

TO CONTROL CHILI.

Two New York Firms Are Fighting for That Privilege.

The War in Chili Is Kept Up by These Parties.

One Firm Backs Balmaeda and Another the Rebels.

Rifles and Ammunition Are Shipped From New York City.

New York, May 5.—Judging from certain developments that have taken place during the past twenty-four hours, and from rumors that were prevalent in business circles down town today, the actual seat of the Chilean war is located in this city. It is claimed that two prominent commercial houses, both having very large interests in Chile, are furnishing arms, ammunition and money to the two factions—the government of Balmaeda's forces, and to the revolutionists. The houses mentioned are opposed to each other commercially, and each is doing its utmost to have the faction it supports win. News was received by one of the firms yesterday from its agent in Buenos Ayres that its competitor had sent a lot of rifles and ammunition to aid Balmaeda's forces. The agent stated that the firm had shipped 350 cases of rifles and 750,000 rounds of ammunition on the Brazil mail steamer, and that it had advanced from this port to Santos. There the ammunition was transferred to another steamer and taken to Montevideo. At Montevideo, so goes the story, the Chilean men-of-war Almirante Lynch and the Almirante Condell were met and the rifles and ammunition were shipped in small arms up on board of them. The two war vessels then sailed for Valparaiso and delivered the arms to Balmaeda's forces. One of the partners of the above firm left New York, it is said, just before the munitions of war were shipped and went directly to Buenos Ayres, and from there to Montevideo in order to be present at the transfer of the goods to the war ships. Commercial House No. 2, the revolutionist backer, has been charged by Balmaeda's friends with aiding the insurgents by sending arms to Montevideo down there. The prize for which both merchants are said to be struggling is valuable concessions which have been promised them by the respective parties in the event of victory. One of the New York houses interested in Chilean rifles and ammunition is said to practically control one of the South American Republics. The other house has large Brazilian interests. It was said today by many merchants that the war in Chili was kept going by the efforts of the two merchants here in New York. There have been several representatives of both the contending forces in Chili here in New York for the past ten days. It is presumed they are purchasing arms for shipment.

CONDEMNNS O'MALLEY

land, seeking the city of New Orleans for the congenial companionship of their own class. These men knew the swift retribution of the law in Italy, for hundreds have been shot down at sight by the military in the mountains of Sicily without a second thought. To-day there is recorded in the official report of the Italian consul in this city the names of some eleven hundred Italians who have been sentenced to prison during several years past, showing the official records of their criminality in Italy and Sicily. Hundreds of them are among the thousands of men who do not the Italian government would rather be rid of them than be charged with their custody and punishment. Such is the well known character of a part of the Italian colony, as it is called, who are domiciled in this city and its vicinity. Some of the men mentioned that secret organizations whose teachings are hostile to the fundamental principles of the government of the United States, and who are a continual menace to the good order of society and the material welfare of the people. We include in this list Mafia, socialist, nationalist, or whatever it may be, whether located in New Orleans, Chicago or New York, the meetings of their members are held and disseminated seditious ideas, with a manifest tendency toward overt acts, whose commission partakes of the rankiest treason.

Taking into account the mass of evidence presented, which is only partially summarized in the foregoing, it becomes our painful duty to make a declaration, most severe in its reflection upon the action of some of the members of the jury, so deeply impressed with the facts of the case that is forced upon us that some of the jurors, impelled by the influence of the charge of assassination of the late chief of police, were subject to a money influence to control their decision. Further than this, it is to be noted that certain that at least three, if not more, of that jury were so unduly and unlawfully controlled by the jurors themselves have testified in emphatic terms that if it had not been for the persistent and well directed efforts of the grand jury, most conspicuous from the time that body was empaneled, that verdict would have been a manifestly different one from that rendered. That a sad and terrible conviction from their associates on the jury, against those whose every action was intended to make them the controlling power. It is certain that the special effort of counsel for the defense was to select for service on that jury such men as were of the acquaintance and well under the influence of O'Malley and his assistants, notably those tall men who were on the detective agent's list.

No question is more intimately connected with the subject matter of this report than that of immigration. It deeply interests the people of our whole country by reason of the good results following the industry and the hard shores of large numbers of meritorious and law-abiding foreigners, or the damage attendant upon the introduction of a vicious class who leave a mark upon the country that that country's good, seeking an asylum here, soon again follow in their footsteps of the past. We know that this question more deeply concerns the city of New Orleans than it does any city on the Atlantic seaboard, and it is of the utmost importance to the public press, till there seems to be an awakening to the danger that threatens the situation and the necessity for a Radical Reformation.

