The Cleveland club meeting last night drew out a good attendance. The most important matter that came before the club was a series of resolutions introduced by C. J. Buell, relating to the changing of the method of raising revenue for the support of the general government. The resolutions were long and unimpressive in meaning. The preamble began with setting forth the well known fact of there being many objections to the present system of raising the necessary revenues for the support of the government...

For these reasons the tariff system is one of the most objectionable to be levied by the special assessment plan in vogue in cities; and, second, that all other revenues needed be raised by direct taxation.

Altogether there had been 216 applications for charity. Of this number 93 were new cases, 50 single men, and 43 women. A second indictment against Anderson was sworn out yesterday morning by Herbert Randall, who charged that Anderson had robbed his residence on Grove-land avenue of property valued at $33.

Length of the Holiday to Be Decided Today. LONDON, March 16.—The delegates to the meeting of the Miners' federation today held a private conference in this city. Their decision as to the time the holiday of the miners will continue has been deferred until tomorrow. A majority of the delegates are in favor of resuming work Monday. The price of coal has declined in London and Manchester, and there promises to be a heavy reduction before Monday. The conference adopted a resolution which, while sympathizing with the relatives of those who lost their lives by the Colliery explosion in the Aiderley colliery, expressed regret that women and girls should be employed in the mines of Belgium. The will be a meeting of coal owners at Manchester tomorrow to decide the question of the re-employment of the men on the same terms, taking into consideration that the general stoppage of work, the damping of furnaces and the requirement of stores of coal during the strike is likely to diminish the immediate demand. The running of a thousand trains on the Midland railway railway has been stopped. The prices of bricks in Leicester have risen 15 per cent. The miners' federation has resolved to resume work Monday, working at the rate of five days weekly.

THE ANDERLINDS DISASTER.

BRUSSELS, March 16.—The directors of the Anderlinds mines near Charleroi, where the frightful accident occurred on Friday last, have subscribed $20,000 for the relief of the families of the large number of men who lost their lives by the explosion. King Leopold has donated $1,200 for the same purpose. Great distress prevails among the families of the victims.

THEY ARE INDEPENDENT.

How a Colored Political Club Was Organized Last Night. The organization of the Independent Colored Men's Political club last night was not accomplished without considerable difficulty. In fact, it is a matter of doubt whether the organization was effected at all. About fifty colored men congregated in Plummer Post hall with the avowed intention of forming a club that would be able to take part in the coming political campaign. The meeting was called to order by E. Wood, who ruled over the now defunct Afro-American league or club for about a year ago. Z. Mitchell, the colored newspaper man, was appointed secretary pro tem, and J. Pradford, colored shoemaker, was elected clerk. Then the matter of formal organization came up and with it a "heap of fun." Mr. Williams took the floor and delivered a long speech, in spite of the protestations of the chairman, and what he knew of parliamentary laws. He also asked that the speakers be held to five minutes' discourse each, though the speaker events demonstrated that he had no reference to himself when he made the motion. When he had finished, Dick Jackson took the floor and made a flowery speech on behalf of the men of Ethiopian descent. Incidentally he made some remarks which displeased Mr. Williams, and the gentleman again took the floor and explained his position. In vain the chairman requested him to take his seat and give the organization of the club to be completed, but Mr. Williams would not down. When he finally wound up, he said: "I don't see no man kin tell me nuffin 'bout politics, see? I know all 'bout it, see?" With this he took his seat, but soon bobbed up again and offered to give the club a name. The chairman explained that he was a trifle too previous, and to hold his horses a bit. He was then elected president, and accepted the position with thanks and a speech. Mr. Mitchell was nominated for secretary, he declined the nomination that he was not in a position to accept any office, and could do the club good by going on the outside. Pradford would not listen to him, and though Mr. Mitchell protested vigorously, he was duly elected. "I don't see no man kin tell me nuffin 'bout politics, see? I know all 'bout it, see?"

ACCURATE STATEMENT OF THE PARK IMPROVEMENT APPOINTMENT.

