A BROTHER'S HORROR.

Ald. James Melady Returns From a Most Heart-Rending Mission.

His Brother Alleged to Have Been Butchered by Bogus Doctors.

Lured to a Hospital to Be Cured of a Distressing War Wound.

Medical Operation Bungled, Died and Buried in the Potters Field.

Alderman James Melady returned from Omaha Sunday morning after having performed the sorrowful duty of transferring the remains of his beloved brother, Richard, from potters' field to the consecrated ground of the Catholic cemetery. The story of the death of Mr. Melady is most tragic and horrifying.

Richard Melady was a farmer of considerable means, and lived near Stewart, a little burg about 100 miles from Omaha. Though he had a number of relatives, he preferred to live alone the monotonous life of a bachelor, and, being by nature of a retiring disposition, there were few, if any, whom he took into his confidence. He served through the war in one of the Minnesota regiments, and carried with him as a legacy afterwards a disfigurement of the foot, caused by a rifle ball or portion of a shell. This shattered member caused considerable pain and annoyance, and a few weeks ago, while preparing a word to any of his neighbors, he packed his satchel, locked up his house, and started for Omaha, where he entered a medical and surgical institute in that city. His so-called institute proved to be a snare and a delusion. It was managed by three or four alleged quacks, who, it is now claimed, knew nothing whatever about medicine or surgery.

What transpired at the hospital is now for the first time known. An operation was decided upon, and the result of it was that poor Melady was pitched into death. The "doctors" afterwards threw the remains into a box, and transferred him as a pauper to potters' field.

The horrible deed would never have been known but for one of these providential interventions that follow in the wake of the fateful of human life.

It appears that Melady had sent for Father Bruin while in the hospital to have his peace before undergoing the operation. After spending a short time at the hospital Father Bruin retired, but instructed the doctors to send for him again before the operation was made. The priest went away, and after several days had elapsed he began to think it strange that no message came from Melady. So he went to the hospital, and was astonished beyond measure at being informed by one of the "doctors" that the operation had been performed and that the under the knife. Suspicion was aroused in the priest's mind, and that same evening he called on the coroner, and conveyed to that official his misgivings that a foul crime had been committed.

The matter was placed in the hands of the police, and the next morning at a very early hour a descent was made on the hospital. The various papers and books of the concern were seized, and the "doctors" placed under arrest. The books showed that Melady, during his sojourn at the hospital, had paid $419, and in addition to this the "doctors" had $301, the rest of the money he had brought with him. The coroner ordered the remains to be exhumed, and an examination was had which showed plainly that the man's foot was mangled most horribly.

The body was wrapped in an old piece of white muslin, evidently the same that had been used on the dissecting table. In the meantime word was sent to Coroner Quinn, who, in turn, notified Ald. James Melady, of this city, of what had happened.

The alderman left last Thursday for Omaha, and arrived in time to witness the exhumation. The body was removed from the old pine box in which it was laid by the bogus doctor, placed in a neat casket and quietly buried in the Catholic cemetery.

Several weeks having elapsed and nothing having been seen or heard of "Dick" Melady, the villagers at Stewart became apprehensive that something was wrong, and a search was instituted for him. No trace of his whereabouts could be found. The door of his house was broken in, and after a long and tiring search among his papers to see if they would lead to his discovery, a will was found, which was dated in the fall of 1889, and which was in the handwriting of Melady. It was a will, and it was in the handwriting of Melady. It was a will, and it was in the handwriting of Melady.

The "doctors" are now in jail, without bail, at Omaha, and the trial will come off some time during the present week. Sensational developments are looked for.

Ald. Melady, who is one of the most highly respected and best known citizens of this city, has received general sympathy in the natural shock the loss and discovery gave him.

Persons doing work for the county have been ordered to keep a list of tools used by them belonging to the county, and make statements as to their condition when paid for work done. ST. PAUL. FINE LINENS.

We will have on exhibition this week a large shipment of fine Embroidered Linens just received from Belfast per S. S. "Germanic."

The stock consists of Table Cloths, Napkins, Sheets, Pillow Cases, Handkerchiefs, etc., and represents some of the handsomest goods we have ever brought out.

As these linens are already sold, they can, of course, remain on exhibition for a few days only.

This may be a good time to remind our patrons that we are beginning to take orders for "Holiday Linens," to be delivered about December 10th.

Only a few of the Belgian Linen Table Sets which we offered at $10 remain on hand. We have, however, another line of Table Sets of identical quality, but of larger size, which we offer at $12.00 a set.

They are fully as cheap as the first lot. Cloths have one row hemstitching and four rows drawn work all around. Napkins are hemstitched and have one row of drawn work. The lowest retail value is $22. We repeat our very low price, $12.

Have you a "Slumbering" Rug? We have few. They're made of Italian Silk of various colorings, and the prices are only $2 and $2.25 each.

We have also 100 Chenille Covers, one and a half yards square, which will be sold at $1.00 EACH.

They're as good as any we have in stock at $2. The secret of the low price lies in the fact that they are made of waste chenille of finest quality. The patterns are irregular, no two alike.

SMOKE NUISANCE. Receives Another Airing in the Police Court.

The case of the State against William L. Barreau, charged with violating the smoke ordinance, was heard in the municipal court yesterday. He used the last soft coal and employed a competent fireman in order to prevent a nuisance of smoke.