That past immigration laws were easily defeated or badly administered is indicated by recent legislation of the national congress, and even these new regulations will not be sufficient unless strictly enforced by the proper officials charged with such duties. That is the intention at present and for the future, by some design or other, the details of the law have been evaded. We have stated in our remarks about the Mafia that several hundred Italian criminals are in this city to-day who should not have left their native land without the indorsement of the American people as a character and should not have been permitted to land here. The time has passed when this country can be made the dumping ground for the worthless and degraded of every nation. The crisis is reached, and on the magnitude of the issue it becomes the duty of the congress to quickly enact such vigorous laws that complete protection be afforded henceforth against these evils. In the presentation of the main features given to us as evidence, condensed as far as possible by the selection of the most important portions of the inquiry, we have referred mainly to the evidence bearing upon the trial of the nine accused in Section B of this honorable court, but directly connected with all those circumstances are the terrible events transpiring in the city of New Orleans, last—events which in themselves may be charged as directly traceable to the miscarriage of justice as developed in the conditions antecedent to it. We are deeply impressed with the serious charge delivered by your honor to the jury, and at no time since have we lost sight of the necessity for a thorough investigation of all the conditions antecedent to it. We have engaged ourselves most assiduously with the examination of a large number of witnesses, embracing those who were present at the meeting on Canal street, in the vicinity of

as well as several hundred of our fellow citizens, taken from every rank and class of society. It is shown in the evidence that the gathering on Saturday morning March 14, embraced several thousands of the first, best, and even the most law-abiding of the citizens of this city, assembled, as is the right of American citizens, to discuss the proposed questions of grave import. We find a general sentiment among these thousands of public men, and among the people, that the verdict as rendered by the jury was contrary to the law and the evidence and secured mainly through the designing and unscrupulous agents employed for the special purpose of defeating the ends of justice, and also in the determination was shown that the people would not submit to the surrender of their rights and the hands of midnight assassins and their political allies. The assassination of the late chief of police shows the culmination of a conspiracy, the details of which are necessary to prevent the exposure and punishment of criminals whose guilt was being fast established by the diligent pursuit of the condition of affairs in this community as to a certain class of violators of the law had reached such a state that the law itself was well nigh powerless to deal with them, so far-reaching was their power and influence in the trial of criminal cases. Good citizens were profoundly impressed by the repeated and signal failures of justice. The arts of the perjurer and the witness, who dominated in the courts, paralyzing and rendering powerless the ends of justice. Certainly this was a desperate situation. In the public meeting allude referred to—general and spontaneous in character as truly indicating an uprising of the masses—we demand if any power at the command of the authorities would have been sufficient to overcome the intentions of the law before us from official sources, that eleven persons were killed in the attack on the parish prison. The central and extending relationship of those men we find that eight of them were beyond question American citizens, and "another" had declared his intention in this court, which act carried with it the renunciation of allegiance to his native country. It is a notable fact in connection with the uprising that no injury whatever was done to either person or property beyond that of the act which seemed to have been the object of the assembly at the parish prison. We have before us the names of the participants in this demonstration, estimated by judges at from 6,000 to 8,000, regarded as a spontaneous uprising of the people. The magnitude of this affair makes it a difficult task to give the guilt upon any number of the participants. In fact the act seemed to involve the entire people of the parish and city of New Orleans, so profuse is their sympathy and extended their connection with the affair. In view of these considerations the thorough examination of the subject has failed to disclose the necessary facts to justify this grand jury in presenting indictments.

HOW ANCIENTS KEPT WARM.

They All Sought Mild Climates in Winter, Just as We Do.

The latest issue of Harper's Magazine ridicules the climate hunters who range Europe and Asia in quest of comforts which they could have found at home, but the "Drawer" libels the common sense of the ancients in the remark that they "froze or thawed, were hot or cold, as it pleased the gods, and did not think of fleeing from winter any more than from the summer solstice." The Southern Greeks stayed at home because their own country enjoyed the happiest climate on earth—an almost perpetual summer, tempered by sea breezes and the influence of (now washed) forests. But their next neighbors, the Macedonians, already knew how to appreciate the advantage of a climate sanitarium, and at their conquest of Western Asia often initiated the example of Cyrus the Great, who passed the winter in Babylon and the summer in the Gulf of Persia, and another in the Elysian hill gardens of Daphne, near Antioch, where Trajan and Alexander the Great often took refuge from the long rains of the Italian winter. "Do you not credit me with as much sense as nature has bestowed on a bird of prey, a Roman? I understand a friend who had criticized the slender architecture of his summer palace. Americans, blessed with the climatic immunities of Philadelphia and San Francisco, can afford to resist the temptations of the winter exodus; but their neighbors should not make them be blamed for preferring to "travel in the wake of spring," like Mrs. "Pansy" Florida, who gathers winter flowers in Florida and returns in June to an airy cottage in the Chautauque highlands.

