

WHISKY KILLED HIM.

Pat Killen Was Knocked Out of Time by John Alcohol.

His Last Victory Followed by a Course of Great Debauchery.

Denny Takes the Body Back to Philadelphia for Burial.

The Pugilistic Career of the Man Once of Great Promise.

Dennis Killen, the brother of the dead pugilist, reached Chicago yesterday, and last night left for Philadelphia, taking with her the embalmed body of his brother, to be buried at his former home. There is no doubt that excessive drinking caused Killen's death. Since he fought Ferguson, says yesterday's Chicago Times, he has been dissipating extensively, and several of his friends warned him a few days ago that unless he stopped drinking so hard he would have delirium tremens. He was not heedful of their warnings, and continued to "fill up" until his system was in a horrible state. Tuesday morning he bore every evidence of being on the verge of an attack, and the predictions of his friends were verified in the afternoon, when he became decidedly violent in his speech and actions. His little baby, only fifteen months old, was taken from the room, and Dr. Carey was called to attend him. Killen was found to be suffering from a severe attack of erysipelas. His left side was swollen badly, and the doctor said he was in an extremely dangerous condition. Tuesday morning, in his delirium, Killen rose and dressed himself, but he was very violent, and when he was finally induced to go to bed again he went to his room under the impression that some one was following him to take his life.

His Condition Becomes Alarming. His condition became so alarming during the forenoon that Mrs. Killen called a second physician, who said, as soon as he saw her husband lying dying. The doctor said the erysipelas was undoubtedly brought on by alcoholism.

A man who is addicted to the constant use of alcoholic stimulants, he continued, "is extremely liable to erysipelas if he takes cold. Killen's death was due entirely to his drinking habits." When the doctor arrived Killen was very delirious, and was evidently under the delusion that he was being followed by some one. He laughed and talked constantly, and frequently referred to "his father-in-law." Mrs. Killen was told that it would be a miracle if her husband recovered, but that did not appear to be greatly surprised, but simply said: "Well, he would insist on drinking all the time."

As the afternoon wore on Killen became quieter, and gradually dropped into a comatose condition, and soon the only motion discernible was a nervous plucking at the bedclothes. The physician of his pulse grew fainter and fainter, until about 3:30 o'clock it ceased entirely.

Killen's Brother Notified. A telegram was sent to his brother, who lives in St. Paul, asking him to come here immediately. He will arrive this morning. The body has been embalmed, but Mrs. Killen said last evening that until her brother-in-law arrives she should not decide as to its disposal.

It will either be taken immediately to Philadelphia, where Killen's father, his mother live, or it will be placed in a vault here for a time.

Killen was born in Philadelphia twenty-eight years ago. He was six feet tall and weighed in condition close to 200. He was looked upon as one of the cleverest heavy-weight boxers in America, and a strong hitter. By defeating Patsy Cardiff he gained the heavy-weight championship of the Northwest, a title he held until his death. Killen was a big, uncouth, whole-souled, good-natured fellow. Like a good many leading fighters, he had no money, which came in large parcels, had no value to him, and he squandered it as fast as he made it. He might have retired with a fortune, but he never had not been so extravagant. Four years ago he was regarded as Sullivan's successful rival. He had got backing to fight any heavyweight in America except John L., but fast living and too many convivial friends sent him down.

Killen's Debut as a Boxer. Killen made his debut as a boxer at the Club theater, Philadelphia, Sept. 5, 1881, on which occasion he defeated H. Stoddard in one minute. He won his easy victory over Stoddard, who at that time was considered a fighter of no mean ability, gave Pat quite a local reputation. He defeated Stoddard in one round at Theatre Comique, Philadelphia, Sept. 2, 1884. Killen's next appearance was at the Park theater, Chicago, Sept. 10, 1885, where he knocked Jack Morris out in one round. He defeated Joe Lannon in eight rounds at St. Paul, Nov. 1, 1885, and won his arm in the first round. Two months later he beat Dick Burke in one round at the Park theater, Chicago. A week later he knocked out George Graham in two rounds in Louisville, Ky.

