

FIFTY YEARS A BISHOP

Religious Pomp and Glorification Signalize a Golden Jubilee.

The Venerable Archbishop of St. Louis Royally Honored and Feted.

Loving Tribute to His Noble Life and Self-Sacrificing Character.

Cardinal Gibbons Eloquently Responds to the Toast to Pope Leo.

St. Louis, Nov. 30.—On Nov. 30, 1841, just fifty years ago, Peter Cardinal Kenrick was consecrated a bishop of the Roman Catholic church. To-day, the fiftieth anniversary of his consecration, his golden jubilee is being celebrated with a pomp and glorification that has never before been witnessed excepting on the occasion of the golden jubilee of Leo XIII. The celebration has been made grand for the reason that Archbishop Kenrick is among the foremost men in the church; because of his great worth, for, as a bishop, he has been the friend of the poor and oppressed. He is universally beloved, and especially by citizens of St. Louis, because many of whom he has not only administered religious consolation, but on various occasions extended much needed financial aid. As a bishop, he is recognized to be the peer of any. The financial affairs of the archdiocese have been well managed, that never have private or individual contributions been solicited for the support of any church, institution of learning, or of relief.

The Pontifical Mass was somewhat unique, as it has not occurred in this city for a number of years. The ceremonies differed from the usual high mass in that they were more impressive and elaborate. The altar was dressed in magnificent style with flowers, evergreen and gold. An illuminated crucifix adorned the tabernacle. On the outside side of the altar, the cardinal silk and bunting. Directly opposite was the archbishop's throne. Kneeling stools and chairs were provided for the clergy and the people. After the cardinal had vested he proceeded to the foot of the altar, meanwhile blessing the clergy and the people. He then said "Introit" and "Gloria in excelsis," after which he passed between the altar and the throne. After the choir sang the "Kyrie," the cardinal intoned the "Gloria in excelsis." His Grace, Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, the pastor of the church in America, and on the occasion of the day, delivered the sermon. He opened his discourse by referring to the occasion fifty years ago when Archbishop Kenrick, of Philadelphia, consecrated Father Kenrick, a bishop in St. Mary's church. The speaker felt, he said, his utter unworthiness to do justice to the great man whom he was delegated to eulogize. He was tempted, he said, to cry out with the living prophet,

"I cannot speak." "Here in the presence of the venerable man, whom for forty years I looked upon as my friend, bishop and model; here on the fiftieth anniversary of his consecration in the Christian episcopate, towards the close of his long career, when celebrations, no matter how glorious, are but as Indian summer days in the autumn of his life year, with no returning spring or summer, it is impossible not to attempt to utter something giving utterance to the thoughts suggested by the time and place."

The reverend gentleman then carried his auditors back to the scene fifty years ago, to the great ceremony which foreshadowed the spiritual career of the archbishop. He took up the thread of his life, and followed him from the time he arrived in St. Louis, through his long lifetime of service in the church and among the people. "The first and most conspicuous qualities," he said, "were his supreme devotion to duty, and his utter selflessness. He never thought of his own comfort, and cared no better than the poorest priest of his diocese. Like his brother of the same name, he was at all hours of the day, and was truly 'the servant of the servants of God.'"

In conclusion, Archbishop Ryan said: "And now, my friends, permit me to say a few words to you, my dear friends, to wish you, above all things, sweet and holy peace during the evening of your days, and at the end may those who have been instrumental in saving for the last fifty years receive your spirit as it enters the gates of heaven, and conduct it to the throne of the Shepherd and Bishop of our souls."

Immediately following the sermon was the benediction, and then the cardinal chanted the "Credo in Unum Deum," and after the reading of the mass gave the Episcopal benediction. The mass over, the procession of church dignitaries passed out in the same manner as it entered the church. From the church the cardinals, archbishops and all the participating clergy went to the Lindell hotel to attend the banquet.

The Jubilee Banquet. The cardinal and Archbishop Kenrick marched arm in arm into the banquet hall, followed by the archbishops, bishops, Monsignors and the cardinal. Archbishop was seated at the head of the table, with the cardinal on his right and Archbishop Elder on his left. Archbishops were seated in their order of seniority.

