NUTSHELL NEWS.

The Maxfield school will open Monday morning. The board of county commissioners will meet tomorrow. Company C gave an exhibition drill at the Army hall last evening. John A. Samuels has been adjudged insane and ordered sent to Rochester. Scam's fever was reported yesterday at the health office from 31 Jessamine street. A new trial in the case of Lucy M. Howe against Cochran & Walsh has been denied by Judge Kelly. Herman Joseph Steinkamp asks that a deed from Katherine Kuhn to him be returned so as to insert his full name. The Orpheus Musical society will meet Monday evening at the Bates Avenue M. E. church. Singers invited. The spring meeting of the St. Paul Methodist Social union will be held on Tuesday, May 5, at the Clinton Avenue M. E. church. The Philomathean society will give its last dancing party of the season Friday evening next, April 24, at Little's hall, Sixth and St. Peter. The sum of $76,609.44 was yesterday paid to the state treasurer by the state auditor, being the amount of the spring settlement of the various state funds. The Father Mathew T. A. society will have an important meeting at 4:30 to-day, at the cathedral basement. All members are requested to be present. United States District Attorney Eugene G. Hay left last night for Cincinnati, O. He will also spend a few days at Indianapolis, Ind., before his return. The new meeting of the new park board will occur on Monday evening. City Attorney Lawler will be present to explain the powers vested in the organization. The St. Paul Trust company has commenced an action against Ellen O'Connor to foreclose a mortgage for $7,000 on lots 3 and 4, block 178 of Robertson's addition. The St. Paul Trust company has begun an action against Charles B. Lawson and others to foreclose a mortgage for $6,000 on lots 1 and 6 of West Crocus Hill addition. Judge R. B. Nelson, United States Marshal and other officials of the United States circuit and district courts, will go to Mankato tomorrow and open terms of the courts next Tuesday. By special request, the "Deerlock Skule" will hold another session at the Bates Avenue M. E. church Friday evening, April 24. A new programme of songs is presented, introducing entirely new features. Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday with the secretary of state by the S. D. Peterson Improvement company, of New Ulm, with capital stock $20,000. The incorporators are Senator S. D. Peterson, John Larson, W. A. Hubbard, all of New Ulm. Nellie Robinson, a good-looking blonde of pure white blood, the daughter of a well-to-do family, has just been divorced from James Robinson, a coal-black negro, known as "Pop-Eyed Jim," who was sent to the penitentiary some months ago for serving a term of six years for grand larceny. The St. Thomas nine defeated Macalester nine Saturday by a score of 10 to 4 at the former's grounds. The features of the game were the batting and battery work of the home team. The batteries were Fleetham and Rinko for the former, and Vance, Brown and Kirkwood for the latter. Mrs. W. D. Freshy, of 41 Exchange street west, is just recovering from a severe attack of grippe and other complications, which have confined her to her home for the past few weeks. Her many friends will be glad to hear she will soon be able to resume work on her late father's model, which she hopes soon to bring before the public. Col. Boller, the state treasurer, yesterday stated that the appropriations bills passed by the senate exceeded the estimate by $500,000. If the house of representatives passes these bills and the governor does not exercise his power of veto, there will be a deficit in the treasury at the end of the year or the tax levy will have to be raised in order to meet the amount. W. W. Chapple, of St. Paul, has written a song entitled "Our Father, Our Father." It is dedicated to Lincoln, who says of it: "It's a beautiful song. I shall take great pleasure in playing it at my concerts in New York city." Mr. Chapple is a grandson of the celebrated English composer, whose anthem, "Christ, Our Passover," has been often sung in St. Paul. At the Grand opera house Rev. W. S. Yall will preach before the Universalist society Sunday morning at 11 a. m. Subject, "The Unity of the Church." The vocal quartet will sing "Rock of Ages" and "Gently Lead Us," and Miss Mae Murphy will sing "Come Unto Me." Miss May Griffith, the "child soprano," will sing "The Ninety and Nine." All seats free. On the requisition of the police officials in Minneapolis, Detective Hogan yesterday afternoon arrested in St. Paul a man named Charles Allen, who is wanted in the Flour city on a charge of horse stealing. Allen was locked up at police headquarters, but declined to make any statements. The officers from Minneapolis will come over to-day for their prisoner. The Progressive "Boston." Those enterprising men, the proprietors of the great Boston Clothing Store, are ever in the front rank, up with the times. Not long since passers-by saw the whole Robert street side of the building boarded up, signifying that the store was changing and improving. With such speed and vigor was the work accomplished that but a few weeks passed ere a solid stone wall gave way to a hundred feet of beautiful plate glass front, greatly