Killen went on an exhibition tour after this, and met and defeated the following men: Mike Smith in three rounds at Cincinnati, O.; John Hughes in one round at the same place; Bill Jordan in two rounds at the same place; Jim Brady in thirty-three rounds at Milwaukee, Wis.; Mike Haley at Omaha, Neb.; and two rounds; Dell Stalke at Eau Claire, Wis.—no time taken; Mervin Thompson in five rounds at Minneapolis, Minn., in 1887; Capt. James Dalton, of Chicago, in one round at Minneapolis in 1888; Dan Donnelly in two rounds at Paul in 1889; Duncane C. McDonald in twenty-five seconds at Minneapolis in 1889; John Cook and D. H. Smith, both in four rounds at Duluth, Minn., in 1889; Patsy McDonald in four rounds at Duluth, Minn., in 1889; Patsy Cardiff in a ten-round draw at St. Paul, 1889; knocked out Patsy Cardiff in four rounds at St. Paul in 1887; Corporal Tommy at Miles City, 1888—no time taken; Jack Fraser in two rounds at Spokane Falls in 1888.

Defeated by Joe McAniff. Killen from Spokane Falls went to San Francisco, Cal., where he was matched to fight with Joe McAniff, in which he met his first defeat in six rounds. Killen, while in San Francisco and previous to his fight, was arrested several times for being drunk and disorderly; and, if reports be true, he was under the influence of liquor during the greater part of his stay on the coast, which, no doubt, was the cause of the poor showing he made against the big Californian. His fight with Joe Sheehy, "the Cambial," which took place at St. Paul Sept. 14, 1890, was a free-for-all, and a rough-and-tumble affair, seconds and spectators alike taking a hand in the fight. Both parties claimed the victory, but the referee, after the Sheehy mob had dispersed, decided in favor of Killen.

Killen's Last Battle. Pat's last battle was with Bob Ferguson, the stockyards champion. It took place within 100 miles of Chicago Oct. 11, and was an easy win for Killen, six rounds being sufficient for Ferguson, who lay down in the sixth round to save himself from further punishment, Killen escaping without a scratch.

Killen, who had been in the saloon business in St. Paul for the last four years, arrived in Chicago a few months ago and embarked in the liquor business with Thomas Burke at 308 South Canal street. While Killen attended to business the saloon paid very well, but of late he neglected everything, especially since his fight with Ferguson, and a few days ago the place was closed because of lack of patronage.

BETWEEN TWO FIRES.

Hon. Nate Kingsley and His Coming Political Aspirations.

A Reminiscence of the Celebrated Wasca Convention of 'Eighty.

The Ellis Abduction Case on Trial in the District Court.

A Plaintive Story Told by the Childish Lips of the Victim.

Congressman or Judge—Which? The presence of Hon. Nate Kingsley, of Austin, in the city yesterday when so many other prominent First district politicians were on hand led to a great deal of political talk. For some time Mr. Kingsley has been discussed as a probable and likely candidate for congress in the First district, but he has been dead to all attempts to ascertain his views and intentions in regard to it. Close upon the advent of his boom for congressional honors Mr. Kingsley was brought out as a good man to succeed Judge Farmer on the district court bench in the old Sherman Page district, and upon this matter the eloquent "Roman" by G. Holzhaender, and "mum" than upon the subject of running for congress.

On the Oath of a Child. Grace May Ellis Tells Her Story in the Abduction Case.

Ida Shenk, David Watson and William Demars are being tried before Judge Otis and a jury upon an indictment alleging the abduction of Grace May Ellis of Minneapolis, for immoral purposes, she being a girl under the age of fourteen years. A jury was secured yesterday afternoon with little difficulty. Quite a collection of witnesses, friends and spectators were assembled in the court room when the trial for presenting the testimony began, among them being several members of the bar.

The Duluth Backs Out. And the Paving of East Fourth Street Falls Through.