Cardinal Gibbons opened with grace, and after the thanksgiving prayer, the general address read to Archbishop Kenrick an address from the clergy of the diocese. The venerable archbishop, deeply moved by the expressions of love from the priests, arose and made a short but affecting response. Rev. Father Goller then made an address of welcome to Cardinal Gibbons and the visiting clergy. Father Coffey, the toastmaster, then announced the first toast, which was responded to by Cardinal Gibbons. The toast was "Our Holy Father, Leo XIII." The cardinal said: "The name of Leo XIII. will live in history. It will figure in the next of our great namesake, Leo I., and of the Gregories and the Innocents, who have reflected so much glory on the Church of God. Leo has proved himself to be not only a man of God, but also

A Man of the People. "Like his Divine Master, he can say: 'I have compassion on the multitude, and I desire to break forth with the bread of consolation.' He expects Christian priests to be in touch with the people, to sympathize with them in their aspirations, to enlighten, instruct and sanctify them, and to be the great moral lever that will purify the mass humanity. He reminds us bishops and priests that our highest and noblest mission on earth is to promote the moral and social well-being of the people. In his numerous encyclicals on the conduct of Christian states, our holy father proclaims the fundamental truth, which is sometimes forgotten of men who worship the Catholic religion is adapted to all the times and all places, especially under republican forms of government. And thank God we can hear this evening the sentiments of our holy father, and in the light of experience and observation can affirm that while the church has had to struggle, and while she still struggles for existence under the dark shadow of despotic rule, she grows and expands like the oak of the forest under the free air of our republican institutions. Nowhere is the benign authority of our holy father more respected and honored than in these United States.

Our Filial Devotion. Toward his father, not less strong because less noisy in his demonstrations. Our loyalty to his spiritual jurisdiction to be wasted in frothy declamations; the fire that burns in our hearts is to be allowed to explode in rhetorical speeches. In honoring the pope I hope I will not be suspected by unfriendly enemies of our family, who worship the one true God. We honor the pope because he is worthy of all veneration. We revere him not only for his personal virtues, but especially as the highest representative of Christ, and the uncompromising exponent and vindicator of Christian civilization.

"In his admirable encyclical on 'Christian Marriage,' the holy father proclaims a truth which has a special significance in our times and which ought to be heeded by the American people. It is that if our Christian civilization is to be saved and perfected, the sanctity and indissolubility of Christian marriage must be recognized by the masses. He tells us that the marriage couple are the source of the family; that the family is the source of society and that the stream does not rise above its source. In his days, the church is struggling Encyclical on Labor. The holy father proclaims the rights and dignity of labor and of the laboring man. He tells us that Christ, by His teachings and example, has consoled labor, and that ever since He toiled at His trade in Nazareth He has shed a halo around the workshop. In all His public teaching and in every papal encyclical he is abreast with the times and that he is in sympathy with the legitimate aspirations of humanity.

"We think the holy father for his message of benediction to the venerable metropolitan of St. Louis on the occasion of his golden jubilee—a patriarchal prelate who is the connecting link between the past and the present—who has seen the church of America in her struggling youth and who upholds her today in her majestic developments; who has seen the episcopal increase from 15 to 55 bishops, and amid this bright galaxy he has ever been a burning, a shining light for half a century; a prelate sans peur and sans reproche, like His Master with the scourge in the temple, has the courage of the lion to rebuke iniquity, and like His Master at the tomb of Lazarus, has the power of a child when sympathizing with sorrow and suffering.

"Most reverend archbishop, with heartfelt pleasure, I discharge my commission by handing you the gift from the pope." This gift is a portrait of his holiness, a handsome gold frame, brought from Rome by the pope's chamberlain, Mgr. O'Brien. Other toasts were responded to by Archbishop Corrigan of New York; Archbishop Jussen, of New Orleans, and others.

To Old Mexico. "The Burlington" has now on sale excursion tickets to principal points in Mexico at greatly reduced rates. No more interesting country can be selected for a winter journey. The unrivaled service and accommodations of "The Burlington" will two tracks each day to St. Louis, makes it the favorite line. Tickets will be good for six months from date of issue, and are obtained at the ticket office, No. 164 East Third street, where any further information will be cheerfully furnished.

ANDREWS' REPLY. Arbitration Proposed in the Gas Difficulty. New York, Nov. 30.—W. C. Andrews, of the New York Steam company, issued late this afternoon an answer to the statements made by the officers of the Standard Gas Light company with regard to the ownership of the stock which Mr. Andrews says belongs to him. He said: "I hold no stock that is not my own. The stock issued to me was legal at the time, and has never ceased to be so. I have today offered to arrange for arbitration. I propose that three distinguished lawyers be chosen to sit as a court, under oath, and decide the matter. At the time I took this stock for value, it had no market value whatever."

The gas company directors met this afternoon and received Mr. Andrews' proposition, but took no action thereon. They will meet again tomorrow, when their course will be finally decided.

WITNESSES NOT EST. Railroad Men Fail to Face an Omaha Grand Jury. OMAHA, Nov. 30.—When the United States grand jury met this afternoon it was expected that the cases against railroads and others for violation of the interstate commerce law would certainly be taken under consideration, but owing to the absence of three important witnesses no move was made, and there is a possibility that the matter will go over to the next term of court. The missing witnesses are George Carman, of Chicago, superintendent of the Western Railway association; William R. Orr, of Omaha, auditor of the Western Railway association, and James Viles Jr., manager of the Omaha Pacific railroad. All the other witnesses summoned are on hand.

