

HONOR OF HUSBAND

Chris Koran Tells How He Came to Shoot Moritz Weisser.

His Wife's Chastity Respected Even in His Hour of Peril.

Accident and Mania Both Claimed in His Defense.

Excitement and Strain Break Him Down on the Stand.

Christ Koran told his story of the killing of Moritz L. Weisser to the jury yesterday, and was subjected to a searching cross-examination by County Attorney T. D. O'Brien which comprehended the incidents leading up to the homicide, as well as relating to the scene that terminated the life of the man whom Koran believed broke up his home. Koran showed strong evidences of a troubled mind on the witness stand and his responses on points which involved the fidelity of his wife. Spectators were impressed with the view that Koran even at this time is unwilling to admit to the public that his wife and Weisser were on too intimate terms. His story as to his depressed spirits and troubled mind after the shooting had the pronounced semblance of truth.

KORAN TELLS HIS STORY

He continued his story and said: "I had a talk with Mrs. Brown about two weeks before the shooting. Frank Brown told me to go and see her, that she could help me in my family troubles. I did not tell her I would kill Weisser. I went to the Rendo station two weeks before the shooting to get an officer to arrest Weisser, in case I should find him in my wife's room. Officer Getchell went with me. I got through a window and found Weisser was not in her room. The officer said he could hear Weisser, and wanted to break open the door to the down-stairs room, but I told him that would do no good.

"On Aug. 31 I came down from my work at Minneapolis and went to my brother's, and then home to take a bath. When I left my brother's I took a revolver with me to take my revolver out of my old clothes so that her little boy would not get it. I put the revolver in my pocket. I met Rosa before I went to my brother's and kissed her and Weisser's little girl. I told Rosa to ask her mother to let me have her water. Rosa said she would. She came out I met her in the dining room and asked her what her mother said. Rosa replied that her mother had said nothing.

"I went to the kitchen and saw my wife and Weisser sitting near the sink. Weisser had his left arm around her waist. I felt sick and broke down. I told them to get out of the house. He got up and looked desperate and bad, and put his hand in his hip pocket. He then backed up the stairs, and when he got up two or three steps stopped and put his hand in his hip pocket again. I saw him drag something out of his pocket that looked bright, and he called me 'Lieberling.' I pulled my revolver out and pointed it at him. He said 'Lieberling' and I did not intend to shoot him. My wife caught hold of me and said 'Christ, why did you shoot?' and I said, 'I would not have shot if you had left me alone.' My wife held on to me until Mrs. O'Brien came down and asked me to give her the revolver. Mrs. O'Brien then came down stairs and gave the pistol to the women for fear they would hurt themselves with it, and I did not want to trust my wife with the pistol because I was afraid of her at that time. I do not remember everything closely. It seems like a dream. I have thought over the matter a great amount since and tried to remember all that happened."

THE PRISONER BREAKS DOWN

During the cross-examination the witness was much affected with the character of his wife and her intimacy with Weisser were touched upon. The additional point brought out in the examination was that he had a happy home before Weisser came to it. He had never quarreled with his wife, excepting the little scenes that had occurred. He had not treated his wife badly when they lived at Star Prairie, he did not know that she had walked to Stillwater, a distance of twenty miles. There was no need of her doing so, for he kept a horse and buggy. He did not know that she had walked to Stillwater. The only thing said about Rosa not being his child was said by Mrs. Koran. He did not believe what she said about it, and thought she said it to worry his conscience. He did not remember that he had talked about his wife when they lived at Star Prairie. He had not heard that Mrs. Koran had told Erickson out of the house where they now live because he had insisted her, or that Erickson had said to Weisser "get even with her" for doing so. Koran was closely questioned as to being a friend of attorney Brown, but he said he had never seen him since he had been a lawyer. He had a glass of water by Mr.

NO MORE DOCTORS FOR ME!

They said I was consumptive, sent me to Florida, told me to keep quiet, no excitement, and no tennis, and I took a trip to Florida. I found it all a humbug. I got a lovely reply, told me to do as I do, and I am in splendid health now.

AND THE WINDS BLEW

Boreas Had a Right Merry Time With the Northwest Yesterday.

People of the Twin Cities Spend the Day Swearing and Shivering.

Two or Three Railways Forced to Abandon Some of Their Trains.

Outlook for Better Weather Could Be Much More Encouraging.

The anarchist has his finger in the social pie, the religious pie and demoralizes the financial pastry and we can bear it; but when his large and grimy digits stir up the weather bureau it is time to rebel. Time was when we had confidence in the climate. We knew that when winter set in it would stay that way till the proper schedule time for spring's appearance. We expected hot days in August and ice palaces in February. But now we have no climate—only a collection of weather. We were chilled through and through in August, and were sunstruck in September, but the time between was the perfection of weather. Wednesday we paddled around in spring overcoats and ice water, and yesterday we groaned in the teeth of a blizzard. Sometimes the snow would come stinging into your face like icy needles. Then again it would let go above and come sailing earthward in big overgrown flakes like the chopped-up paper of a property snowstorm.

The wind radiated from every corner and blew into your face, no matter which way you walked. It drove the snow into your ears till you felt the symptoms of incipient water on the brain, and grained it down your collar till your backbone felt like the bed of an canal. Where the snow didn't get cold shivers did. They made your nose turn blue and your teeth dance a jig. When the thermometer drops to 40 deg. below in the good old style a heavy coat keeps one as warm as toast, but with the mercury a little below freezing and a Yankee glare blowing, nothing this side of future punishment can keep you warm.

RAILROADS BLOCKED.

The Reports Meager and the Crisis Expected Today.