The board of public works yesterday confirmed the assessments for the grading of Sixth street, from Commercial street to Maria avenue, at the estimated cost of $14,575.65.

In the matter of paving East Fourth street, the whole of the proceedings have dropped through. The engineer's estimate for the work was close upon $20,000, and after months of negotiation the property owners on one side of the street who were opposed to the improvement finally prepared themselves in favor of it, on condition that the St. Paul & Duluth road, whose freight houses are on the other side of the street, would defray half the cost of the improvement. This the railroad company agreed to do, and the proceedings under the regular routine of the board of public works office and the council. Yesterday the board proposed to open bids which had been advertised for, but all were rejected, for at the last moment a letter was received from General Manager Plonch, of the Duluth road, withdrawing the offer to pay half the cost of the improvement.

The board has for two years considered that the paving of Fourth street from Commercial street to the railroad is in a fearful condition, but naturally the property owners on one side of the street objected to being assessed for the total cost of the improvement. The railroad company on the opposite side was exempt from assessment by state law.

Money to Loan on Good Security at the State of Savings Bank, Germania Life & Loan Co., and Germania Life & Loan Co., St. Paul, Nov. 1, 1888; Capt. James Dalton, of Chicago, in one round at Minneapolis in 1888; Dan Donnelly in two rounds at Paul in 1889; Duncane C. McDonald in twenty-five seconds at Minneapolis in 1889; John Cook and D. H. Smith, both in four rounds at Duluth, Minn., in 1889; Patsy McDonald in four rounds at Duluth, Minn., in 1889; Patsy Cardiff in a ten-round draw at St. Paul, 1889; knocked out Patsy Cardiff in four rounds at St. Paul in 1887; Corporal Tommy at Miles City, 1888—no time taken; Jack Fraser in two rounds at Spokane Falls in 1888.

Defeated by Joe McAniff. Killen from Spokane Falls went to San Francisco, Cal., where he was matched to fight with Joe McAniff, in which he met his first defeat in six rounds. Killen, while in San Francisco and previous to his fight, was arrested several times for being drunk and disorderly; and, if reports be true, he was under the influence of liquor during the greater part of his stay on the coast, which, no doubt, was the cause of the poor showing he made against the big Californian. His fight with Joe Sheehy, "the Cambial," which took place at St. Paul Sept. 14, 1890, was a free-for-all, and a rough-and-tumble affair, seconds and spectators alike taking a hand in the fight. Both parties claimed the victory, but the referee, after the Sheehy mob had dispersed, decided in favor of Killen.

Killen's Last Battle. Pat's last battle was with Bob Ferguson, the stockyards champion. It took place within 100 miles of Chicago Oct. 11, and was an easy win for Killen, six rounds being sufficient for Ferguson, who lay down in the sixth round to save himself from further punishment, Killen escaping without a scratch.

Killen, who had been in the saloon business in St. Paul for the last four years, arrived in Chicago a few months ago and embarked in the liquor business with Thomas Burke at 308 South Canal street. While Killen attended to business the saloon paid very well, but of late he neglected everything, especially since his fight with Ferguson, and a few days ago the place was closed because of lack of patronage.

Defeated by Joe McAniff. Killen from Spokane Falls went to San Francisco, Cal., where he was matched to fight with Joe McAniff, in which he met his first defeat in six rounds. Killen, while in San Francisco and previous to his fight, was arrested several times for being drunk and disorderly; and, if reports be true, he was under the influence of liquor during the greater part of his stay on the coast, which, no doubt, was the cause of the poor showing he made against the big Californian. His fight with Joe Sheehy, "the Cambial," which took place at St. Paul Sept. 14, 1890, was a free-for-all, and a rough-and-tumble affair, seconds and spectators alike taking a hand in the fight. Both parties claimed the victory, but the referee, after the Sheehy mob had dispersed, decided in favor of Killen.