improving the looks of things, affording magnificent display windows and perfect light. The entire building has been redecorated throughout in a handsome manner, and, by removing the office to the second floor, much additional and needed room provided for the various departments on the first floor. These changes make of the Boston one of the most elegant, roomy and complete establishments in the United States. And it goes without saying that the great store of Clothing and all that mankind wears, is also up with the times. The West Side turnverein has arranged a benefit in honor of their instructor of gymnastics, Prof. R. G. List, to take place at Martin's hall, corner Colorado and South Wabasha streets, on April 25. The programme will include gymnastic exercises by all the classes of the society, and the Minnesota club swimmers will exhibit their skill in the Indian club. A ball will follow the programme. Mistakes. There is one common ground on which we can all meet—we have all made mistakes. In fact, a large portion of the world's history—and the saddest part of it—is the record of mistakes. Philosophers have discoursed of, poets have sung about, and preachers have denounced, mistakes, since man had speech. Bob Ingersoll has lectured on the "Mistakes of Moses." Sankey has sung—"The Mistakes of my life have been many"—and still the human race goes blundering along, kicking at hats with bricks under them, betting its money on the wrong horse, voting for conscienceless demagogues, and getting left generally. Warning and expostulation seem to be without effect—but we feel we ought to say to the traveling public (and the experience of thousands will endorse this) that if you contemplate a journey, no matter from where or to what point, you will make no mistake when you select "The Burlington" as your route. To all the Northwest and the great Mississippi Valley, it is the favorite line between Chicago, St. Louis, St. Paul, Minneapolis and all intermediate points. For maps, rates, etc., apply to your local railroad agents, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn. Mary P. Albee has begun an action against Katie Mayer to appoint a receiver to collect the rents and profits of lots 29 and 30, block 15, in Syndicate Addition No. 5, during the pendency of the equity of redemption of the lots. AN EASTERN ORATOR.

Congressman Wilson, of West Virginia, Stops Over in St. Paul, En Route to the Pacific to Organize Democratic Societies. A Scholarly Address on the Economic Question of the Tariff. Equalize the Burdens and Perpetuate Our Free Institutions. Congressman William L. Wilson, who is so ably representing the Second district of West Virginia, is a guest of St. Paul. He arrived here yesterday, direct from his home, and, though on political mission to the coast, stopped over by preconcerted arrangement to see the city, and perhaps contribute a tariff talk to the "campaign of education." Mr. Wilson is conspicuous as one of the leaders of the present congress, and his name has frequently been mentioned in connection with the speakership. As a tariff debater and as an economist he has few superiors anywhere. During the campaigns of 1888 and 1890 he was a potent factor on the stump and in the legislature. Upon his arrival here he was escorted to the Merchants' hotel and subsequently entertained at the Minnesota club. In the evening he delivered a short address at the Harris theater. Mr. Wilson was escorted to the stage promptly at 8 o'clock, and took a seat in front of a group of citizens, among whom were Mayor Winslow, of Minneapolis; Charles M. Foster, judge; Charles E. Flandrau, A. T. Ankeny, of Minneapolis; W. M. Campbell, chairman of the state Democratic committee; Howland Baker, Hon. C. D. O'Brien, B. Cloutier, of Minneapolis; and Judge Egan. A number of distinguished citizens occupied seats near the speaker. C. M. Foote, president of the Democratic State club, introduced the distinguished speaker in a few expressive sentences. The Address. Mr. Wilson began by saying that when he had been invited by friends from both sides of the continent to deliver a series of addresses on the Pacific slope he did not expect to make the first speech in the series. He said that the statement he delivered gracefully from one topic to another in a manner that indicated a master mind, and with a purity of diction that indicated a born orator, equipped with the refinement of observation and insight of knowledge of the realm of scholastic attainments. His address was a graphic picture of the conditions of the past and present, and the conditions that distinguished the two eras. He said that the extent and variety of conditions in a country cannot be brought home to a man by studying a map. Study it as much as you will, and still you will not get what preachers say is a realization of the magnitude of the country. "We have an idea that free institutions are the model theories of government; but a free government does not exist in the laws of the country nor in its constitution, but in the freedom of the people themselves, and they must have patriotism instilled into their hearts. It was the theory of the founder of freedom of government eighty-eight years ago. Fisher Ames had said that this country was too big and too