering his breath.

The combatants were about to fall in at each other again when the clerk put his head out of the window and suggested mildly for their benefit that perhaps there might be a copy of the "Globe" for the gentleman in the red hair.

The suggestion was a bright one. Both claimants for Maloney's mail bent their heads over a copy of the directory and found that there were at least twenty of them. The delivery clerk pointed out that he knew each and every one of the Maloneys by sight, and knew where their mail came from. Then he handed out to each of the men his correct mail, and that carried conviction to the truth of his assertion. The two Maloneys left the postoffice arm in arm explaining matters, their quarrel being winding up by an amused crowd.

"Policeman, I've been robbed; my pocket has been picked."

The speaker was a nervous, sharp-featured lady of middle age, who was awaiting a train at the union depot, and she was addressing the depot policeman.

"When did it happen?" asked the officer.

"Just a few moments ago. See that man over there? Well, he pushed right up close to me, and I believe he's the thief."

"Better search through your pockets well before you make a charge," suggested the policeman.

"No use; I tell you I've been robbed, and there's the thief," she exclaimed, growing excited.

"Excuse me," persisted the cautious guardian of the peace, "but what is it you have in your hands?"

"What's that? Why, good gracious, that's the funniest thing I ever did in my life. Just fancy my walking about looking for my pocketbook, and finding it in my hand all the time! I'm so much obliged, Mr. Policeman."

The officer said something about not mistaking her, but just the same he was mentally cursing the flightiness which had nearly caused the arrest of an innocent man on a grave charge.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Some comment has been created as a result of the appearance of a paragraph in this issue of the "Globe" relating to a supposed disparity in the prices charged for the same attraction, by the Metropolitan in St. Paul, and the Grand in Minneapolis.

It was pointed out that in the Metropolitan the price of seats would continue to pay $1.50 for seats to witness a performance to be seen at the Metropolitan, and that in the Grand it was believed at the time to be the exact case, but it was learned yesterday that the top prices at the Grand in Minneapolis, both for the Metropolitan and Hopper and "Shenandoah," were $1.50, the same as charged at the Metropolitan.

Manager Scott stated yesterday that the Metropolitan was endeavoring to graduate the prices according to the attraction. "This is no new idea in theatrical management," he said, "and the Metropolitan has been in vogue ever since St. Paul has had a theater. People will willingly pay extra to hear the Bostonians of an equally first-class attraction. The fact that prices were reduced during the Kate Castleton engagement is proof that the Metropolitan opera house, the Metropolitan intends to live up to its announced policy."

Dr. Dedolph Returns to the Charge in Defense of Koch's Lymph.

Preliminary plans have been arranged in St. Paul this week for a joint starting tour of three of America's oldest and foremost actors, Lawrence Barrett's idea of combining great stars may have originated from the example of the tent-shows, but, nevertheless, it has proved profitable. Besides the Booth-Barrett combination the country now has the Jefferson-Florence and the Wade-Bowers combines, and next year the probabilities are that we will be given another big consolidation of histrionic luminaries.

Dr. Dedolph Returns to the Charge in Defense of Koch's Lymph.

Preliminary plans have been arranged in St. Paul this week for a joint starting tour of three of America's oldest and foremost actors, Lawrence Barrett's idea of combining great stars may have originated from the example of the tent-shows, but, nevertheless, it has proved profitable.

Besides the Booth-Barrett combination the country now has the Jefferson-Florence and the Wade-Bowers combines, and next year the probabilities are that we will be given another big consolidation of histrionic luminaries.

At the Hotel Ryan Sunday afternoon there occurred a consultation of gentlemen interested in the forthcoming big theatrical venture, which amounts to nothing less than a combination of the forces of McKee Rankin, Louis Aldrich and Frank Mayo. The prime movers in the affair are McKee Rankin, Chauncey G. Pulsifer, successful manager, and Cud Givner, late manager of Daniel Sully, these three gentlemen, together with others whose names will be mentioned hereafter, are to be silent partners in the new enterprise, made up of the meeting at the Ryan and perfected the propositions which are now being considered.

Messrs. Aldrich and Mayo. While the combination is not an assured certainty, the "Globe" is confident that it will be effected. Mr. Rankin is enthusiastic over the plans that have been arranged and as he is at present better placed than either Mr. Aldrich or Mr. Mayo, it is not likely that the latter gentlemen will upset his anticipations by declining to accept the favorable propositions that have been submitted to them.

