THE SUNDAY SHOWS.

Theatrical Managers Divided Upon the All-Absorbing Sunday Question.

Frank Bixby, of the Grand, States the Issue in Plain, Outspoken Terms. Sunday Theater a Reality Because the Mass of the People Want It.

Ald. Conley, However, Urges That Theaters Be Closed on the Sabbath.

Shall the theater be opened Sunday or not? Such is the question which a section of citizens of St. Paul are about to place before the theater managers.

The inwardness of this movement against the Sunday theater is interesting. A few weeks ago Rev. Samuel G. Smith, of the People's church, wrote the ministers of Minneapolis, who were agitating the Sunday question in that city, that the matter was shortly to be brought forward in St. Paul. Mr. Smith failed in getting a bill put through the legislature prohibiting the opening of theaters Sunday, the bill being introduced by Senator McFalle, of anti-litigious bill fame, and, singularly enough, defeated by him also. Senator McFalle's explanation of his peculiar action was that the ministers turned their backs upon him in his fight for "public decency and morality," so he was not going to resist them in their pet measure. Failing in securing the passage of the bill to prohibit the opening of theaters Sunday, the attempt is now made to force the hands of the theater managers.

From interviews with the managers yesterday it is exceedingly questionable whether the crusade against the Sunday theater will be successful, and for two reasons: It says to keep the theater opened Sunday. Second, the people want the theaters opened Sunday.

There were three theaters running last Sunday evening—the Metropolitan, the Grand and the Park—and every one was packed to the door, at the Metropolitan and the Grand people having to be turned away. This, no doubt, may be very gallant to the preacher—but man likes to sermelize to empty benches—but the fact ought to be fairly faced that a large portion of the community prefer the theater to the church. Any attempt to rob the people of the Sunday performance is certain to be resented. The people who frequent the theater Sunday are largely working people. It is the opportunity they have of enjoying a visit to the theater. Their case is very well put by Manager F. L. Bixby, of Litt's Grand opera house.

"There is a great deal of sentimentalism about the opening of theaters Sunday," remarked Mr. Bixby. "I look at the question from two standpoints—a business standpoint and a moral standpoint. Financially, I tell you, Sunday is away ahead of any other day of the week. The houses only have three Sunday nights since the grand opened that we have not turned people away. On other days Sunday is the only day that we do not let any one in. Now let me touch the moral standpoint. I am of the opinion that there is nothing demoralizing in people attending a theatrical performance on Sunday. The most rabid religionists, Sabatarians, or what you will, can visit the Grand any Sunday evening and defy any one to object to their having in the slightest degree a tendency to lower the tone of the people. On the contrary, it is my belief that the influence of the stage is to elevate, to educate the morals of the people.

"A word about the people who attend the Grand on Sunday evening. All classes are represented—the professional, the business man and the working man—all of them, in many cases accompanied by their wives and families. The working class may be said to largely preponderate. You do not hear any complaint from these classes at the Sunday theater; the protest is from a section of the community—at least, I am informed, so who never come to a theater on Sunday. Some of them do not come on any other day of the week. I think it is only fair, in discussing this question, that the working people should be allowed a say. The working classes are not possessed of elegant mansions, surrounded by all the intellectual refinements money can purchase, or able to provide themselves with richly equipped equipages. The only day of recreation for them is Sunday. They toil hard and long on other days. Are they to be deprived of their one pleasure of the week—the Sunday theater? I think it is wrong for them to do so. This is a serious question. It is not to be passed upon lightly.

"The question is one that the theater manager cannot decide. The theater manager is the servant of the public; theaters exist simply upon the patronage of the public. If the people decide they want the theater opened Sunday the manager must oblige. If the people do not want the theater opened Sunday, they have only to stop away and the places will quickly be closed. There is no question about this. The Sunday theater is a reality because the people demand it. It will continue to exist until the people decide otherwise. The management of the Metropolitan opera house is taking a somewhat conservative stand. It will be remembered that the Metropolitan was closed for two months that this theater opened its doors on Sunday. Why? Simply because the public demand it. If the theater was closed Sunday are so the people went elsewhere. The extra revenue for the week did not make up what was lost by the non-Sunday performance. Since the theater was opened on Sunday it has been crowded. The management is not likely to be inclined to return to the old system. When seen, however, Manager L. N. Scott was non-committal.

"I have talked the matter over with the directors," he said, "and for the present do not care to say anything. We prefer to wait and see the matter being decided. When presented it will receive our respectful attention and we will be prepared to give our decision."

While Mr. Scott was thus non-committal, Ald. F. Conley, the proprietor and owner of the Olympic theater, was very outspoken. "If you close the theaters," he remarked with some emphasis, "proceeding: 'If every other theater proprietor will agree to close his theater right away, I am open to the opening of the theater on Sunday, and never would have opened mine had I not been compelled to by the opposition of other theaters. Six nights and two matinees is quite enough work for the actors and actresses. A great deal of good, we depend upon it, if the people will on week days as you would if Sunday was included. If entertainment is to be a good one, depend upon it the people will do it. I look at this question from a financial point, and I repeat, 'Close the theaters on Sunday and you will be a direct competitor of the theatrical business, or any other business, to keep open every day. I hope this is the last time that a whole slew of them are only high dignitary to shut off this Sunday pastime. Here is a sample letter."

