EXCITING YACHT RACE.

The Wind Plays Havoc With the Yachts at White Bear.

The third race of the series for the championship and for the possession of the White Bear Yachting association cup was sailed yesterday afternoon at White Bear. When starting time arrived it seemed as if the wind, which had been lacking on other racing days, had collected in one great, long blow for this particular occasion. The lake was lashed into angry white caps by the squally western breeze. All of the yachts were out, for the breeze promised an exciting contest, and there was excitement enough to last an entire season. When the first gun was fired some large black clouds rolled over, and the wind blew a furious gale. As the yachts, pitching and tossing in a most frightful manner, crossed the line and started on the long run before the wind to the Mahtomedi buoy, the sloops led. The Kitten, Fortuna and Storm King, Manitow and Shadow, closely followed, stood off together. The Merry Monarch, No Name, Victorie, Kelpie, Katharine, Nushka and Marjorie followed in the order named. Everything went smoothly until the yachts neared the first buoy, and there they got the full force of the breeze, as it came from the further end of the lake. Then it began to look as if some were going to get wet. The yachts swung broadside to side, plunging head foremost into waves, rolling five or six feet high, and the water ran over their decks, half-filling the cockpit. A gusty squall furious gust struck the fleet and all eyes were turned on the Fortuna. The little sloop gave a wild lurch and rolled over into the waves, filled with water and rolled over on her side completely capsized. Luckily her crew of six men were lively, and they scrambled to windward and sat in a low row on the gunwale until the sloop very manfully righted herself and floated on her side. The yachts near by were very wet but with their enthusiasm still undamped.

The Kelpie at this point met with an accident. The strain on the sail was tremendous, and as she neared the buoy her aft hatch gave out and water came her sail upon the deck. She managed to work in under the lee shore, where the injury was repaired, and, in spite of the fact that she was delayed about ten minutes, started after the rest of the fleet. The Katharine finding the wind too much for her dropped her sail and put in another reef. This lost her several minutes. The Nushka jibed around the buoy in fine style, and was walking to the front in her usual style when snap went the bobstay, and had to pause in her mad career. Her crew managed by laying to, to repair the accident so as to crawl home. While the rear yachts were having such an exciting time, the Kitten, Storm King and Manitow were having it out among themselves, with the Kitten in the lead. The Kitten, however, lost her lead by running too far up on the starboard tack, and the Storm King and Manitow sneaked in ahead of her, rounded buoy No. 2 and stood off for Delwood. These sloops maintained the same positions until the rest of the way around. The Kelpie began to do some fine work, handicapped by about ten minutes. She gained steadily on every yacht in the race, passed all of the cats, and pushed hard upon the leaders. The Merry Monarch and No Name fell behind, and were soon well toward the rear. On the second round the wind lightened for a few minutes, and the hard-worked crews took a little rest, but they soon needed all their nerve and muscle, for from the northwest a strong squall with a driving rain, swept swiftly across the lake. The captains were all ready, but the Kitten was caught napping. The wind struck her broadside and Capt. McKee and crew were nearly swept over into the dashing waves. They were fortunate in all being able to crawl up on the side, as the yacht floated like a cork. The unlucky crew were rescued by a naphtha launch, and a few hours work saw the Kitten once more right side up. The race now lay between the torn King and the Mani-

ton. Luther Newport sailed his boat like an old salt, and she led the fleet Manitow a pretty race. They came down on the home stretch, both crossing far over on their sides, and for the last mile, it was impossible to say which would round the home buoy first. The Storm King, however, held her lead, and amid great enthusiasm from the club house, rounded the home buoy the winner of the championship cup, and of the finest race ever sailed on White Bear. The actual time is as follows:

Storm King, L. E. Newport.....	3 15
Manitow, L. M. Hastings.....	3 45
Kelpie, G. L. Taylor.....	4 30
Katharine, W. H. Morton.....	13 19
No Name, A. P. Elmer.....	21 49
Merry Monarch, Howard Galusha.....	26 33
Nushka, L. P. Ordway, did not finish.
Shadow, C. S. Sweeney, did not finish.
Victorie, Dick O'Brien, did not finish.
Kitten, A. A. McKee, capsized.
Fortuna, J. M. Welch, capsized.
Marjorie, G. O. Nettleton, time not taken.

FREE DISSENTED.

Arbitrators and an Alleged Infraction of Railroad Law.

Railroad men, like those in all other business and professions, are frequently unable to agree. This was particularly so with the three arbitrators appointed by the Western States Passenger association to decide the case of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Company vs. The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, the charge being that an agent of the defendant company had directed a ticket purchaser to the office of a scalper in violation of rule 5 of the association. When the case was brought before Chairman Finley he decided against the Omaha and assessed the usual fine. The latter appealed to the association, and the matter was referred to three arbitrators, Messrs. Fee, Whitney and Davis for decision. Several days ago the two latter referees overruled Mr. Finley. Mr. Fee, however, did not agree with his conferees, and yesterday his dissenting opinion standing, Mr. Fee's dissenting opinion follows:

I cannot admit that as arbitrators our rights to construe the rules are any less than those possessed by the chairman. I think the preponderance of evidence goes to show that the ticket agent of the defendant company was well aware of the intentions of the purchaser of the mileage ticket in question, and that by acts of both commission and omission he gave evidence of abetting and forwarding the interests of his company through the ticket broker. Rule 5 sets forth in exact language the ordinary terms covering the usual transactions of the ticket broker, but the last clause of the same sentence goes quite beyond this and states that agents of the lines in the association shall not be held liable for "brokerage business." Now if this term "brokerage business" is synonymous with the term "brokerage business" in the fore part of the same sentence, then the framers of the agreement were guilty of a repetition; but such a repetition on the ability of these gentlemen cannot be entertained for a moment. While perhaps there is nothing in the evidence that points conclusively to a pre-concerted arrangement between the ticket agent and the broker, I maintain that the moment the agent, being advised of the intentions of the purchaser, at the knowledge or acquiescence that he evidently possessed of the broker or his transactions for any purpose other than to defraud the proposed manipulation by which the ticket was to be secured, he was guilty not only of an infraction of the spirit of the agreement, but of doing brokerage business, and consequently a violation of rule 5.

Yours truly, CHARLES S. FEE.
