FLOUR CITY FINDS.

A Laborer Is Instantly Killed by an Unmanageable Team of Horses.

John Lund in Court With One Shoe Off and One Shoe On.

Prosecution and Defense Give Evidence in the McIntyre Assault Case.

Other News of the Day Gathered by Envoys of the Globe.

An itinerant laborer, employed by the Iowa state stable on Second avenue north, between Washington and Third street, whose first name was John, but whose further identity is shrouded in mystery, was killed yesterday afternoon while driving a refractory team. John Lund, driver of the team, was out for training, and soon after he had left the barn the horses became unmanageable and he applied the whip. This maddened the animals, and they started down Second avenue at a furious pace. At the corner of Fourth street they collided with a team of four horses, the driver of which had struck the pole and he fell senseless to the walk, and, although several physicians were at once called, he died within a few moments.

It is believed that the cause of death was a fracture of the skull, but an autopsy will be held to-morrow to determine if. Deceased had worked about the Iowa stables for several months past, but even the foreman of the establishment did not know his surname. He was addicted to drink, and for that reason was not paid a regular salary, but in return for his services was furnished with his board and other necessities. The remains are now at Connolly's morgue.

IN A DILEMMA.

John Lund in Court With One Shoe Off and One Shoe On.

That history repeats itself is not questioned by those who attend the municipal court officers who saw John Lund appear yesterday with "one shoe off and one shoe on." John related to the court that his other shoe had been stolen by one H. M. Brown, and Brown was accordingly arrested. John Lund, however, found that he was not the right Brown and he was released.

MINIATURE ASSAULT CASE.

Further Evidence Given by Various Witnesses.

The case against Thomas McIntyre for assaulting little ten-year-old Katie Kusiek was continued yesterday morning. The little one herself was placed on the stand and told her story very reluctantly. The acts of McIntyre were told, and how he had repeated them on five different occasions. Police surgeon Gibson testified to examining the child six months after the alleged assault, but found no marks of violence. There were no unattractive evidences, and the assault, in his opinion, might have been committed by any man.

Sadie Kusiek, an elder sister, testified to finding stains on her sister's clothes on the evening of Dec. 23. She did not mention the fact to her mother, as she was ill, but told her grandmother some time afterwards. She also told Miss Nell at the time of finding the stains. The state rested at the conclusion of the sister's evidence.

The accused himself was the first witness called for the defense. He denied all the charges in his defense. He said he had never at any time touched or bothered the girl in any manner. He was in Chicago when he first heard of the charges and sent word that he would return and face his accusers, which he did. He and Kusiek had been very good friends formerly, but on the advice of Father Ryan, of Chicago, he had not spoken to Kusiek since his return. Before he went to Chicago he had loaned Kusiek money enough to pay the funeral expenses of his wife. Mrs. Celia Kelly was called by the state to give evidence in rebuttal as to the character of Katie Kusiek.

YELLED CHESTNUTS.

An Italian Paralyzed the Judge of the Municipal Court.

The municipal court is hardly the place that one would naturally seek as a place of amusement, but it is nevertheless a fact that the proceedings are frequently enlivened in the most unexpected manner by incidents of an amusing nature. Yesterday afternoon four Italian street fakers, who gave their names as John Langos, Mike Wylea, John Basoles and Raphael Solomon, were brought in charged with obstructing the street with their stands. Langos, Solomon and Wylea had been operating chestnut roasters and Solomon had been selling the "sweet banana." None of them could speak more than a few words of English and Judge Elliott found great difficulty in eliciting any intelligible information from them, but finally he arrived at the conclusion that all were guilty, and proceeded so to state. Just at this point, however, Basoles became possessed of the idea that the court did not fully understand his position, so, by way of explanation, he interjected the word "chestnuts."

Judge Elliott appeared surprised and frowned, but, grasping the situation, proceeded with his remarks, but as soon as he was well started the dago again exclaimed "chestnuts."

This was too much for the crowd of bystanders, and an outburst of laughter followed. After a few moments, however, quiet was restored, and the court levied a fine of $2 each upon the prisoners.

