Spring is a period of general restlessness. The contagion has been communicated to the plumbers, steam and gas fitters of the United association. They anticipate trouble with their employers. It may not come before May 1, but it is almost sure to come. It can be prevented only by the acquiescence of the employers in the demands of the men. The journeymen charge bad faith on the part of the master plumbers. They have been unjustly treated, they say. Now they are determined to have their rights. The executive committee of the United association met at Labor Temple Sunday afternoon and discussed the situation. It was decided to demand eight hours. The chairman explains the trouble thus:

"Last May we entered into a compromise agreement with the master plumbers which was to last one year. By its terms we were to work nine hours a day for ten hours' pay. The union has never violated that agreement, but master plumbers have. In November business got a little slack, and so they reduced us to eight hours a day and pay by the hour. So we ve really been getting less this winter than last winter. Now, we don't intend to stand this. We demand eight hours' work at ten hour rates, the agreement to stand a year, and if we don't get it we will walk out on May 1. We shall send no committee to the master plumbers. Those are our terms and they can take them or leave them."