A STRANGE SIGHT.

Cattle Meandering About With the Aid of Blue Eye Glasses.

A Vienna dispatch to the London Times says that the winter in Vienna has been so extremely severe that the whole county has been covered with a mantle of snow since November. The reflection of the light upon the snow has been so blinding that fens of thousands of cattle have been attacked with ophthalmia. At the suggestion of Dr. Verinoutz, of the government department of agriculture, a number of Viennese farmers have had recourse to blue spectacles in order to preserve the eyesight of their herds, and on one farm of a single province over 40,000 animals are meandering about with the aid of eye glasses. The entire supply of blue glass in Vienna has been exhausted, and it has been found necessary to obtain additional supplies from Paris and London. It is said that the chambers at its next session will make a special appropriation to reimburse the farmers and stock keepers for the outlay thus involved. An English farmer, who is now in Vienna, says that the sight of thousands of cattle groping their way through the snow with their eyes in blue spectacles is a sight which he never in his life has seen elsewhere. He says that the blue spectacles are made of a material which is neither too opaque nor inadequately described.

ESTS THAT PROVE Exhaustive Government tests, scientific tests by State and City Boards of Health, the tests by juries of competitive and industrial exhibitions, the minute and prejudiced tests by rival manufacturers, and (best of all) the tests by American housewives in their daily use of it in practical cooking for a quarter of a century, have proven the Royal Baking Powder faultless, the greatest in leavening strength, absolutely pure and wholesome. Every test proves its superiority.

ONE REVERSAL.

The Remainder of Decisions by the Supreme Court Are Affirmations. John Moriarty, respondent, against Peter McDevitt, appellant. COLLINS, J. Syllabus—A verdict is not sufficiently certain when it cannot be made certain by reference to the record. In the complaint herein a cause of action arising on contract was set forth, and a payment of $25 thereon admitted. The answer alleged the contract made to be a loan of an entirely different character, denied the payment, and contained two counter claims, one being a loan of $25 to plaintiff. The complaint was put in issue by the reply, and there was nothing in the record to indicate that the payment admitted by the plaintiff was alleged by the defendant to be the same transaction. The verdict was as follows: "We, the jury in the above-entitled action, find a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, involving the payment of $25 now in his possession." and on this verdict judgment was entered against the plaintiff. Held, that the verdict was too uncertain to sustain judgment.

WITH THREE BODIES.

A St. Paul Family Nearly Wiped Out. CHICAGO, May 5.—Mrs. J. M. Metcalf arrived in this city to-night, en route to St. Paul with the dead bodies of three of her family. Mrs. Metcalf, a prominent grain merchant of St. Paul, went South with his family last fall for the benefit of his health. Last week, being informed that he could only live a few days, the family started North. Before reaching Jackson, Miss., Mrs. Metcalf died. His daughter, suffering from heart disease, died just before reaching Memphis, and the son, also stricken with heart disease, died just before reaching St. Louis.

Important Announcement.

William Ludwig is a native of Dublin, where he received his early education, and studied afterward at the Catholic university of St. Charles, St. Louis. He first began to be known through singing the principal baritone parts in the famous Carl Rosa Opera company, about fifteen years ago, and since successive seasons he sang the first baritone roles in all of that great impresario's productions. Breath of style, clearness of enunciation, dramatic intensity, a magnificent voice, a noble stage presence—these, and a perfect command of the words cannot describe, serve to make Mr. Ludwig what a leading New York critic has entitled him, "The greatest male singer that Europe ever sent to America."

Do not fail to hear him with St. Paul, at 8 o'clock, at People's church, Thursday, May 7.

THE NEXT PLACE

FOR A BOOM!

Will be at South St. Paul. The city will now soon have a fine system of water works, and the bridge across the river at Spring Park will bring in several new railroads. Then there will be new manufactures on the five miles of trackage built for that purpose on the flat below the stockyards. The business at South St. Paul has increased more than any other business in Minnesota within the last three years, and it will undoubtedly be the great manufacturing part of St. Paul for large concerns. Hence with the returning tide of prosperity, of which we see signs on every side, there will undoubtedly be a great demand here for homes for workmen. So, if you want a home with a fine view, pure air, good transportation for 5 cents, and an attractive and cheap place to live, buy one of our lots in Union Addition. They are within two to five minutes of the station, and we want to sell a few of them for less than half-price to people who will build. Just think of a lot worth $500 to $800 for $250 or $300. We have also a couple of nice lots at Hamline, and we have two at the corner of Woodbridge st. and Maryland avenue for $700 each.

These include all the New Patterns of the Season.