Killen's Last Battle. Pat's last battle was with Bob Ferguson, the stockyards champion. It took place within 100 miles of Chicago Oct. 11, and was an easy win for Killen, six rounds being sufficient for Ferguson, who lay down in the sixth round to save himself from further punishment, Killen escaping without a scratch.

Killen, who had been in the saloon business in St. Paul for the last four years, arrived in Chicago a few months ago and embarked in the liquor business with Thomas Burke at 308 South Canal street. While Killen attended to business the saloon paid very well, but of late he neglected everything, especially since his fight with Ferguson, and a few days ago the place was closed because of lack of patronage.

Defeated by Joe McAniff. Killen from Spokane Falls went to San Francisco, Cal., where he was matched to fight with Joe McAniff, in which he met his first defeat in six rounds. Killen, while in San Francisco and previous to his fight, was arrested several times for being drunk and disorderly; and, if reports be true, he was under the influence of liquor during the greater part of his stay on the coast, which, no doubt, was the cause of the poor showing he made against the big Californian. His fight with Joe Sheehy, "the Cambial," which took place at St. Paul Sept. 14, 1890, was a free-for-all, and a rough-and-tumble affair, seconds and spectators alike taking a hand in the fight. Both parties claimed the victory, but the referee, after the Sheehy mob had dispersed, decided in favor of Killen.

Killen's Last Battle. Pat's last battle was with Bob Ferguson, the stockyards champion. It took place within 100 miles of Chicago Oct. 11, and was an easy win for Killen, six rounds being sufficient for Ferguson, who lay down in the sixth round to save himself from further punishment, Killen escaping without a scratch.

Killen, who had been in the saloon business in St. Paul for the last four years, arrived in Chicago a few months ago and embarked in the liquor business with Thomas Burke at 308 South Canal street. While Killen attended to business the saloon paid very well, but of late he neglected everything, especially since his fight with Ferguson, and a few days ago the place was closed because of lack of patronage.

Defeated by Joe McAniff. Killen from Spokane Falls went to San Francisco, Cal., where he was matched to fight with Joe McAniff, in which he met his first defeat in six rounds. Killen, while in San Francisco and previous to his fight, was arrested several times for being drunk and disorderly; and, if reports be true, he was under the influence of liquor during the greater part of his stay on the coast, which, no doubt, was the cause of the poor showing he made against the big Californian. His fight with Joe Sheehy, "the Cambial," which took place at St. Paul Sept. 14, 1890, was a free-for-all, and a rough-and-tumble affair, seconds and spectators alike taking a hand in the fight. Both parties claimed the victory, but the referee, after the Sheehy mob had dispersed, decided in favor of Killen.

Killen's Last Battle. Pat's last battle was with Bob Ferguson, the stockyards champion. It took place within 100 miles of Chicago Oct. 11, and was an easy win for Killen, six rounds being sufficient for Ferguson, who lay down in the sixth round to save himself from further punishment, Killen escaping without a scratch.

Killen, who had been in the saloon business in St. Paul for the last four years, arrived in Chicago a few months ago and embarked in the liquor business with Thomas Burke at 308 South Canal street. While Killen attended to business the saloon paid very well, but of late he neglected everything, especially since his fight with Ferguson, and a few days ago the place was closed because of lack of patronage.

Defeated by Joe McAniff. Killen from Spokane Falls went to San Francisco, Cal., where he was matched to fight with Joe McAniff, in which he met his first defeat in six rounds. Killen, while in San Francisco and previous to his fight, was arrested several times for being drunk and disorderly; and, if reports be true, he was under the influence of liquor during the greater part of his stay on the coast, which, no doubt, was the cause of the poor showing he made against the big Californian. His fight with Joe Sheehy, "the Cambial," which took place at St. Paul Sept. 14, 1890, was a free-for-all, and a rough-and-tumble affair, seconds and spectators alike taking a hand in the fight. Both parties claimed the victory, but the referee, after the Sheehy mob had dispersed, decided in favor of Killen.

HAMMIE'S ACTIVE.