To the Editor of the Globe. In to-day's Globe I notice that there is a movement on foot to close up theaters on Sunday (or Sabbath) again. I know that when this movement of opening the theaters first was made, the so-called lower classes felt gratified because it is probably the only evening in a week as far as time goes, when they can get out of their homes as far as finance is concerned, that they can enjoy the privilege of visiting a theater I notice the names of the ladies congregating at the beautiful home of Mrs. C. F. Noyes and sitting in the boxes, are certainly all well enough situated to attend a performance, evening or matinee, as their wish may be; and I judge so from their standing socially. But here are we working people: The husbands are at work; if a laborer (who has no use for a theater), from eight to ten hours a day, and if a small business man, sixteen hours a day, and if a professional man, at least out washing to help the family's earnings, at least working in the house to keep the children in shape, so they may attend only public schools. Then there remains the only one evening in the week—the Sabbath—when they, if ever, cast off the garments of toil and look for some process not only enjoyment, but also of instruction and education. I believe that this stage has long ago been considered an education in taste. Therefore, do not try and shut up such places that are respectable to the lower classes.

SUCCESS ASSURED For the Big Meet of the Twin City Wheelmen on Saturday. The enthusiastic wheelmen of the Twin Cities who have labored unceasingly for the success of the first annual meet, which is to occur here on Saturday, announce that complete success has crowned their efforts. They expect a big crowd of wheelmen, a gallant parade and a hotly contested series of races. The summarized programme of the day—the races have already been announced—is as follows: 9 a. m.—Be sure and register at the hotel parlors. 10 a. m.—Parade, headed by the Second Regiment band. 11:30 a. m.—Photograph will be taken of all that take part in the parade, at the corner of Summit and Western avenues. 12 noon—Banquet dinner at the Windsor hotel. Price, 50 cents. 2 p. m.—Races, eight in number, open to all amateurs in Minnesota. $100 worth of prizes will be given away. 7:30 p. m.—Entertainment will form in form of hotel. 8:30 p. m.—Dance in Armory hall. 11:30 p. m.—Presentation of prizes.

The committee particularly emphasizes the fact that the Twin City wheelmen are organized, and not only are all wheelmen invited to participate, but to join the parade, eat the dinner and dance at the ball. The following is the line of the procession: Start from Windsor hotel, up Fifth street to Exchange, Exchange to Ninth, Ninth to Fort Fort to West Tenth, West Tenth to Rice, Rice to Lehigh, Lehigh to Summit place, Summit place to Nelson, Nelson to Farrington, Farrington to Dayton, Dayton to Dale, Dale to Holly, Holly to Western, Western to Laurel, Laurel to Ninth, Ninth to Summit, Summit to Western. Here they dismount to have photograph taken, after which they start again from Summit and Western, to Summit to Oakland, Oakland to Pleasant to West Fifth, and then to Windsor hotel, where dinner will be served. After dinner all wheelmen are requested to form in front of the Windsor at 6:30, then go over the same route to Western, where the races will occur. Everybody invited.

Boys' Reliable Clothing at the Boston, on Third street. THE LAST RESORT. A Boycott Ordered in the Waiters' Case—The Trades' Picnic. At last night's meeting of the waiters' union it was decided to boycott the White Brothers, of the Delicatessen restaurant. A committee of five White Brothers for a final answer in regard to employing union waiters, and received the reply that no change in their course was contemplated by White Brothers. A committee of five was chosen to wait on all the labor organizations in the city to state the grievances of the locked-out waiters to the Delicatessen. It was resolved that the waiters remain out until the White Bros. shall accede to the reasonable demands of the union. A copy of the resolutions passed was sent to White Bros. It was said last night that the change by the Delicatessen has cost the proprietors about $1,000, and they are at greater expense of running than if union waiters were employed. It is claimed that it takes eight colored waiters to do the work of four white waiters, and that the former do not give as prompt and intelligent service as the latter.

A resolution was approved last night favoring the movement by the ladies in the line of closing theaters on Sunday. There were three new members initiated and two applications received last night. A special meeting of the trade and labor assembly last night final arrangements for the picnic at Shale's park Sunday afternoon at 9 o'clock. The picnic was extended to all working people to attend. An address will be delivered by George M. Muller. The park will be decorated with banners, mottoes and transparencies.

Straw Hats at the Boston, on Third street. IN SACRED SOIL. The Remains of Late Sister Victoria Laid to Rest. The funeral of Sister Victoria, who died recently at St. Joseph's academy, took place yesterday forenoon at 9 o'clock. The services were of the usually solemn and impressive character and were largely attended by the clergy, religious and laity. Father DeGruy, pastor of St. Joseph's church, officiated as celebrant, and the sermon was preached by Father Byrne, of the Immaculate Conception church, of Minneapolis. He referred in the most touching terms to the beautiful character of the deceased, and said, among other things, that she possessed such great purity of mind as to fit her for a queen. Father Byrne was visibly affected in the delivery of his eulogium, and many in attendance were moved to tears as he portrayed in tender words the sweetness and purity of the youthful life of the dead sister.

The remains were taken to Calvary cemetery, where they were interred in the lot reserved for the sisterhood. Straw Hats at the Boston, on Third street. THE BOND QUESTION. To Be Decided by South St. Paul's Special Election To-day. South St. Paul will have a special election to-day, and a strong vote will probably be polled for bonding $100,000 for water works and $75,000 to assist in building a railroad and wagon bridge across the Mississippi in the Stockyards city. The bridge is to cost about $250,000. Prominent capitalists who are largely interested in the project, and who claim that the improvement will increase the value of their properties, and it is claimed that the bonding will be a direct competitor of leading railroads with the stockyards.

The people to be elected will occur June 2, and will probably be lively. Straw Hats at the Boston, on Third street. Baz. W. Armstrong is recovering from a long period of illness, and was at the clerk's office yesterday. He thinks of resuming his office work in a few days.

Ladies have sound judgment in the matter of attire, and that which provokes their approval is pretty sure to be about right.
