THE STORY OF A DAY. Gov. Campbell, of Ohio, is ill. President Harrison passed Sunday at Sarasota.

When the venerable relics of a generation or two look upon the service recall the primitive eras, admiration and sympathy are likely to have place, in view of the harsher lines of life that enveloped them, and the nerve they were required to exercise.

IN THE OLD TIME. When the venerable relics of a generation or two look upon the service recall the primitive eras, admiration and sympathy are likely to have place, in view of the harsher lines of life that enveloped them, and the nerve they were required to exercise.

THE WORLD'S FAIR. Mr. Monfort raises a very interesting question when he inquires whether the comments of the country press are a fair index of popular sentiment in the communities where they circulate.

MANLY FORBEARANCE. The forbearance of wives with their husbands has frequent and extreme illustrations. How often is it noted that under the most brutal treatment, women to employ their retaliatory or protective agencies, the wifely heart shrinks from the ordeal, and she refuses to be contributory to their work.

LIAR, THIEF, VILLAIN! These words almost bring Two Millionaires to Blood.

SUNDAY CHATS. Hon. Henry Folie, the gentleman from Kaskaskia, had expected to return home yesterday, but his crops are beyond immediate attention.

THE FATS ON TOP. Special to the Globe. VALLEY CITY, N. D., Aug. 23.—A grand exhibition of base ball was given here today between the Fats and Leans.

THE FARMERS HOWL. They Do Not Like the Border Line Inspection. Special to the Globe. VALLEY CITY, N. D., Aug. 23.—A grand exhibition of base ball was given here today between the Fats and Leans.

THE COWBOYS TAKE ANOTHER TRIP TO DENVER. DENVER, Col., Aug. 23.—Denver today's game by bunching hits in the second inning. Kennedy was a puzzle to the Kansas City boys, and his support was almost perfect.

THE CLEANEST CITIES. The only regret that can be associated with a visit to St. Paul is that it is a noble, bluff, wide streets, imposing architecture, boulevard lined with stately mansions and a sun-drenched park which is simply perfection in bracing coolness, tempered by bright sunshine.

OMAHA TAKES ONE. GEORGIE MEELIN'S WILD WORK DID THE BUSINESS. ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 23.—Omaha took the second game of the series.

THE TWIN CITY LEAGUE. The meeting to organize the Twin City league of amateur base ball clubs will be held at the West hotel, Minneapolis, this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

WON BY MISS BALDWIN. She Takes Two Out of Three Heats From Miss Porte. A large crowd was attracted to Schlade's park yesterday afternoon by the announcement of a bicycle race between "Beauty" Baldwin and Georgie La Porte.

THE FATS ON TOP. Special to the Globe. VALLEY CITY, N. D., Aug. 23.—A grand exhibition of base ball was given here today between the Fats and Leans.

and progress. The house proved to have the broader and more enlightened spirit in the matter, and passed the bill with the barbaric feature removed. This was one of the points that went to the conference committee for settlement. It was a question to be determined upon the principle involved, and not one to be compromised on the point of expediency.

ECHOES FROM NEW ULM. There were many interesting orations and many interesting orators at New Ulm Saturday. Noteworthy among them was the oration of E. St. Julien.

not surprised at this fact discovered by the Chicago Inter Ocean in reference to the President of the world's fair. A little incident, however, is exceedingly emotional man, and modern science has demonstrated that his cornea are the seat of those emotions. That seems quite probable to the man who has a little corner on some of the prominent restaurants in New York trust their patrons to pay for the grub they eat, without presenting a check. It is claimed that the checks do not cut much figure. People are flattered at being treated as honest, but it would not do in Chicago.

A RECENT VISITOR TO WANAMAKER AT HIS summer residence found the excellent gentleman out in the garden, examining the cabbage heads. It is a matter of course that there was some difficulty in distinguishing the head of the cabbage man.

AT THE summer resorts it is quite the fashion for the young women to fish in the water when the young men are scarce. It is practice work.

IN THE PLUNDERING of the Keystone bank in Philadelphia by its officials, they are given credit for leaving the cellar.

IN THE WINGS. Manager Wells is elated over his strong attraction that opens the Olympic this evening. The Mabel Snow Spectacular Burlesque company promises for the first time in this city the "Midnight Sensation" and "Eve."

HOY'S "A Brass Monkey" will tempt the spirit that imbued the large audience of the Grand last night. It is a comedy largely of the order of the other Hoy plays, with the public more familiar. There is a vein of the burlesque in the play, but it is more the humor of situations than the humor of the dialogue.

IT makes a difference in the appearance of things whether you are from the tower. Looking at all this Republican furore about Blaine from the clearer perspective which comes from the tower, there is another Ben and Jim have a complete understanding and are playing it very fine on the other boys who have the presidential itch.

THE MINNEAPOLIS Tribune persists in finding consolation in election figures and percentages. "Well, after all, on his deathbed, remarked, 'I die, I die, I die.'"

THE MINNEAPOLIS Pioneer Press marvels at this day of this age of enlightenment. It can exist such morose and gloomy and breaths of ignorance, credulity and superstition as is now sending thousands of pilgrims to the Cook City, Mo., he had been there at a few moments when he was elected district recorder.

"When I was out there last week I made the acquaintance of the moving spirit of the place—it is a characteristic, isolated mining camp—and spent many hours listening to his quaint conversation. He is the rascalliest of the place, and is as full of originality, sayings and axioms as the Book of Proverbs. His name is Wyman, and he is accorded the sobriquet of 'Judge'—a sort of an honorific of respect on the part of the people.

"I asked the Judge one day how it was that Watson had made such remarkable political progress. He is a mere youth, and his refined manners one would suppose would tend to arouse the antipathy of the gruff, plain miners.

"Wall, stranger," said he, smiling about a minute before he answered my question. "I'll just tell you how it was. You see this young man came here a total stranger. We liked his looks. We kinder watched his career. We knew every move he made. He didn't drink; he didn't smoke; he didn't chew tobacco; he didn't even go into a saloon. Yet he wouldn't think we'd fancy any of that sort of thing. He was a stranger, let me put it that way. We had our own meeting. I didn't know who nor what the young chap was, but I did know that on our next meeting he'd be a right man for recorder. So I got up at the meeting."

"The old man gave us a beautiful panegyric on the climate, and then dilated upon the few indications of civilization they had there.

"Young man," he said to me one day, "go back to the aesthetic and effete East; go back and say to them that there is a Bible in Cook City. Say I own it. I was down in Chicago last summer, and I met a young fellow who was a minister. He asked me all about the wickedness of Montana, and I reckon I made him think I was the effeminate fellow he had heard of there. I told him I was mighty glad to get it, and I offered to pay him, but the goody man wouldn't have it. So I got it and I told him."

"That is a picture of one of the rough diamonds one meets up in the mountains," resumed Mr. Fitzgerald, lighting a fresh cigar. "There was another character. He was what Judge Wyman styled the only Chesterfield in the country. He evidently was a collector, and every time he had a new cigar he would take it out of his pocket and look at it.