The Tenth Ward Center Will Not Be Behind in the Race.

An Enthusiastic Meeting of the Citizen's Union Last Night.

The Philharmonics Make Delicous Music to Few Auditors.

Hackmen Organize and Cigar-makers Support the Clerks.

The Hamline Citizens' union is one of the most progressive and active organizations of the Midway district. Composed of the property owners, it is largely together for the purpose of obtaining advantages and improvements for this suburb which other gain through being controlled by wealthy corporations, and it is mainly due to its efforts that Hamline is taking on an urban and keeping pace with her rapidly developing sister parks. To increase its influence and secure social distinction, the union entertained its friends at the annual banquet in Macdonald hall last evening. It was a most delightful event and highly enjoyed by all.

Boys' Double-Breasted Suits, Natty and trim, at the "Plymouth."

Supreme Court Routine. The following cases were considered in the supreme court yesterday: Fred Althen, respondent, vs. Eva Larbot, et al., appellant, argued and submitted; Fred Althen, respondent, vs. J. B. Tardiff, appellant, argued and submitted; The Hamline Citizens' union, et al., respondents, vs. F. G. Sherwood, et al., appellants, argued and submitted; Chester Koch, respondent, vs. Hans E. Peterson, appellant, argued and submitted; John E. Dyer, respondent, vs. The Metzger Medicine Company, appellant, ordered for trial; and ex-Congressman Darius, order entered, judgment affirmed.

Short Lived Liberty. Sarah Webster, who has been confined in jail for the past few days in default of $1,500 bail to stand trial for keeping a house of unlawful resort at the corner of St. Peter and Ninth streets, was released yesterday by a writ of habeas corpus. She is now in the hands of Fred Schroeder being sureties. Her release of liberty was of short duration, however, as a few hours after the jail door was opened she was arrested by Mr. Schroeder, one of her sureties, who asked to be released. A. E. Haines stated that another nurse would be furnished in the meantime. Sarah again looks through prison bars.

Rise in Seal Skins Exaggerated. The Plymouth fur department are making prices on genuine Alaska seal garments but slightly advanced over last year's prices. The market is a high-priced talk of the average furrier.

NOTES OF NEWS. J. A. Ward, of Pierre, S. D., called at the state house yesterday.

S. G. Roberts, of Rapid City, S. D., was at the state house yesterday.

Hon. Jesse Meloy, of Red Wing, was one of yesterday's visitors at the capitol.

O. C. Greig, superintendent of farmers' institutions, was at the state house yesterday.

Ex-county Attorney Odell, of Carver county, called on the attorney general yesterday.

General Order Post No. 42, G. A. R., will have a regular meeting and must to-night in their hall on Broadway.

Capt. E. L. Reed, of Glance, captain of Company B, Third regiment, called at the adjutant general's office yesterday.

Gospel temperance meeting at the fronting hall of the city yesterday, 7:30 o'clock this evening. Good music and speaking.

Starling fever was reported at 8th Street, 10th Central avenue, 73 Maria avenue, and at 10th and 11th streets, at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

The receipts of the St. Cloud reformatory for the month of September as reported to the board of directors, was $1,700.00. $1,500 was received from the sale of stone.

S. Gannon, a young man, who while drunk, went home to his father's house and smashed all the hardware in the place, was yesterday taken to the municipal court sent out to come for thirty days.

W. Baldwin and George Metts, two of the boys who burglarized a cigar store on Fifth street last night, were yesterday taken to the municipal court to ninety days in the workhouse.

A little girl four years old was found by Officer Call yesterday morning wandering on Jackson street, near Third. She was taken to police headquarters, where she was detained for the day.

John Conroy, an old drunkard, who has been under arrest a number of times, was yesterday sentenced in the municipal court to thirty days in the workhouse for being disorderly and carrying on a nuisance.

The body of James Murphy, who was killed in Duluth Wednesday evening by a street car, was yesterday taken to the city morgue for the purpose of being buried.

