

MINNEAPOLIS.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

Considering the present condition of the Minneapolis market, it is not surprising that the following letter from the editor of a California paper to City Clerk Hooper comes as a brilliant piece of unintentional sarcasm: "Will you be kind enough to send me a copy of the ordinance regulating the liquor traffic in your city. I am informed that it is an excellent model for all cities, and as we are now trying to regulate the liquor traffic we may be able to adopt some, at least, of its provisions."

Robert Brower, manager for Fred Ward, the tragedian, is in the city, and is spending all his time in the company of Fred Fride. It would be nice to print all these two men say of each other when they are together in the public part of B. H. Fride. If it were done they might receive a call from the police.

The Republican papers are doing their best to create the impression that the Jefferson and Cleveland clubs are trying to consolidate because both favor the league scheme. The churches are preparing to consolidate their kindergartens, therefore all the churches in the city are going to consolidate.

An evidence of sublime faith—the kind of faith that is used to talk about—see the Tribune's Harrison editorials.

As soon as the boy orators began to speak last night the rain stopped. Dr. DeWitt's theory of explosive precipitation rain has received a serious setback.

World's Fair's barrel palace for the world's faith seems to have escaped at the bung-hole.

Father Chiniquy could make more money writing romances, a la Rider Haggard, than he can preaching. Such an imagination is a gift that is not to be wasted entirely in spoken words.

The Minneapolis base ball team is gone, but not forgotten. Some critics would say too vicious for the drowning pool of oblivion.

The Tribune is extremely anxious to make every one understand that it has engaged a new advertising manager. No wonder.

It is a blessing that there are but "two Johns."

Mrs. Jenness-Miller says it has been her experience that American women get everything they want. They will get details could probably be obtained from Mr. Jenness-Miller.

College men overran the city yesterday, and in spite of the drizzling rain, every station and corner could be met with an ever corner. The occasion was the nineteenth annual contest of the Interstate Oratorical association, which was held at the Lyceum theater in the evening. From a college standpoint the event was a notable one.

Representatives from over half a dozen colleges and universities were present, among them a number of prominent professors and men of letters. The contest began at 8 o'clock, but long before that hour came around the theater was crowded to the doors. The young fellows in the audience made things exceedingly lively before the curtain rolled up, with their college yells and unique calls. All this while the ten orators were behind the scenes rehearsing, each to himself, the orating that was to be delivered. The contestants were J. L. Poston, Washington college, Wash. D. C.; A. W. Bartlett, Illinois college, Jacksonville, Ill.; Miss E. Jean Nelson, DeWitt university, Green Bay, Wis.; D. H. Geyer, Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware, O.; G. E. Maxwell, Hamline university, Hamline, Minn.; L. Des Moines, Col.; D. F. Natchez, Colorado Wesleyan university, Fort Collins, Colo.; C. E. Winter, Nebraska Wesleyan university, University, Neb.; J. H. La Matte, Missouri State university, Columbia, Mo.; J. H. La Matte, Missouri State university, Columbia, Mo.; J. H. La Matte, Missouri State university, Columbia, Mo.

speaking. He appeared more at home on the stage than any of the other speakers and must have been very much in love with his subject, for he was entirely in earnest. At times his earnestness prevented a perfect enunciation, and words became lost by being fumbled together. It was a refreshing treat to listen to Mr. Bartlett, however, for he appeared so much the old time politician that it was like a professional oasis in an arid desert. "The Car and Jew" attracted attention upon D. F. Mottet. He was a pleasing speaker, and evinced a thorough knowledge of the history of the Jewish race. The car of Balthasar was talked up in anything but harmonizing colors, and it would mean the exile for Mr. Mottet should he ever deliver his oration within the doors of the Lyceum theater. The condition of the Jew, Mr. Mottet maintained, was much to be deplored, yet he hoped to see the car's heart relent in its persecutions of their own.

C. E. Winter was unfortunate with his oration "War and Reason." He struck several snags and ran into a few. As far as composition was concerned, his effort was admirable, though inclined to be extravagant. His style of delivery was also excellent, on the sing-song and pulpit order. "A Car Burchard had the profile subject "An Oratorical Contest." The oratorical contest was not delivered with that brilliancy of tongue which characterized the discourse of L. W. Morgan. The last part of the program was entitled "The Irrepressible Conflict," delivered by J. H. La Matte. From a point of view it was one of the best of the evening. Mr. La Matte going at his subject like an eloquent old-timer.

MRS. MILLER'S DRESSES. She Admits That They Are Artistic But Says They Are Comfortable.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Annie Jenness-Miller told several hundred ladies at the Lyceum theater about "Dress for Health and Beauty." During the lecture Mrs. Miller showed a school girl's or business woman's dress, a house dress, a carriage and calling dress, a rainy-day dress and a ball dress, made according to reform notions. The distinguishing feature of all the dresses she showed was that they were made for her to breathe. She could also raise her hands above her head. The first-mentioned dress was made of a full supply of pockets. Mrs. Miller says that boys delight in pockets in plenty, for they find them convenient for carrying many things dear to the boyish heart. Girls want to do the same, but are not allowed to do so. The one striking novelty shown was the rain dress, cut so short that it reached only within about six inches of the shoe tops. This dress, she explained, is made to wear with a longer water-proof cloak and light gaiters that come up to the lower edge of the dress. It is made short, so that a woman can step in and out of carriages or walk to the practice of continuing cases from time to time after they have been set for trial. There was plenty of room for you as you appeared to appear to them to come to the court only to find the cases have been continued.

McGovern Is Dead. A peculiar turn in the condition of Mike McGovern occurred yesterday afternoon, inflammation setting in in his wounded jaw, causing him to sink rapidly. In the evening his condition was such that his physicians at the hospital gave up hope. He died at 9 o'clock last night. He died very easily, and without saying a word.

Maj. Kemp's Funeral. The military order of the Royal Legion has issued a card to its members requesting as many as possible to attend the funeral of Maj. George A. Kemp at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

SURELY A GO. A Permanent Democratic League Will Be Organized.

The plan to establish in Minneapolis a Democratic league, under the auspices of the Republican party, has been discussed at a meeting of the headquarters of the party, and where Democratic organizations can find quarters for holding meetings will be carried out. The most influential men in the party have taken hold of the matter, and they are meeting with encouragement on all sides. The committees representing the Jeffersonian, the Republican and the League with several prominent Democrats and canvassed the situation. The committees have been meeting with great success so far in canvassing for the party, and they are meeting with encouragement on all sides.

THE POLICE REPORT. An Interesting Paper Furnished by the Superintendent.

officers finally got her into the court house. The two women, who were in perspiration and their clothes bore the marks of Mary's finger nails. Just as the judge was about to ask her if she was ready to testify, she fell with a Comanche like yell, fell over on the floor in a fit. When she recovered she was sentenced to ninety days in the workhouse, and she was taken to the court room swearing like an English trooper.

BETTER TO SEPARATE. Judge Hicks Thinks H. R. Lamereaux Should Part.

The Lamereaux divorce case, on trial yesterday before Judge Hicks, was the center of attraction at the court house. The trial is being conducted in the Judge's private room, which is filled to its utmost capacity.

A large number of ladies are in attendance at the trial, and they are with the closest attention. The grounds of the action are the same on which a decree of divorce was granted several weeks ago—drunkenness and inhuman treatment. There was a large number of witnesses, and in case workhouse, and she was taken to the court room swearing like an English trooper.