When the three veterans are brought together they will be surrounded by a supporting company of the very best actors and actresses attainable, and all their old successes will be revived in an elaborate manner. Messrs. Rankin, Aldrich and Mayo are to appear in the cast of each play. No new plays will be produced.

Mr. Rankin has announced that "Davy Crockett" will be made the feature of the repertoire. Of course these pieces will be revised so as to give excellent results, and most equally strong parts to all three stars.

DOCTORS DISAGREE.

Herr Dedolph Answers M. Martel on the Koch Lymph.

The letter of Pastor Martel published in yesterday's "Globe," by Dr. Orville Martel, compels me to refute the same by statements made by Koch himself and other German medicinal authorities which directly contradict the views of Pastor. He is quoted to have written:

"The remedy is of an extreme virulence and the reaction to its use is terrible. There is no reliable poison administered at the same reduced dose (two tenths of a milligramme) which could have such a result. We have to deal with a toxic of such indomitable energy that it can introduce in the organism disorders of which the consequences cannot be predicted and have not been studied."

In opposition to this, Koch, on the 4th of December, 1890, said to the municipal delegates from Vienna, Drs. Emil Kaennor and Pflieger: "During the execution of my professional duties for the public welfare, I have always made it a rule to examine and to test until I was perfectly convinced of the good results of the lymph, and I have never had occasion of being forced to revoke anything. I decidedly oppose all rumors current among people, that my remedy is of an extraordinary dangerous nature. Much more, I declare expressly that in the hands of an intelligent physician (such a one is always presupposed) my remedy is perfectly harmless, somewhat like quinine and similar curatives, which when judiciously used, may do much harm."

Who is right now? Pastor, who at the time when he wrote the letter surely had not made very many experiments with the lymph, or Koch and his assistants who have already made thousands of inoculations without having caused any harm?

Pastor further asserts that so far not a single definite cure of tuberculosis had been effected. I cannot but think that it must be a very long time since Pastor wrote the letter published; if it were otherwise, he could not help knowing that Prof. Bergmann, Heiferfeld, and other German medical celebrities report numerous successful cures. These are cures of patients that have been suffering from lupus, from consumption of the lungs and of the larynx, from tuberculous bones and joint, which later, according to statements made by Dr. Lindner, of Berlin, could not be treated effectively by Koch's inoculations with less surgical help in shorter time than by means of purely surgical maiming operations which have been in vogue up to the present time. When, finally, Dr. Martel asserts that Koch, before recommending his remedy to the public, should have tested it for a still longer period, I believe to be of a decidedly different opinion. Why not apply a remedy which is absolutely harmless with patients who, without the same, will sooner or later fall a sure prey to death, but who, with it, may in all probability be saved? Why shall we let wait, perhaps for years, all those hundreds of thousands of patients that, at this very hour, are in the stages of consumption? Why shall they wait until Pastor consents that they may be inoculated with the lymph in the first stages of that often rapidly developing disease have grown into secondary and tertiary ones, which defy even a remedy like Koch's?"

AN OFFICE CONTESTED.

The claim that the Attorney-Elect of Stearns County is an Alien.

The supreme court yesterday was called upon to decide the dispute as to the office of county attorney in Stearns county, a writ of certiorari having been granted for the purpose of hearing the title to the office, State of Minnesota, ex rel. of Oscar Taylor, plaintiff, vs. John D. Sullivan, defendant. The facts of the case, as set forth in the briefs, show that the late county attorney in Stearns county in November, 1888, Oscar Taylor was elected county attorney for a term of two years until his successor was appointed.

At the election held last November John D. Sullivan was elected county attorney, and took the oath of office. The supreme court is asked to declare his election null and void on the ground that Sullivan was born in Canada, and has never been taken as an American citizen, and is therefore not eligible for office.

The plaintiff, Oscar Taylor, also asks the court to enjoin Sullivan from interfering with him in the execution of his duties for the next two years, until his successor is elected.

The case was argued before the court late in the afternoon, and the matter was taken under advisement.

ALL IS FORGIVEN.

An Elopement Couple Return to Be Blessed.

Miss Birdie Lucas, daughter of William Lucas, of 265 Congress street, left her home last Friday ostensibly to visit friends at Hamline. On Sunday afternoon she came home accompanied by a good-looking man of about twenty-three years of age, whom she coolly introduced to her parents as her husband. The young man's name is Milton Dubois, and he is employed in a livery stable on West side. It was a case of elopement without the customary romantic features. It appears that young Dubois and Miss Lucas became acquainted about seven months ago and soon afterwards discovered that they loved each other. They feared the girl's parents would object to their wedding on account of her youth, and therefore they silently stole away to Hudson last Saturday and had the nuptial knot tied there. The old folks have forgiven everything and everybody is now happy.