crude for patriotism, but the great leader of the people had demonstrated the fallacy of the statement eighty-eight years ago, and stirred the country to sweep onward and surpass the countries of the old world, and we see a great commonwealth that is not confined to the United States alone, but extends its influence far beyond into a great American commonwealth, and compare ourselves with the great countries of the earth. He then referred to the gifts of Nature and the great agricultural and other Resources of the Country. They had been passed over by the Indians until people from the old countries came here with Christianity, industry, energy and natural ability, and had by their reason of the natural resources of the country been able to surpass the land of their ancestors. Yet it has been declared by men on platforms for the past year that an act passed at the instance of Mr. McKinley and a few others and not in our energies and resources, has ruined the country. The speech of Rip Van Winkle, or that the existing tariff had left our country in a state of ruin, or that the bill the tax on pig iron or steel rails or some other articles of goods, then, according to their theory, would seek the level of the lowest native of the earth. No, my fellow citizens, we don't owe our prosperity or superiority to an act of congress or any system of taxation; it is because of our natural resources and to the institutions given us by the fathers of our country. When Washington left his home for the seat of government he traveled by the same means that Julius Cesar used. We have not a single man in the country who has seen a new heaven and a new earth. Referring to the theory of Henry George he said that but few people adopt his views, but he had illustrated the theory that a wedge had been driven into the midst of the people that lifted one class up while it drove another class downward. The McKinley tariff had divided the people, elevating the rich and pressing the other class of people down to a poverty. We have the richest men of the world. If they have accumulated wealth by developing our country or by proper methods I have nothing to say against them, but when it comes to a system of laws that create wealth in a great degree, to me I have been one of those who never knew how to submit. To Oppose Taxation. Let me write the history of rebellion against unjust taxation and I will read to you the biography of a free government. What was a stamp tax to a man like Washington? We can pay a tax, but with a little tax you can restrain free government. McKinley asked for a little tax on pig iron and steel rails so as to produce higher wages. If you go to the industrial factories where there is the highest protective tax, you will find the chimney and not men do the work. It is the labor of the machinery under the sweat of the brow of the man who is protected by the McKinley bill, and not the man toiling under the sweat of his brow. It is not corporations as industrial organizations, but by political organizations that I oppose. Bonaparte has said that agriculture is the need of a country and commerce its convenience. McKinley said commerce will ruin the country. We must have commerce or we will have tramps and beggars. He illustrated by saying that Minnesota is a great agricultural state. If the people were taxed to start a shoe factory for the purpose of supplying all the people in the state with shoes the factory would employ 1,200 people and it factories were established the shoe industry would supply the wants of the state they would afford work for but a comparatively few people, and the people engaged in manufacture would not make any impression on the consumption of the resources of the state. When you keep the plate out of the United States you prevent the sale of your products, and consequently diminish the home production. Establish commerce and you will rid yourselves of tramps. We must open our ports to give an outlet for our products. The whole system of taxation or tariff goes back to the one question of uniformity of the system and an equal bearing of the burdens. We have tried to have a country where there is no stratification into classes. We have delighted to boast of the freedom from caste. We have delighted to point to Lincoln, Jackson, and other men who have risen from adversity, poverty and struggling mothers of prosperity. To perpetuate a free government we must leave the people free and not bind them by unjust ties or lay unequal burdens upon them. During the address the speaker was greeted with frequent applause, and continued applause was manifested when he concluded. A number of gentlemen went to the stage after the meeting closed to greet Mr. Wilson and express their appreciation of his address. The Kiss Wertheimer, The California. Fine Writing Papers. A Pair of Burglariouss Youths Taken Into Custody. Detective Daly last evening shortly before 9 o'clock arrested two young fellows whom it is thought have been concerned in a burglary, or even a worse crime. The officer caught the fellows on East Seventh street, and as one of them intended to fit over the writer, which he could not give a satisfactory account, the pair were conveyed to police headquarters. There they gave the names of Charles