Capt. Hamt, of Margaret street police station, who has been in a critical condition for some time, was yesterday taken to the city hospital, where he is being treated.

The funeral of Dr. Stein, the well-known veterinary surgeon who committed suicide on Monday evening by taking prussic acid, was held yesterday from the residence of the deceased on Houston street. The interment was at Oakland cemetery.

Abraham Silberstein, one of the boys implicated in the robbery at Clancy's Turkish bath, was yesterday taken to the municipal court and warned that at a future date he would be held responsible for any further misbehavior on his part would result in his being sent to the reform school.

An announcement that Acher post, G. A. R., would meet at 7:30 o'clock this evening was an error. The post held a regular meeting in the hall, corner Third and Washington streets, last night. The members present, and the proceedings, were stated to be merely of the usual routine order.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians will give a grand ball this evening at Market hall, the event being the social season of the order in Ramsey county. The state officers and a large contingent from Minneapolis, Stillwater and Hastings will be present, and a most delightful time can be expected to follow.

Michael Barrett and his wife again made their appearance in the municipal court yesterday on charges of disorderly conduct. The wife was dismissed after receiving a warning from the court, while Michael, who was very violent, went out to the workhouse for ten days. His wife was again closed up and they would go there the next morning. The men returned to the room and Watson tried to induce the child to go to a separate room with him, but she refused to do so and began to cry. She was quieted down and Watson, who had been sitting on the floor, sat on his knee. The two men undressed, and together with Ida Shenk occupied the bed, while Grace May Watson, who had been sitting on the floor, sat on the bed. Watson subsequently went to the lounge and attempted liberties with Ida Shenk, who was sitting on the bed. The night clerk of the hotel came to the door and asked as to the trouble. He was told that it was only a slight trouble, but that the men and his wife, and the child was the wife of one of the men and had three children. After that the girl was quieted and told she would not be harmed. She then went to sleep on the lounge and slept until after 1 o'clock in the morning. The men left the lodging house together. The man separated from them on the street. After breakfast Ida Shenk took the girl to her sister's room on Broadway, and she told the girl when she asked about the position in the candy store that it was "only a bluff."

They went to the girl's aunt's in the afternoon, where she stayed over night. Tuesday morning she returned to her home in Minneapolis in company with her aunt. "The experience of the defendants followed the next day. It was gathered from the statements of Mr. McTear that the defense will attempt to prove that the child's mother had not lived a chaste life, with a view of effecting the force of the prosecution. The trial was on a witness stand at the hour of adjournment.

JACKSON ACQUITTED. The Revenue Collector Yields, but Asserts His Rights. The jury yesterday acquitted Andrew Jackson on an indictment of selling liquor in the city yesterday when so many other prominent First district politicians were on hand led to a great deal of political talk. For some time Mr. Kingsley has been discussed as a probable and likely candidate for congress in the First district, but he has been dead to all attempts to ascertain his views and intentions in regard to it. Close upon the advent of his boom for congressional honors Mr. Kingsley was brought out as a good man to succeed Judge Farmer on the district court bench in the old Sherman Page district, and upon this matter the eloquent "Roman" by G. Holzhaender, and "mum" than upon the subject of running for congress.

On the Oath of a Child. Grace May Ellis Tells Her Story in the Abduction Case. Ida Shenk, David Watson and William Demars are being tried before Judge Otis and a jury upon an indictment alleging the abduction of Grace May Ellis of Minneapolis, for immoral purposes, she being a girl under the age of fourteen years. A jury was secured yesterday afternoon with little difficulty. Quite a collection of witnesses, friends and spectators were assembled in the court room when the trial for presenting the testimony began, among them being several members of the bar.

The Duluth Backs Out. And the Paving of East Fourth Street Falls Through. The board of public works yesterday confirmed the assessments for the grading of Sixth street, from Commercial street to Maria avenue, at the estimated cost of $14,575.65.