Doutney Temperance Work.

The White Colored Concert company, who are aiding Mr. and Mrs. Doutney in their non-partisan gospel work at the Newmarket theater, have achieved wonderful success. They are artists. The theater had a fine audience last night.

The history of his life, as told by himself, never fails to win many to the side of temperance, and the sweet singing of the hymns meets with universal approbation. There will be another meeting to-night. To-morrow night a grand complimentary concert will be tendered to the Doutneys and aid in the expense of the work. Every one will appear in strictly concert programme, and in his and her best. It will be very long since Pastor wrote the letter published; if it were otherwise, he could not help knowing that Prof. Bergmann, Heiferfeld, and other German medical celebrities report numerous successful cures. These are cures of patients that have been suffering from lupus, from consumption of the lungs and of the larynx, from tuberculous bones and

A Bonanza in Iron Believed to Have Been Secured in Itasca.

Pythian Knights Enjoy a General Series of Installations.

At the annual meeting of the state agricultural society, held yesterday at the capitol, F. B. Clarke, of St. Paul, was elected president for the ensuing year.

The retiring president, F. C. Pillsbury, of Minneapolis, declined a re-election. Mr. Pillsbury, speaking of last year's work of the society, said:

"There was no clash in the least at the last fair and I take pleasure in congratulating the society upon its present and future progress. I have endeavored, and I think succeeded, in making the fair a purely agricultural institution. The annual report shows that the fair has been a success. I would suggest that at future meetings of the society arrangements be made whereby to have live animals which farmers who so desire can live during the fair. This would save them much expense, and would be interesting in the nature of a novelty besides. There should also be made arrangements for the display of agricultural topics should be considered."

Secretary Liggett's report, as published in the GLOBE yesterday, gave a very satisfactory showing of the present condition of the society.

The officers elected, in addition to Mr. Clarke as president, are:

Vice President—D. M. Clough, of Minneapolis; Second Vice President—L. Cook, of Blue Earth; Directors—C. M. Cosgrove, of Le Sueur; Col. Clarke Chambers, of Watonagan.

A resolution was adopted expressing appreciation of the administration of ex-President Pillsbury, the thanks of the society being tendered him for his faithful services, regret also being expressed that business engagements prevented him from accepting a re-election.

The proceedings of the society were very interesting, and a large attendance transacted. The delegates entitled to attend were:

AN IRON BONANZA.

Is What the Buckeye Syndicate Has in Itasca County.

The gentlemen comprising the Buckeye mining syndicate have returned from their trip to Itasca county and believe they have located a bonanza in iron ore. The syndicate is composed of Gen. J. H. Baker, Capt. W. W. Braden, E. W. Griffin, of Minneapolis, and several Cincinnati gentlemen comprise the syndicate. Mr. Griffin is the mining expert, and he expects to explore and test the ore. The ore was found about seven miles northeast of Grand Rapids and is of the hematite, almost exactly of the quality of Leaning ore. Under the state law have been secured and the work of putting in the machinery is well advanced. A spur line to the Duluth and Winnipeg road will be run and as the grade is all down to Grand Rapids, hauling will be facilitated. Duluth expects to explore and test the ore that can be hauled out to the present and will ship what she cannot export.

State Auditor Bierman, who also acts as state land commissioner, yesterday issued twenty-two mineral leases to the syndicate, allowing them to explore and prospect in the Mesaba iron range, situated in St. Louis and Itasca counties, for one year. The fees paid on the leases amounted to $550.

READY FOR THEIR BALL.

Junior Pioneers Conclude Arrangements and Hear a Speech.

One of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings ever held by the Junior Pioneers took place at O. A. H. hall last evening. Considerable routine business was transacted. That night, when members of the society, was transacted. Reports were received from the various committees on dancing, decorations and general arrangements for the ball, which takes place Thursday evening, Jan. 15, and all were of a very satisfactory character.