Nelson, seventy-three years, a driver, and Frank Webber, sixteen years, shoemaker. The paper bundle which opened up proved to contain three valuable rolls of cloth, about 100 yards in all. One piece bore a tag bearing the number 2224 yards. The material was of fine wool, dark texture, evidently imported goods. Nelson, when arrested, was found in his possession a most murderous and dangerous shot, covered with rubber and attached by a double-knotted leather thong to a loop intended to fit over the writer. He said he had made it himself, but declined to say for what purpose. As the paper in which the cloth was wrapped bore blood stains, it may turn out that the weapon in Nelson's possession may have been used when the cloth was stolen. The police desire any parties who think the cloth is their property to call at headquarters to identify it. Gold Wall Paper 5c a Roll. Frank S. Weidenborner, 205 East Seventh street, corner Sibley. There was a lively meeting of citizens on Friday evening at St. Anthony Park. Gov. Marshall, president of the league, was in the chair, and he proceeded to give the history of the Raymond avenue electric line, and the action of the executive committee therefrom from the first to the present. He regretted that the action of the committee had apparently been in opposition to the vote of the league taken on March 3. G. H. Pratt, of Minneapolis, Messrs. Clarke and Woodard all spoke in favor of the Raymond avenue line. E. S. Kirkpatrick, Col. Taylor and Judge Jett followed with strong arguments for the Langford avenue line. Finally the following resolution was adopted by a vote of 22 to 12: Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting that we most earnestly insist upon the city railway company being held to its agreement to build the electric line on Langford street and are opposed to the substitution of any other line in its stead. By the terms of the resolution the league repudiates the action of the executive committee. Prominent Men. "Thanks." Said the reporter to the artist, accepting his invitation to inspect the splendid portraits of Judge Brislin, Judge Dixon and Prof. Phelps, of St. Paul, and the late Judge Murdoch, of Stillwater. These masterpieces are fresh from the hand of our eminent young artist, Mr. Edwin B. Smith, and were seen at his studio on Wabasha street. The Sage in Oil. Visitors to the capitol during the last few days have been given an opportunity to gaze upon one of the best pieces of portrait painting exhibited in St. Paul for a long time. The work is that of a life-size portrait of the Sage of Nininger, Senator Ignatius Donnelly, and occupies a prominent position in the executive department. The Sage, looking wonderfully life-like, is represented as seated in a chair with one hand hanging over the side of his seat. The other of which is a piece of manuscript. The work was done by N. R. Brewer, a young artist of this city, and betokens great talent in that line of work. Admiration of the Sage who desire to get real close to him should not fail to see this handsome portrait. Goyer Bros' Removal. We move from 137 East Third street to 323 Robert, near Fourth, about May 1. We are making special prices on Furniture Goods at the old stand. The Kiss Wertheimer, The California. The Yerkx Reunion. The new and handsome residence of T. E. Yerkx, on Summit avenue, was the scene of an interesting event on Thursday evening. Twenty-one members of the family assembled in the parlors, and the old-time family reunion was held, lasting until after midnight. A number of other guests had been invited to participate in the housewarming. Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Yerkx, parents of T. E., F. R. and W. A. Yerkx, were present. The event was a most pleasant one in every respect. Carpets and Straw Mattings. Frank S. Weidenborner, 205 East Seventh street, corner Sibley. Hamline's Oratorical Honor. The results of the annual oratorical contest to decide who should represent Minnesota at the intercollegiate oratorical contest to be held at Des Moines May 10 have given general satisfaction. G. E. Maxwell of Hamline was the first place in the contest, while B. H. Timlake and T. G. Soares, of the state university, won the second and third positions. The judges on thought and composition were Prof. A. H. Pearson, Carleton college; Rev. F. H. MacLaren, St. Paul, and Hon. Daniel Buck, Mankato. On delivery, Hon. A. R. McGill, St. Anthony Park; L. V. D. Heard, St. Paul, and Rev. J. J. Faude, Minneapolis. The Kiss Wertheimer, The California.

As Spring approaches Ants and roaches From their holes come out, And mice and rats, In spite of cats, Gaily skip about. So it is with all insects. But it is different with croakers. They complain all the winter, but when spring comes and they go around a little, and see the wonderful progress of the city, they cease their doleful song. There are very few of them this spring, and as soon as the fool-killer comes in sight they go into their holes. Consequently real estate is improving. So you had better buy while you can. We have the best property at low prices, in all directions. We have lots from $250 up. We will sell a few lots in South St. Paul, close to the manufacturing, at half-price to people who will build.