In the matter of paving East Fourth street, the whole of the proceedings have dropped through. The engineer's estimate for the work was close upon $20,000, and after months of negotiation the property owners on one side of the street who were opposed to the improvement finally prepared themselves in favor of it, on condition that the St. Paul & Duluth road, whose freight houses are on the other side of the street, would defray half the cost of the improvement. This the railroad company agreed to do, and the proceedings under the regular routine of the board of public works office and the council. Yesterday the board proposed to open bids which had been advertised for, but all were rejected, for at the last moment a letter was received from General Manager Plonch, of the Duluth road, withdrawing the offer to pay half the cost of the improvement.

The board has for two years considered that the paving of Fourth street from Commercial street to the railroad is in a fearful condition, but naturally the property owners on one side of the street objected to being assessed for the total cost of the improvement. The railroad company on the opposite side was exempt from assessment by state law.

Money to Loan on Good Security at the State of Savings Bank, Germania Life & Loan Co., and Germania Life & Loan Co., St. Paul, Nov. 1, 1888; Capt. James Dalton, of Chicago, in one round at Minneapolis in 1888; Dan Donnelly in two rounds at Paul in 1889; Duncane C. McDonald in twenty-five seconds at Minneapolis in 1889; John Cook and D. H. Smith, both in four rounds at Duluth, Minn., in 1889; Patsy McDonald in four rounds at Duluth, Minn., in 1889; Patsy Cardiff in a ten-round draw at St. Paul, 1889; knocked out Patsy Cardiff in four rounds at St. Paul in 1887; Corporal Tommy at Miles City, 1888—no time taken; Jack Fraser in two rounds at Spokane Falls in 1888.

Defeated by Joe McAniff. Killen from Spokane Falls went to San Francisco, Cal., where he was matched to fight with Joe McAniff, in which he met his first defeat in six rounds. Killen, while in San Francisco and previous to his fight, was arrested several times for being drunk and disorderly; and, if reports be true, he was under the influence of liquor during the greater part of his stay on the coast, which, no doubt, was the cause of the poor showing he made against the big Californian. His fight with Joe Sheehy, "the Cambial," which took place at St. Paul Sept. 14, 1890, was a free-for-all, and a rough-and-tumble affair, seconds and spectators alike taking a hand in the fight. Both parties claimed the victory, but the referee, after the Sheehy mob had dispersed, decided in favor of Killen.

Killen's Last Battle. Pat's last battle was with Bob Ferguson, the stockyards champion. It took place within 100 miles of Chicago Oct. 11, and was an easy win for Killen, six rounds being sufficient for Ferguson, who lay down in the sixth round to save himself from further punishment, Killen escaping without a scratch.

Killen, who had been in the saloon business in St. Paul for the last four years, arrived in Chicago a few months ago and embarked in the liquor business with Thomas Burke at 308 South Canal street. While Killen attended to business the saloon paid very well, but of late he neglected everything, especially since his fight with Ferguson, and a few days ago the place was closed because of lack of patronage.

Defeated by Joe McAniff. Killen from Spokane Falls went to San Francisco, Cal., where he was matched to fight with Joe McAniff, in which he met his first defeat in six rounds. Killen, while in San Francisco and previous to his fight, was arrested several times for being drunk and disorderly; and, if reports be true, he was under the influence of liquor during the greater part of his stay on the coast, which, no doubt, was the cause of the poor showing he made against the big Californian. His fight with Joe Sheehy, "the Cambial," which took place at St. Paul Sept. 14, 1890, was a free-for-all, and a rough-and-tumble affair, seconds and spectators alike taking a hand in the fight. Both parties claimed the victory, but the referee, after the Sheehy mob had dispersed, decided in favor of Killen.

Killen's Last Battle. Pat's last battle was with Bob Ferguson, the stockyards champion. It took place within 100 miles of Chicago Oct. 11, and was an easy win for Killen, six rounds being sufficient for Ferguson, who lay down in the sixth round to save himself from further punishment, Killen escaping without a scratch.

