A WORLD OF WOES. Developed by the Myriad Suits Entered and on Trial.

Michael J. O'Connor has begun an action against Martin Delaney for an accounting of partnership accounts. It is alleged that when the partnership was dissolved by mutual consent in 1885, Delaney had, and retained in his possession, $2,000, deposited in the Merchants National bank, besides five stock and bond worth $500.

Judge Cornish has filed an order in the cause of the Ramsey County Building society against C. B. Lawton and Irene E. Lawton, rendering judgment for the amount demanded. It is held that the claim of the defendant to the effect that a suit covering the matter was brought in the municipal court is not a good defense, because that action does not cover the matter involved in this case.

The National Investment company has begun an action against the National Savings, Loan & Building association, to recover $1,200 for money loaned under a contract to W. J. Woolsey. Funds in the hands of the St. Paul Trust company have been garnished to satisfy the claim.

Judge Kelly has filed an order in the cause of The J. C. Hanley Lumber Company against James Wilson and people who believe in an ever-present and rational God who will accept the sincere offerings of good people. The church is a beautiful edifice, and is well adapted to its purpose in the interior arrangements.

The action of the Tilden Electric company against Rudolph A. Becker to recover $150 for work done has been transferred from Hennepin county to Ramsey county for trial.

In the cause of The Second National Bank against Edward N. Schwank and others Judge Kelly has filed an order rendering judgment in favor of the defendants.

The cause of Nels W. Thygeson as receiver of Bergema against George L. Farwell was tried yesterday in Judge Cornish's court and submitted to the jury.

Judge Brill has denied the application to require the defendant to amend the pleadings in the cause of B. H. Jacobs against Byron Woodward.

Daniel H. Moon has applied to the district court to require H. V. Rutherford as assignee of Vanderhoff & Stone to allow a claim for $1,200.

James S. Johnson has sued John A. Busch and wife to establish a mechanic's lien and $18.50 upon lot 16, block 1 of Atwater Street addition.

Henry E. Conklin has sued Timothy Sweeney and others to recover $249.95 for work done on improvements to Langford Park.

Judge Kelly has refused a new trial in the action of Thomas J. Clancy against Walter P. Burke.

Michael J. O'Connor has sued Martin Delaney to recover $2,700 for rent of a building.

O'BRIEN AFTER TODD.

The Prison Inspector Institutes a $50,000 Suit for Slander.

Based on the Interview With the Binding Twine Manufacturer.

A Beautiful Church Formally Sanctified to God's Services.

The New Central Presbyterian Church Dedicated Last Night.

Now for the truth! State Senator James S. O'Brien, of Stillwater, the member of the prison board, yesterday began an action for slander against Joseph C. Todd, of Paterson, N. J., the manufacturer of binding twine and machinery, claiming $50,000 damages.

The papers were served upon Mr. Todd at the Ryan about 6 o'clock by a sheriff. After dinner Mr. Todd placed his defense in the hands of Erwin & Wellington. The complaint has not yet been filed, but it is based upon an interview with Mr. Todd which appeared in yesterday's Globe, in which Mr. Todd says Mr. O'Brien used this language to him, when talking of the purchase of binding twine machinery: "Mr. Todd wants to know what there is in it for him."

This, Mr. O'Brien asserts in the complaint, is false and defamatory, and damages him to the extent of $50,000.

Mr. Todd declined to be interviewed last night, and the matter was referred to his attorneys at the proper time. It is understood he will at once file an answer and move to transfer the case to the federal courts, as he is a non-resident of Minnesota.

Mr. O'Brien left the city early and returned to Stillwater, so that his version of the affair could not be obtained.

There has been so much said and printed of the purchase of the twine machinery—a large portion of the report of the special legislative committee being devoted to it and the Alliance having given it a great share of attention—that this suit will be observed with interest by the public.

A BEAUTIFUL CHURCH. The New Central Presbyterian Church Dedicated.

The new Central Presbyterian church was dedicated last night with ceremonies befitting the modern Christian church. The exercises were devoid of pomp or parade or ritualistic formalities, but were rather of the order in keeping with the views of people who believe in an ever-present and rational God who will accept the sincere offerings of good people.