ONE TOWN MUST GO. American Association to Have Only Eight Clubs. CHICAGO, Nov. 30.—An important meeting of the circuit and schedule commission of the American association was held at Columbus yesterday. President Williams, who represented Chicago, returned today. He was disinclined to talk, but said: "There will be only eight clubs in the association next year. That much is settled." Those present were: Phelps, of Louisville; Barnie, of Philadelphia; Van der Pelt, of St. Louis; Hart, of Boston; Schmelz, of Columbus, and Williams, of Chicago. The ten-club circuit scheme came up for action and was thrown overboard. It is not known what town will be crowded out. It may be Columbus, Milwaukee or Louisville, or it may be neither. The question will be decided soon.

DOWN ON IT. The State Park Scheme Stirrs Up the City of the Unsalted Seas, And Is Regarded as a Diabolical Design to Retard Duluth's Growth.

Three Months of the Crop Year Show Phenomenal Wheat Receipts. Farmers in the Red River Valley Determine to P protect Their Titles.

Special to the Globe. DULUTH, Minn., Nov. 30.—A very enthusiastic meeting was held this evening in the chamber of commerce, and the proposed scheme for setting apart the 11,000,000 acres as a forest reserve in Northern Minnesota was discussed with a great deal of vigor. The plan of the Minnesota National Park association was denounced as an attempt to stop the building of railroads across the immense tract to be set apart; to interfere with settlement, and to put a quietus on some of the finest farming lands in the Northwest. The reasons for what citizens of Duluth consider an outrageous attempt to cripple this town by a thoroughly disinterested body of men, who are not to be trusted, is the subject of a petition which has been presented to the legislature. The petition was granted a steady flow of water from the Mississippi and its tributaries would be interfered with, and the business of the city would be ruined for only one-tenth of that immense territory is drained by rivers flowing south. The idea of the plan is on the north side of the "divide," and is drained by rivers flowing into Canadian waters. Some of the speakers denounced the plan as a St. Paul and Minneapolis attempt to injure Duluth by depriving the city of her lawful territory. Others thought it was a scheme of the pipe land ring, which wants to take out of market immense tract of standing timber in order to enhance the price of lumber. Those who had explored the northern part of the state bore testimony to the fact that along the boundary line, in the Rainy lake region, are to be found immense tracts of some of the finest prairie land in Minnesota. The idea that it was timber land alone was ridiculed. There are several hundred settlers already located in the northern part of this country and many more are willing to follow. It was hinted by Dr. Fred Larson of Tower, that petitions signed by such men as Gov. Merriam and ex-Govs. Ramsey and Marshall must necessarily appear suspicious, for "they are business men, and they who attend strictly to business they will bear watching." He suggested that if they want a national park, they should donate some lands in Hennepin and Ramsey counties. The meeting broke up, after instructing the president of the chamber of commerce to appoint a committee of five to investigate the matter, and another to draw up a protest to be sent to President Harrison. Other speakers were S. A. Thompson, Maj. T. C. Hoover, Monroe Nichols, C. P. Maginnis, S. F. Shively and Assistant County Attorney Davies.

HEAVY GRAIN MOVEMENT. Receipts for Three Months at the Principal Centers. DULUTH, Nov. 30.—The total grain movement for the first three months of the crop year in the spring wheat states of Minnesota and the two Dakotas shows receipts at the two terminal points—Duluth and Minneapolis—of 53,596,000 bushels. These figures are official for both cities, estimating only the last day of November. This is estimated at one-third of the crop of the states. Of this Duluth received 23,000,000 bushels and Minneapolis 24,596,000. There are now in store at the two cities 1,000,000 bushels. This movement far exceeds anything ever known at either place, and is especially important in showing that of the entire 54,000,000 bushels but 8,000,000 remain on hand at the beginning of winter. During this period Duluth shipments have been 23,500,000 bushels, and the amount paid out to vessel men by Duluth shippers $1,500,000.

FARMERS WILL FIGHT To Protect the Land Title—North Dakota Forests. Special to the Globe. GRAND RAPIDS, Nov. 30.—Agents of the North Dakota who are serving notices of eviction on all owners of odd-numbered sections within the twenty-mile indemnity land grant limit have reached the city. The notices order the farmers to vacate the property by Dec. 15. The railway claims include the richest portion of the Red river valley lands that have been duly patented by the government. A meeting of property holders interested will be held in this city Dec. 12. Attorneys claim the railway company has no claim to lands filed on by settlers prior to 1875. It is expected that Senator Casey will introduce a measure in congress early in the session to protect farmers in possession of their property. Superintendent of Forestry W. W. Barrett is negotiating with Joseph Greenwood for purchasing six tracts to represent North Dakota in the interstate forestry building at the Columbian exposition. The trees will be shipped early in the spring.