Killen, who had been in the saloon business in St. Paul for the last four years, arrived in Chicago a few months ago and embarked in the liquor business with Thomas Burke at 308 South Canal street. While Killen attended to business the saloon paid very well, but of late he neglected everything, especially since his fight with Ferguson, and a few days ago the place was closed because of lack of patronage.

Defeated by Joe McAniff. Killen from Spokane Falls went to San Francisco, Cal., where he was matched to fight with Joe McAniff, in which he met his first defeat in six rounds. Killen, while in San Francisco and previous to his fight, was arrested several times for being drunk and disorderly; and, if reports be true, he was under the influence of liquor during the greater part of his stay on the coast, which, no doubt, was the cause of the poor showing he made against the big Californian. His fight with Joe Sheehy, "the Cambial," which took place at St. Paul Sept. 14, 1890, was a free-for-all, and a rough-and-tumble affair, seconds and spectators alike taking a hand in the fight. Both parties claimed the victory, but the referee, after the Sheehy mob had dispersed, decided in favor of Killen.

FIELD, MAHLER & CO.

Wabasha, Fourth and Fifth Sts. Hosiery & Underwear

Some unusually good things may be found here this week.

We have never found a line Ladies' Black Cashmere Hosiery to sell at 25 cents which was satisfactory to us.

The markets are full of cheap Hosiery, but there's nothing we could recommend to our customers.

We are, therefore, obliged to sell our regular 55c quality at 25 CENTS Per pair. They are seamless, have ribbed tops, and are made of fine, soft wool.

It is our regular 35c quality. Ladies' English Black Cashmere Hose, fine, soft and elastic, spliced heels and toes, 50c.

Ladies' extra quality ribbed natural wool Vests and Pants, 75 cents each.

Ladies' Heavy Natural Gray Wool Union Suits, at $1.75 each. Price has been $2.00 all through the season.

BONNETS. A beautiful assortment Silk Velvet and Plush Bonnets for Children.

We control the styles for the entire state of Minnesota. Prices, $1.25 and upwards.

Novelties in French Jewelry and Cut Silver Pins.

Real Tortoise Shell Hair Pins and Combs.

Paris and Vienna Fans.

French Cocque Feather Boas, $1.65 and upwards.

NOVELTIES. Our stock of French Pattern Dresses and Novelties in Scotch Suitings has been much enlarged by recent arrivals.

There certainly is nothing like our present assortment in the Northwest. Not only do we show unequalled qualities, but we also show hundreds of styles that are not to be found elsewhere.

Scotch Novelties in the new English gray and other popular colorings, $1.45 to $3.25.

Late Novelties in French Crinkled Suitings.

Dozens of pieces of Navy Blue Bedford Cords in half a dozen qualities.

JACKETS. Our trade in the Cloak Department is simply wonderful, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather.

This is a practical demonstration of the superiority of our assortment. And it also proves that our prices are right.

50 new Fur-Trimmed Jackets came by express yesterday.

Sealskin Jackets, made specially for our best city trade by the best makers in New York. They are as near perfect as anything can be. Quality, style, workmanship and prices are guaranteed.

SPECIALTIES. 50 All-Wool Diagonal Chevot Jackets, Silk Frogs and six-inch Cloth Facings, at $7.00.

Bought to sell at $10.00. Heavy Diagonal Cloth Jackets, 28 inches long, Mink Fur Collar; special value, $15.00.

Reefer Jackets, with Full Mink Fur Roll Shawl Collar, at $25.00.

Would be cheap at $30.00. Walker's Combination Seal Plush Sacques, 38 inches long, 2-inch facing, extra quality Satin lining, $20.00.

Mail orders receive our best attention.

Field, Mahler & Co.

LADIES' WROKENPHAST

We will place on sale to-day several hundred pairs of Ladies' Extension and Heavy Sole Street Boots, that we always sold for $5 and $3.

FOR $4.00 PER PAIR!

If you want an easy, comfortable walking boot, take advantage of this.