The park board improvement committee has finished juggling with the various appropriations of the park board funds among the various parks, and Secretary Nye has prepared a tabulated statement showing just how the money for parks is to be expended, as follows: Lyndale park, $1,000.00; Main-tenance, $213.00; Barnes place and, 212.00; Elliott park, 1,234.00; Franklin street square, 514.45; Glenwood park, 501.00; Kenwood parkway, 4,119.88; Lake Calhoun park, 501.00; Lake Harriet, 6,875.56; Lake Calhoun park, 1,523.00; Lake of the Isles, 3,040.00; Murphy square, 2,000.00; Riverside park, 3,409.00; Minnehaha parkway, 3,100.00; Oak Lake park, 300.00; Powderhorn park, 1,000.00; Second ward park, 850.00; Wilson park, 1,061.84; Sibley boulevard, 2,000.00; Park and, 3,753.00; Plans, specifications, etc., 3,331.85; Second ward trees, 933.40; Pilsbury avenue trees, 300.00; Portland avenue trees, 127.00; Chestnut avenue trees, 15.00; Park and boulevard, 2,000.00; Dean boulevard, 2,000.00. A SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

A Team of Horses Run Away and Smash Things. There was a serious runaway accident on Nicollet avenue, between Fifth and Sixth streets, yesterday afternoon, and as a result Frank Hunt, a clothing preparator, and a woman operating a machine agency, is laid up with four broken ribs. On Nicollet, near Seventh street, a team of horses, driven by William Huley, became frightened and ran at a high rate of speed down the street. The outfit driven by Mr. Hunt was overtaken and run down. Mr. Hunt was nothing at all of what the meeting was about. However, he began to speak, and posing dramatically, after the fashion of all Shakespearean actors, "Perchance I might say, that I know nothing of whence comes this call for aid to seek before you. I do not know my name to be handed in the newspapers, for I was not aware of the requirements and unappears of the occasion. I do not yet, I thank you, say whether it is a Republican or Democratic gathering. However, I will say it please you, that I am a Republican, and have since I had the right to vote. Nay, sir, I do not believe in striking your colors. I do not believe in carrying a flag and never struck my colors then, and, by the help of the Almighty, never will. Mr. George conceived with me, and I am impressed by the audience, and retired. The president then announced the executive committee, after which the other speakers followed. The committee consists of the following: ex-officio members, William H. Huley, A. H. Myrick and J. Coleman. The meeting then adjourned.

HINTS FOR THE FARM.

Sheep husbandry will unquestionably increase during a few years to come. "Blood will tell," but it must be carefully watched, or it will tell stories of disappointment, discouragement, loss and ruin. There is good common sense in the injunction to increase the feed gradually when preparing a cow for a test. It is not too long for preparation. If too rapid increase is made, it is almost certain to cause indigestion, of which the least form is wadded food. A churn should never be more than half-full of cream, to insure which should not be quite full before the cream is added. The addition of cream swells to the extent of considerably increasing its bulk. The Country Gentleman says an Albatross brand of corn meal of hay shipped the information that it was grown on gravelly loam and was free from dust and chaff, with name and address on this got $1.50 above the market price. An observing man, riding through the West and seeing field after field of corn stalks going to waste remarked: "The farmer is conducting the only business in the world that allows a man to lose 45 per cent of his capital stock and at the same time live."

BOSTON, March 16.—The Pilot contains an article by the Archbishop of Ireland and its correspondent in Rome, from which this important passage is extracted: I am glad to be able to say that the Roman authorities, both at the Vatican and the Propaganda, declare themselves determined to maintain the hierarchical unity of the church in America, and to allow no effort to be made to the annihilation of the different populations in America, and encouraging the political and social unification of all the citizens of the land. But, strange to say, this determination of Rome does not prevent constant renewal of efforts. The people in America and in Europe who are under the positive belief that the country is a wild Congo, to say the least, of its so-called colonies, as distinct from one another as language, ideas and customs can make them. Many of the European Catholic papers are full of articles in which the Catholic papers of Germany are today a veritable curiosity, teeming week after week with statements most false and absurd, and which would give the bishops of America, who are supposed to be at all times tinged with a patriotic passion, a very sorry state of affairs. A short time ago, at a general Catholic international congress at Liege, Belgium, two gentlemen appeared, Peter Cahensay and Rev. Mr. Villeneuve, daring to make in open session a charge against the church in America, because of its neglect of foreigners, had lost 20,000,000. Cahensay repeated the lie in his famous memorial of last year, although he had previously admitted its proportions. Rev. Mr. Villeneuve is at present in Rome, and I have no doubt that he will not be long in his movements; his virulence, I may say, showing itself particularly in opposition to the bishops of the New England states.

A ROYAL SOCIETY.