Hon. William P. Murray delivered an address on the occasion of the meeting. He related numerous peculiar incidents regarding the manner in which undesirable legislation was disposed of at that time. At one time, when the Maine anti-lugger law had been defeated, and everything was considered settled, the governor, who had been elected for Galena in a sleigh. No sooner had they left than another member had the title of a bill then pending changed so as to cover all points in the Maine law, and it was passed. Horses were immediately secured and Messrs. Murray and Lott were taken to the city and held in a reception at Gov. Gorman's, the bill was mysteriously stolen from Mr. Murray's overcoat pocket, and thus Minnesota was saved from being a prohibition state. Numerous other instances of a similar character were related.

It was also stated that there had been a fight between upper and lower town, or between the Rice faction and the Sibley faction as they were then called, which compared to that now existing between the Twin Cities, but the speaker said the tendency of the times would soon bring about a play along the lines now existing in this united city. The speaker promised at some future time to further discuss upon some of our pioneer history would be better prepared. The ticket committees then made a very satisfactory report, and were urged to see every thing ready for the ball, which now promises to be the most pleasant entertainment yet undertaken by the Ramsey County Junior Pioneers.

THE CAPRICIOUS WEATHER.

From Zero to Zero, With a Dash of Rain Meantime.

Yesterday brought one of the most sudden changes of weather known ever to this capricious climate of the banana belt. At midnight yesterday, the mercury was at zero, but during the day it rose rapidly until it got to the freezing point, and at 6 o'clock in the evening a light rain fell. At the same time a slight breeze sprang up that quickly cleared the sky and again sent the mercury dancing down to zero. At morning it was clear and cold, with indications for a cold day to-day. Observers issued the following bulletin last night:

The area of low barometer that overlaid Manitoba last night is now over the area of high barometer, which decidedly lower temperature, has appeared to-night over Manitoba. It is evident by the advance of a polar wave, that the cold front which has been below zero, making a fall of from 8 to 10 deg. in the past four hours. Light snow has fallen over Manitoba and Northern Minnesota, and thence eastward over the lakes. Generally clear to fair weather, with clear northerly winds, prevail from the Rocky mountains to the Upper Mississippi valley, thence eastward to the Ohio valley, warmer fair to clear southerly winds predominate. Over the lakes the weather is cloudy and snowy.

SOLDIERS IN SESSION.

Arrangements for the M. N. G. Convention on Thursday.

Col. Fred P. Wright, president of the National Guard association, has issued circulars containing information in relation to the twelfth annual convention, at the state house on Jan. 15.

Transportation will be furnished over all roads except the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul. An effort is being made by the adjutant general to secure transportation over that road and by attending the convention will be furnished transportation on application to the commanding officers of their respective regiments.

It is requested that the members of the national guard, in order to make the meeting of the association a success, should be ready to take an active part in the proceedings. A number of papers have already been prepared, and it is hoped that every member of the association will be present, and that all who can will prepare papers upon some one of the subjects of interest to the national guard.

Sunday School Workers.

The meeting of the Sunday School Workers' union at the House of Hope church, last night, was a most interesting one. The Harper System of Inductive Bible Study was the topic for discussion. Rev. W. H. Buttrick spoke comprehensively of the origin and value of the inductive system, and F. W. Pickard interested the audience on the subject of "Bible Clubs and Advanced Classes."

The Harper System was thoroughly explained by Prof. G. N. Carman, of the St. Paul high school. By the adjutant general and laid on the floor around the heaters in such numbers that they blocked up the passage to the court rooms. The marshal finally conducted them to the basement of the building and then to the federal court room, a session of the federal court now in session. Yesterday they gathered into the corridors of the federal building and lounged around on the balconies and laid on the floor around the heaters in such numbers that they blocked up the passage to the court rooms. The marshal finally conducted them to the basement of the building and then to the federal court room, a session of the federal court now in session.

There are about 150 Indians attending the federal court now in session. Yesterday they gathered into the corridors of the federal building and lounged around on the balconies and laid on the floor around the heaters in such numbers that they blocked up the passage to the court rooms. The marshal finally conducted them to the basement of the building and then to the federal court room, a session of the federal court now in session.

Painters and Decorators' Union No. 20 initiated one member last night. The reading committee reported progress. The committee reported that arrangements had been completed for the open meeting Friday evening, Jan. 23, when prominent speakers will discuss the subject of organization.

Flumbers' Union No. 34 elected the following officers last night: Past president, Gus. Cassery; president, M. J. White; vice president, George Ward; recording secretary, J. H. Doyle; financial secretary, B. J. Conroy; treasurer, Ed Murooney; outside sentry, Ed Doyle
