As soon as news of the damage reached the office of the city engineer, the super-intendent of sewers, Mr. Wilson, col-lected all his force and set them to work repairing the breaks in the sewer, which are estimated to be about $1,500 damages. Mr. Wilson, in explaining the damage, said:

damages. Mr. Wilson, in explaining the damage, said:

"The Rice street sewer is connected at the intersection of Tenth and Fort streets with a small sewer running to a drop snaft. Here the water passes from the Rice street or large sewer down into the sand rock sewer. These sewers were built in 1878. The capacity of the small sewer connection between the large sewers were built in 1878. The capacity of the small sewer connection between the large sewers were built in 1878. The capacity of the small sewer connection between the large sewer and the drop shaft on Fort was not large enough to take the flow of water falling during the storm. In consequence of this fact the break at the end of the Tenth street sewer occurred, and washed away the earth from under the city railway tracks at that point. The same terrible force tore up the paving on Tenth street from Fort to St. Peter, and raised the pavement on St. Peter from Tenth to Ninth. The cedar paving blocks are torn out and scattered over the whole length of Fort clear to Seven corners. A similar condition exists also on Sixth street, between Fort and Exchange streets.

Seven corners. A similar condition exists also on Sixth street, between Fort and Exchange streets.

For a long time the city engineer has been desitous of enlarging the sewer and connections between Fort and Tenth streets and the St. Peter street sewer. Every year for some years past a large number of sewers have been put in at the upper end of the Tenth street system. This has caused a heavy increase in the annual flow through the Rice street and Tenth street sewers: the flow has passed down the drop shaft into the Fort street sewer. The rainfall Wednesday night, resulting in the breaking of the sewer being liable to a repetition at any time, makes it an absolute necessity to construct a larger sewer between the intersection of Fort and Tenth and Tenth and St. Peter. The amount of rainfall this summer has been unusually heavy, and the strain upon the stone work of sewers, which are clearly proven not to be of sufficient capacity to carry off the surphus, is iable to cause a burst almost any time."

Mr. Wilson expects to have the damages repaired by this morning.

In many portions of the city the flood caused serious damage. On Broadway, between Third and Fourth streets, the cedar paving was upheaved owing to the water getting beneath the blocks of wood and the planks on which they rest. At Ninth and St. Peter the catchbasin overflowed and the cellar of P. J. Dreis, druggist, was flooded, a quantity of stock being damaged. In the wholesale district a number of cellars were flooded, as also were the basements of the Hotel Ryan, chamber of commerce, Noyes Bros. & Cutler and the Northern

During the storm lightning struck the house of Mrs. J. Harrow, 869 Fuller street, tearing the shingles from the roof.

The chimney of the two-story residence of John Koch, 852 Francis street, was struck by the electric fluid, the bricks being scattered in all directions.
The house of Nick Heinricks, at 525 Van Buren street, was also struck, but no damage was done.

The superintendent of parks, in his fortnightly report, stated that the artesian well at Como park had been sunk to a depth of 340 feet but no flow of water had resulted. The chairman reported that upon reliable information he was of the opinion that the contractor had not the proper apparatus for successfully sinking the well. Commissioner Dale was appointed to select an expert and examine with him the work in progress and report the result at the next meeting of the board.

The superintendent further reported that he had at work sixteen men, one assistant gardener, one foreman and six teams. He advised that on Summit avenue 287 decayed trees should be replaced out of a total number of 1,342 trees. He further advised that Summit avenue, from Amherst to Prior avenue, should be sewered in order to promote the growth of the trees. The report was accepted and the board adjourned.

CURVES AND SWITCHES.

A New System of Track Construc-tion for the City Railway. Some new departures in track contruction and the building of curves, crossing and switchings are to be introduced into the Twin City electric system as Milwaukee imports. They are the designs of Julius Meyer, chief are the designs of Julius Meyer, chief engineer of the company in the Cream City, and have just been inspected by a party from St. Paul headed by W. F. Carr, chief engineer. The Milwaukee Sentinel says that Mr. Carr was highly pleased with the improvements and said that they would be adopted by his company on their lines in Minneapolis and St. Paul. Mr. Carr was very enthusiastic in his praise of Milwaukee's beauty and her business advantages, and could not find, words too strong to commend her system of street transit. He said:

This is my second visit to Milwaukee. I can also the said of the said that the said the commend her system of street transit. He said:

This is my second visit to Milwaukee. I enjoyed a drive about the city this morning and I was greatly surprised at what I saw. You have a beattiful city here, and a city that shows substantial marks of business and progress. Especially am I pleased with your street railway system, which is one of the best I have ever seen. Milwaukee ought to be a good paying town for street railways, as I notice that the city is thickly built up to the very end of the lines, which is something that I cannot say for Minneapolis, Our company has expended during the past two years over $6,00,000 in improvements. We now have 190 miles of track, equipped with the overhead center-pole electric system. When our contemplated extensions are completed we will have 23 miles of track, which will undoubtedly be the largest street railway system in the world. I have decided to adopt Mr. Meyer's curve-switch and crossing system, which is the best that has been produced. It occupies less space than the old style and is much more substantial. The center poles with which the Milwaukee city line is equipping its road are stronger than those used in Minneapolis and will prove very durable. The rails used here are also much heavier, weighing fifty-eight pounds to the yard, while in Minneapolis and St. Paul we use a forty-five and difty-pound rail.

Mr. Carr said that since the Twin City lines had been operated by electricity The complaint recites that in 1871 while in Minneapolis and St. Paul we use a forty-five and fifty-pound rail.

Mr. Carr said that since the Twin City lines had been operated by electricity their business had more than doubled.

The people want electric roads, 'said Mr. Carr. 'Our company spent $409,000 in preparing for a cable system, and now we have thrown away the plant and substituted electricity. This was done not alone because it was cheaper, but because the people demanded rapid transit, which can only be supplied by the electric system. On some of our lines the cars attain a speed as high as eighten miles an hour, while with a cable system a speed of only eight to twelve miles an hour can be secured. Our line between St. Pani and Minneapolis shows exclusively how popular an electric road can become. The road has only been in operation a short time, yet it controls nearly all the passenger traffic between the two cities. The railroads used to do a big business there but now they carry only a few pas sengers. The St. Paul road recently took off three passenger trains between the Twin Cities and has reduced the number of ears on the other trains. The Manitoba road also took off several trains lately. The fact was that the steam railways could not compete with the electric roads. The latter was much cheaper and in addition it afforded a finer ride to the passengers. We still have twenty miles of track operated by cable power, but it will be changed to an electric system as soon as we can get around to it.'

Mr. Carr said that the notion so hopefully entertained that center poles were much cheaper than side poles was very wrong, the fact being that they were much more expensive. Two side poles wrong, the fact being that they were much more expensive. Two side poles cost about $40, while a fine center pole, like those which will be used in the business section by the Milwaukee City company, costs from $50 to $60. Another thing which makes the center pole more expensive is the necessity of spreading the tracks an extra distance of two feet, which entails an additional expense for repair of the streets, which must be done by the company, and which agdone by the company, and which ag-gregates a considerable sum.

by Soli been on its march to a fearful and won-derful extent. Two weeks ago an eight-round contest between a couple of act-ive school boys came off, but the au-thorities were none the wiser. ive school boys came off, but the authorities were none the wiser. Emboldened by this flagrant disregard of law and order, came the affray of Wednesday night, which was a fight to a finish. The bad, bold pugilists were two men named respectively Riehardis and Kelly, both of whom are employed at Leip's. The latter recently came from Minneapolis, and the former is the son of the well-known boatman. Some fifty spectators, at 50 cents a head, enjoyed the sport. A ring was formed in the open air on the road from Ramaley's and the men went at it. Kelly displayed the greater science, but Richards was his superior in strength Kelly displayed the greater science, but Richards was his superior in strength and physical endurance, Kelly going down several times before his rushes. In the fifth round, Kelly came up a little grogsy, and after an exchange of light taps. Richards let go a righthanded swing which caught Kelly in the vicinity of the left eye and sent him heavily to grass, where he lay until counted out. A purse of $10 went to the winner, he generously adding a fraction to the small sum given his worsted opponent.

A Band Mustered Out. The Second regiment band, N. G. S. M., has been mustered out of the service by Adjt. Gen. Mullen. This course was taken at the recommendation of the officers of the regiment, but it is likely that the band will be reorganized in a more efficient way and then be musered in agaiu.