Marquis de Mores Foiled in His Desire to Kill Isaac. PARIS, March 16.—Society is greatly stirred up over the serious wounding of M. Isaac, the subprefect of Fontenay, by the Marquis de Mores in a duel fought yesterday. Ever since the Fontenay riots, when the military, at the instigation, it is claimed, of M. Isaac, fired among the working people, killing and wounding women and children as well as men, Isaac has been the object of frequent and bitter attack on the part of the socialists. He was upheld by M. Constant, who has been the cause of that minister's unpopularity and indirectly of the disruption of the cabinet. Mores is known to be an expert swordsman, and his boasted ability to kill any fence who should dare to face him. Isaac, however, did not hesitate. His opponent, however, made a second to the fight, and the preliminaries. The two men met yesterday. Isaac, it is said, spent a good part of the previous night practicing with a well-known fencing master. It is usual for duellists to give some token of recognition before the deadly fighting begins. Mores, however, did not even notice his antagonist, and seemed to wait with impatience for the word. From the first the marquis pressed the attack, and he was not long in being wounded. Isaac held his own bravely, but was no match for the skill and impetuosity of his antagonist. The marquis evidently meant to kill, and Isaac knew it. Both men kept their presence of mind, or the fight would have ended at once, for the marquis was ready to take advantage of the slightest slip on the part of Isaac, who showed a skill that encouraged his friends and seemed to astonish his antagonists. Mores succeeded in disabling his man. He made a thrust as if at the left breast, but Isaac parried it with his right hand. The blow de Mores, with almost inconceivable swiftness, struck fiercely and forcibly to the right, plunging his weapon into the chest of his antagonist. Mores staggered, the blood pouring from the wound. He held onto his sword and made another thrust as if to attack Mores again. The latter stood calm and turning to his second, asked for a cigar, and lighting it, he quietly smoked while the attention of Isaac was being examined. The attending surgeons said the wound was dangerous, and possibly fatal if not speedily treated. The marquis was removed to a hospital and conveyed to once to some place for treatment, but he staggered to his feet and insisted on going to his room. "It was to be a duel to the death," he said, "and it must go on." The second meantime held a consultation with the attending physician. He said, for them to permit the duel to be continued further. Mores was dangerously wounded and not in a condition to offer such resistance as would justify his antagonist in proceeding. Mores was obliged to let his antagonist have his way. He would have liked, it was evident, to have the privilege of killing Isaac, but he knew there was a limit beyond which he would not go. He was unable to resist the decision of the seconds, and he was removed from the field. The socialists are making a hero of the Marquis de Mores, and he is said to be in a critical condition.

Both men kept their presence of mind, or the fight would have ended at once, for the marquis was ready to take advantage of the slightest slip on the part of Isaac, who showed a skill that encouraged his friends and seemed to astonish his antagonists. Mores succeeded in disabling his man. He made a thrust as if at the left breast, but Isaac parried it with his right hand. The blow de Mores, with almost inconceivable swiftness, struck fiercely and forcibly to the right, plunging his weapon into the chest of his antagonist. Mores staggered, the blood pouring from the wound. He held onto his sword and made another thrust as if to attack Mores again. The latter stood calm and turning to his second, asked for a cigar, and lighting it, he quietly smoked while the attention of Isaac was being examined. The attending surgeons said the wound was dangerous, and possibly fatal if not speedily treated. The marquis was removed to a hospital and conveyed to once to some place for treatment, but he staggered to his feet and insisted on going to his room. "It was to be a duel to the death," he said, "and it must go on." The second meantime held a consultation with the attending physician. He said, for them to permit the duel to be continued further. Mores was dangerously wounded and not in a condition to offer such resistance as would justify his antagonist in proceeding. Mores was obliged to let his antagonist have his way. He would have liked, it was evident, to have the privilege of killing Isaac, but he knew there was a limit beyond which he would not go. He was unable to resist the decision of the seconds, and he was removed from the field. The socialists are making a hero of the Marquis de Mores, and he is said to be in a critical condition.

THE ENGLISH STRIKE.

Length of the Holiday to Be Decided Today. LONDON, March 16.—The delegates to the meeting of the Miners' federation today held a private conference in this city. Their decision as to the time the holiday of the miners will continue has been deferred until tomorrow. A majority of the delegates are in favor of resuming work Monday. The price of coal has declined in London and Manchester, and there promises to be a heavy reduction before Monday. The conference adopted a resolution which, while sympathizing with the relatives of those who lost their lives by the Colliery explosion in the Aiderley colliery, expressed regret that women and girls should be employed in the mines of Belgium. The will be a meeting of coal owners at Manchester tomorrow to decide the question of the re-employment of the men on the same terms, taking into consideration that the general stoppage of work, the damping of furnaces and the requirement of stores of coal during the strike is likely to diminish the immediate demand. The running of a thousand trains on the Midland railway railway has been stopped. The prices of bricks in Leicester have risen 15 per cent. The miners' federation has resolved to resume work Monday, working at the rate of five days weekly.