The church is a beautiful edifice, and is well adapted to its purpose in the interior arrangements. The audience last night was made up of people from other congregations, as well as that of the new church, and the seating capacity in the main auditorium, gallery and school room adjoining was well tested by the 2,000 or more persons present. The pulpit and altar were beautifully decorated with potted flowers, with a background of plants, and all overtopped with a row of palms.

The ministers occupying seats in the pulpit were: Rev. K. F. MacCaren, pastor of the church; Rev. Robert Christie, D. D., of House of Hope church; Rev. D. J. Burrell, D. D., of Westminster church, Minneapolis; Rev. Robertson, of White Bear; and Rev. Lewis, of Ninth Street Presbyterian church. The services began at 8 p. m., with an organ voluntary by Prof. W. Weston. A doxology was then sung by the entire audience, led by A. C. Harper as precursor. Rev. Robertson, of White Bear, invoked a blessing upon the assemblage.

The congregation then sang "Coronation." Rev. Lewis read the 123d Psalm, which prayer was offered by Dr. Christie. A hymn was then sung which had been written for the occasion by Richard Marvin, Esq., Hon. Gates A. Johnson read a brief history of the building of the edifice, the substance of which has already been published in these columns. The choir then sang, constructing the building Feb. 24, 1890, by W. P. Donaldson, Washington M. Stees and Gates A. Johnson as a committee.

Mr. Stees died before the completion of the building, and Robert P. Lewis took his place on the committee. The first stone of the building was laid on July 31, 1890, and the corner stone was laid with appropriate ceremonies, in which the congregation participated, on Oct. 25, 1890, at 3 p. m. The walls were then several feet high, and the floor was laid. The cost of the building, exclusive of the pipe organ and carpets, was about $100,000. The organ and carpets were paid for by the ladies of the congregation. It was a year and thirteen days from the time of the last meeting in the old building, on the same site, and the first service held in the new room of the new edifice. The seating capacity of the main auditorium is 850, of the gallery 330 and of the school room 930, making a total seating capacity of 2,110. An arrangement that a speaker in the pulpit can be seen and heard by an audience seated in any part of the church.

Rev. D. J. Burrell, D. D., of Westminster church, Minneapolis, preached the dedicatory sermon, using as a text the 124th Psalm. The sermon was a most befitting one and was delivered with the characteristic earnestness and fervor of the distinguished divine. He embraced a review of the Jewish and later Christian religious zeal and perseverance, and an exhortation to righteousness, and closure with an allusion that no man had been hurt or killed in the construction of this church so much as no man or woman in the church had fallen to degradation or godown to eternal death.

The pastor, Rev. MacCaren, offered a dedicatory prayer. The audience then sang "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus," and were dismissed with a benediction.

AFTER THE MERRY DOLLAR. The Docket's Swarming With Parti-Colored Lilt Suits.

Robert H. Gray as administrator has begun an action against the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway company to recover $10,000, for the death of Frank A. Erling, who was a storekeeper at the storehouse, 300 Erling caught his foot in a switch frog and was run over by a train before it could be stopped and died on the way. It is alleged that the railway company is negligent in not providing blocks for the frogs in its yard.

The cause of Nels Metz, administrator of William Metz, against the St. Paul City Railway Company, is still on at the court. Mr. Metz, the attorney for the railway company, made a motion for a non-suit at the conclusion of the plaintiff's testimony on the grounds that Metz was guilty of contributory negligence at the time he was thrown from the car and killed. The motion will be determined this morning.

Robert H. Gray, as administrator, has begun an action against the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway company to recover $10,000, for the death of Peter Haupt, who was assisting Frank A. Erling to release his foot from a switch frog in the yards when a train ran over and killed both men.

Augusta Freeberg, as administratrix of the estate of Olga Freeberg, has begun an action against the St. Paul Plow works to recover $10,000 for the death of the intestate, caused by a belt slipping off a drive wheel, crushing him to death against a pulley.

H. Ogle has sued the St. Paul City Railway company to recover $1,000 damages for being ejected from a Seventh street car before reaching his destination—Marina avenue. The defendant claims that he was put off because of disobedient conduct.

Harriet W. Schenckmaker has sued the St. Paul City Railway company to recover $2,000 damages to her real property by reason of the erection of a smelter stack attached to one of its plants near her house, thus creating a nuisance.

In the cause of Alvis Wanzler against Hugh Martin and others to recover $100,000 for being run over by a coal wagon on Sixth street, the jury returned a verdict for $300 in favor of Wanzler.