THEY ARE INDIGNANT.

The Civil Rights Committee to Test the Separate Car Matter.

"Nothing has come up in the affairs of our race that has created such profound indignation as this matter of 'separate cars in the South,' as it is called," said Rev. J. W. Dunwoody, pastor of the Bethesda (colored) Baptist church, to a GLOBE reporter last evening, and there was no mistaking the fact that his indignation had run beyond restraint. "Why," he exclaimed, "there is no Democrat in the North that would think of such an outrageous system. It is a disgrace to American civilization that an orderly and gentlemanly colored man cannot have the same railway transportation facilities as are given to the white man, and that he is being refused to pay for it. We purpose making a test case of this insult. The civil rights committee will try to raise among the colored citizens of the United States $100,000, with which to take the matter into the supreme court of the United States. From ratings and decisions upon civil rights themselves in the past we have a right to expect a victory there."

Mr. Dunwoody stated that all the colored pastors are to speak upon the subject from their pulpits this evening, and they aver that the agitation will be continued until the fund shall have been raised to take the case into the supreme court. He further stated that a kooly subscription had already been started in Minneapolis for the subject.

Presented With a Canoe.

George W. Sargent left last evening to take a fiduciary position with Schueman & Evans in their new store in St. Paul. A number of the lady employees of the Donaldson bank took occasion to present their compliments in appreciation of kindness in an elegant canoe by the name of "The Boat," bearing a handsome monogram. Friday evening a pleasant surprise was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Sargent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Jacobs, 111 South Seventh street. It was a farewell party, and although their friends were not present, their departure to St. Paul, the evening was happily passed.

Resolutions were passed that a paper should be read at every meeting, to be published in the New York Life Insurance building, are open every day to inquirers from 9 to 4 p. m.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The press of the state has fallen into the very natural error that the supreme court decision in the matter of the test of validity of wheat option contracts is final. It was the case of Oscar Mohr against Anton Miesien, and it merely came before the supreme court on an appeal from the circuit below on the denial of a motion for a new trial. However, the temper of the syllabus and opinion, given by Justice Vandenberg, very plainly indicate that the court holds that deals ostensibly for future deliveries, but without expectation or intention on the part of either party to the transaction illegal.

Real love transcends everything, and it always makes a desperate effort with varying success, according to conditions—to overcome all obstacles and span every difficulty that interrupts the one's determination to marry. This being true, there is at least one of plausibility in the story that Edward Davis, member of parliament from Montgomeryshire, is in this country on a deliciously romantic mission. He arrived in Minneapolis yesterday via the Soo, and is accompanied by Dr. David Lloyd Jones, an eminent Welsh divine. Rumor spies the event with love, and an accomplished lady is the heroine of the romance. It is not unlikely that there is an English law—which ought to be relegated to the limbo of the forgotten—which prohibits a man from marrying his deceased wife's sister. As the Hon. Davis' cup of happiness cannot ever be filled to completion until he has married just what his law forbids, and as such absurdities as the English statutes embody in such cases are not a part of the nuptial conditions here, Mr. Davis has invited both his pastor and his fiancée to a country where the liberty he craves is legalized. It is not related just what the ceremony will be celebrated, but it will be soon.

Varsity Kickers.

The university football team is in active practice for the coming struggle with the St. Clouds, the Minnesota and possibly the Carletons, white teams likely that another game will be played here with the Wisconsin Varsity team, and games with Grinnell, Beloit, and it is not impossible that they may play in Arbor, for a correspondence to that end has been on for some time. Morrison, the former Yale "full-back," and Hefzinger have been coaching the boys more or less of late.

Who Owns It?

The ownership of the Theater Company, on First avenue south, has long been a disputed question. It was thought that the names of the owners would be brought out by a suit against W. W. Brown, the lessee, brought by Harrison & Smith to recover $400 on a printing bill. The case was dismissed yesterday when called, as the amount had been paid.

Protested Too Late.