The severe snow storm, accompanied by high winds, which has been raging throughout the Northwest since yesterday morning, has delayed the trains coming in from the North and West. The Omaha reported last evening that trains were moving along the Northern and Eastern divisions as well as possible under the circumstances. Heavy snow and west wind prevailed, and a heavy snow was falling all along the line and drifting high. About the same conditions exist along the line of the Duluth road. The snow is drifting very much and a delaying of trains is looked for.

THE BIG BLOW ELSEWHERE.

Traffic Considerably Interfered With in Various Places.

Special to the Globe. ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 4.—A terrible blizzard and snow storm, which started on Wednesday night, is still raging, stopping business of all kinds. The snow is piled many feet high in places. Trains are blocked and no one ventures far from home. Miss Grant, a school teacher, was accidentally locked in the school house at 2 o'clock yesterday and was not found until evening. She was unable to keep warm on account of no wood.

THE BOY GETS $8,000.

Verdict of $8,000 Against the Milwaukee Railway.

Special to the Globe. WISCONSIN, Dec. 4.—The jury in the case of Frank McArthur vs. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company last night brought in a verdict of $8,000 for the plaintiff, a boy of seven years, who was maimed for life about eighteen months ago by being run over by a Milwaukee street car near Mazepa, Minn. This being the only case presented, the United States district court adjourned at 8:30 this morning.

They Talked Railroads.

Special to the Globe. MONTGOMERY, Minn., Dec. 4.—A meeting was held by the Citizens' union last night at Judge Mabon's office. F. D. Woodbury, of Mankato, addressed the committee in behalf of the proposed Mankato & Northeastern railroad, an air-line branch of the Milwaukee, from Farquhar to Mankato, to open up the interior of this country through Kassota and Cleveland, Le Sueur Center and Montgomery. Leading citizens of Mankato are taking an active interest in the proposition.

Have Lots of Seed Wheat.

Special to the Globe. MILLER, S. D., Dec. 4.—The farmers of this section of the state will not be short of seed wheat next spring, as they have for several years past, as they are all sowing a large supply for next year's sowing. The crop acreage will be larger than ever, nearly every one having great faith in next year's production, basing their belief upon the large amount of snow now on the ground—something unusual for this section at this time of year.

Died of Heart Failure.

Special to the Globe. GRANTON, N. D., Dec. 4.—Mrs. William Chandler died at 4:15 p. m. today of heart failure. She is the wife of ex-Mayor Chandler, one of the oldest merchants of this city.

Toyed With Death.

TACOMA, Wash., Dec. 4.—At Eagle Gorge, fifty miles east of here, yesterday a workman named Charles Rodgers was killed and a track watchman named Henry O'Neill fatally wounded by the explosion of a gas powder. The cartridges were frozen, and Rodgers attempted to thaw them out at a small bonfire.

MRS. BLAINE'S SUIT.

December 28 set as the day for hearing. DEADWOOD, S. D., Dec. 4.—Announcement was made in the circuit court today that Dec. 28 had been set as a day to hear the motion for alimony in the celebrated Nevlins-Blaine divorce case. Martin & Mason, of this city, have been delegated by Mrs. Blaine, attorneys at Sioux Falls to conduct the plaintiff's case. It is said that Attorney Brown, a late arrival from Watertown, N. Y., who is otherwise mysterious business in Deadwood, will appear for the defendant in arguing this motion, and in the subsequent divorce proceedings.

Big Blaze at Argyle.

ARGYLE, Dec. 4.—Fire this morning burned out the following firms: Olson & Holer, general merchandise, total loss; D. Robertson, drugs and post office, total loss; C. J. Robertson, merchant tailor, partial loss; J. Warfield, harness shop, total loss; H. R. Meiseb, crocer, total loss; J. R. Labele, baker, total loss; J. J. Molstad, liquor dealer, partial loss. The total loss is about $50,000. The fire started about half. All the burned buildings will be rebuilt at once.

A Jury Secured.

FARGO, N. D., Dec. 4.—The jury in the Remington case was completed this morning. State Attorney Ross addressed the jury for the state, giving an outline of what it expected to prove. During parts of the speech in which attention was made to the brutality of the murder, Remington showed his nervousness, and also when the state's attorney referred to it as having been robbed before he was dead.

A Wheat Buyer Ships Out.

HILLSBORO, N. D., Dec. 4.—For some months past J. Sidelstrom has represented S. S. Linton & Co., Duluth, as a local wheat buyer at this place. He has shipped several car loads in his own name, but has always been without making returns. S. Robinson loses $500 and several other farmers smaller amounts.

He was rather proud of the party he was with, and when he met his old friend and a companion on the street he stopped them and said: "Jack, let me introduce my friend, Col. Wallace. You've heard of him, of course—one of our most distinguished Scotch-American."

After they had shaken hands, he continued: "And now shake hands with Ald. McNamara. You can hardly need an introduction to him; he's been a leading Irish-American for years, and you know of his work in the council."

Then, with a graceful wave of his hand toward the third, he said: "Prof. Gluckenstein—you've heard of him, of course. There's a fellow known German-American in the West. His highest words carry weight with his countrymen this side of the Atlantic."

"Jack" shook hands with the professor, and then, turning toward his companion, said: "Gentlemen, let me introduce Mr. Brown. He is quite well known to his friends as a thorough American-American."

"Excuse pardon!" All spoke at once. "He was born in Ireland, brought up in England and educated in Germany," continued "Jack," "but when he came to this country he sort of took up his home here and became an American. I'm told that's the reason he has no title or office. He ought to have been known better."