Yesterday Frank L. Olson appeared before Judge Smith on a motion to have his name changed to Frank L. Palmer. Just as Judge Smith granted the order an excited individual bearing the name of Olson, who had been in court, protesting against granting the order, as there was another person besides himself with that cognomen. He was too late, however.

SELF MURDERS.

Since the new year the Jefferson club has been in a state of peaceful desuetude. Not because it is dead, however, but because it has no active present mission, and action always has been the real life and usefulness of the organization. It is largely composed of men who are connected with the affairs of the day—business men and bread-winners. It never was, in other words, a social organization.

Since the political spirit has commenced to move there is talk of renewing the meetings of the club. Jackson day is to be commemorated in a fitting way, and it is thought best that the club get into the harness before the parade. In this regard, Jackson arrives, again, it is contemplated to attend the next national convention in a body, and the subject of a uniform for the members is being discussed. A long time in advance. Surely those who attended the last convention, held in St. Louis, will never forget the inspiring sight of the many clubs, halting on all the leading cities of the union, and numbering thousands in the aggregate, in their neat uniforms, as they paraded the streets to martial music. Minneapolis should not take rank behind any city of its size at the next convention, and it is likely that the Jefferson club will not permit such an event.

A Costly Quarantine.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—A telegram was received at the treasury department today from Mr. De Young, of San Francisco, saying that the property selected as a site for the public building, which cost over a million, is a quarantine and that it will require more than a million dollars to be expended in the building. Secretary Foster said that this was the first intimation he had received that there was anything wrong with the site selected, and he could scarcely believe the statement.

The Right Party Dead.

CHICAGO, Mo., Oct. 10.—John McFarland, a stenographer, shot his wife and then suicided at the McKinley hotel here today. He abused his wife and she left him a month ago. He stopped her on the street this afternoon, dragged her into the hotel, shot her in the head and then blew out his own brains. Mrs. McFarland will recover.

Don't Want a Woman.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 10.—At a meeting of representative live stock breeders of the United States held in this city last night, resolutions were adopted protesting against the appointment of a woman as chief of the live stock department of the world's Columbian exposition at Chicago.

Contract Laborers Held.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Thirty-eight Italians, who arrived yesterday from Marsellus, have been held as contract laborers. They had been engaged on the other side to work at La Portage, O., as railroad laborers at $1.30 per day each, and had their passage paid to this country.

Aliens Can Buy in Texas.

WACO, Tex., Oct. 10.—This morning District Judge Goodrich held that the alien land law passed by the last legislature was unconstitutional and void. The law excluded foreigners from buying or loaning money on Texas land, and created a severe money stringency throughout the state.

Congressional Nominations.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—W. Bourke Cockran was nominated for congress by the Democrats of the tenth district to-night. The Republicans of the district to furnish money towards the required fund, pro rata, according to the assessed value of the property. The plan will put more than half the burden upon the Twin Cities, while some counties will have to contribute merely a nominal sum.

Will Enforce the Ordinance.

Meat Inspector Davis has already assumed the duties of bread inspector, delegated to him by the council at its meeting of Sept. 25. Yesterday all the bakeries and groceries of the city were visited and furnished with printed copies of the ordinance, and notified that they must comply with its provisions.

The ordinance provides that all single loaves shall weigh 16 ounces, and all double loaves 32 ounces. Any departure from this rule will subject the offender to a fine of not more than $25. Every loaf not stamped or tagged with the name of the maker and his place of business will be confiscated and turned over to the city poor.

Inspector Davis announces that he intends to enforce the ordinance to the letter. He says there are forty-eight bakeries in the city, and while there is but little fault to be found with them as a rule, there are a few that are not kept clean, and he proposes to make an example of if a change is not soon inaugurated.

The university football team is in active practice for the coming struggle with the St. Clouds, the Minnesota and possibly the Carletons, white teams likely that another game will be played here with the Wisconsin Varsity team, and games with Grinnell, Beloit, and it is not impossible that they may play in Arbor, for a correspondence to that end has been on for some time.
