body of delegates formed into line in front of the hall and marched in column order to the Church of the Immaculate Conception. There were nearly 600 uniformed men in line, and with several bands playing mariial airs, the sight of the procession moving slowly along the street was an impressive and interesting one. At the church high mass was solemnized by Rt. Rev. Father Byrne, assisted by Rev. Father McCairon, Rev. Father McIntyre and Rev. Father Kerwick, of Pipestone. The Second regiment band of Fort Snelling played the offertory, and Rev. Byrne delivered a short address, welcoming the delegates and speaking in terms of the highest praise of the motive which brought them together. When the services were concluded the delegates formed in line again and marched to the hall, where a short business ses-sion was held. The committee on cre-dentials was appointed and ordered to dentials was appointed and ordered to report at 4:30. The delegates then went to the Nicollet house, where diner was served. The Evening Programme.

The meeting at Harmonia hall in the evening was rather late in beginning, owing to the fact that the afternoon session lasted until after time for supper. It was, therefore, 9 o'clock before the meeting was called to order and an announcement made that Mayor Winston, who was on the programme for the opening speech, had been called to Eau Claire on important business, and would be unable to respond. Rev. Father McCarron, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, volunteered to take the mayor's place and entertained the audience with a few remarks everyone of the cause some political joint and go back to chasing police items and coroner's cases. Church of the Immaculate Conception, and in the "show-down" it was revealed that he had been "bluffing."

What about the arrangements for the conception of the occasion. and entertained the audience with a few remarks apropos of the occasion. The Ancient Order of Hibernians, he said, had in its many years of existence a noble history. The future would be no less beautiful than the past. It had many points in common with other organizations, yet by the signs which symbolized it, the order was in his opinion far ahead of all of them. These signs were brotherly friendship, Catholic unity and Christian charity. By them the members of the order would conquer. Miss Therese Spectman rendered a piano selection at the conclusion of Father McCarron's remarks, and was accorded generous applause for her effort.

The next name on the programme was James H. Byrnes, of St. Paul. The name was the only thing visible of Mr.

Byrnes, so he was "scratched," and Edward O'Brien delivered his college ora-tion on "The Cause of Ireland's Debase-ment." Mr. O'Brien has delivered the ment." Mr. O'Brien has delivered the oration on several previous occasions, and, though an excellent one, it is sufficiently familiar to newspaper readers to render a synopsis unnecessary. The sum and substance of the argument is that Ireland's debasement is caused by a wrong system of land tenure and because the statutory law is in conflict with the natural law.

Miss Francis Bailey sang that tender Irish song, "Kathleen Ma vourneen." in an exquisite manner, after which Hon. John McCarthy, state delegate of the order, delivered a pithy and humorous speech, giving a short history of the order and a resume of the work accomplished. Over 185,000 people belonged to the order, he said; over 300 rifle brigged or the product of the reader and a speech spire of the said; over 300 rifle brigged or the product of to the order, he said; over 300 rifle brigades and uniformed companies existed; over 3,000 divisions and branch societies could be found in every state and territory in the Union, as well as Manitoba and Canada. In the past two years $13,000 had been paid out to widows as insurance money, and annually over insurance money, and annually over a half million dollars were paid out in earing for the sick and needy. In fact, Mr. McCarthy said, the Hibernians was the only Irish organization on earth worth anything at all, and could give all worth anything at all, and could give all the rest cards and spades. At the conclusion of his discourse Mrs. Margie Nevin-Dougherty sang "Dorris" and delighted the audience so much that she was compelled to respond to an encore and sang "Wild Bells."

Miss Marie Collins also won the audience with her discriptive recitation entitled "Christmas Night at the Quarters."

He felt annoyed because the audience was so small, and frankly told his auditors that the Irish people of the city ought to be ashamed of the apathy shown. He said he did not care for a St. Patrick's day Irishman who over a year got out, and he did not care for a St. Patrick's day Irishman, who once a year got out and tied a piece of green ribbon in his coat, for colored people did the same thing, and it showed no particular patriotism on the part of the Irishman. An Irishman that will work was the the kind he admired. In referring to the many brigades and rifle companies, belonging to the order, Mr. Gallagher reparked that these rifles were not, only for the laudable purpose of furnishing bread for the orphan and widow, but for English toast. The order was working for national Irish supremacy and the men who form the rifle companies do not drill merget to exercise. panies do not drill merely to exercise

"No." said he enthusiastically, "they are not out on dress parade, but every time they put their hands on their rifles they do it with the hope that they may level it at the eye of the enemy of their country."

Mr. Gallagher also spoke on the present condition of affairs in Ireland, and incidentally referred to politics in this country. Altogether, his discourse was very interesting. Among the other speakers of the evening were Rev. Father Christie, of the Church of ths Ascension, and John Kennedy.

DEMOCRATS IN NUMBERS.

They'll Go to Chicago - Union Leaguers Preparing a "Wake." Minneapolis will be well represented at the Democratic national convention in Chicago next week. A meeting of Minneapolis Democrats was held in the office of James W. Lawrence last evening to make arrangements for going to the convention. The meeting was composed of members of the Jefferson club, some of the gentlemen present being some of the gentlemen present being also members of the Cleveland club. Both organizations will have a large number of members on hand in Chicago. Over fifty were in attendance last evening, and at least 200 Democrats have signified their intention of going. The business of the meeting last evening was the appointment of the necessary com-mittees on arrangements. The main point at issue is the one of badges. Many of the Jefferson club are in favor of going to Chicago merely as a Democratic club, piedged to the cause of no particular candidate. Cleveland clubmen, on the other hand, want to wear Cleveland badges. Last night a committee representing the membership of both organizations was appointed to canvass this matter of badges and report to both clubs tonight. The committee will report to the regular meeting of the Cleveland club, at the rooms of this organization, 421 Nicollet avenue, and to an adjourned meeting of the Jefferson club in the office of James W. Lawrence, on the second floor of the Boston block. Every member of both clubs should attend. A committee was also appointed to make the necessary transportation. A change has come over the spirit of the Union league. No longer is it the lion rampant of the local Republican menagerie. It is the toothless old exmenagerie. It is the toothless old ex-monarch of the forest, who blinks at the gaping crowd and snores away his life dreaming of the days when his lusty roar startled the echoes of the woodland and rent the silent air of the desert. His claws are folded on his gently heaving breast but he simulates the appearance of the emepror of the animal domain because he is fed for that purpose. The convenhe is fed for that purpose. The conven-tiondid it all. The Union League met Monday evening to make arrangements for a ratification meeting to indorse the action of the late lamented (and occa-sionally cursed) Republican national convention. Last night the league met again, or a part of it did, to hear reports and make still further arrangments. The Union league has decided to have a ratification meeting. It will be held in Armory hall next Satarday evening. It will be called a ratification meeting on the bill. If it partakes in any degree of the sailed a ratheaton meeting on the bill. If it partakes in any degree of the sessions preliminary to it, it will be a sort of memorial service, or a "wa ke." Last night about thirty-five men were present, presided over by President Butters, of the Union League. President Butters wore a mournful, a reverential air, as if conscious of his presence in the house of mourning, of standing face to face with the grim mystery, the end of all life. The members of the club followed his example rigidly. They spoke in low tones, with eyes cast down in solemn reflection. John Goodnow was about the only man who could so far throw off the influence of the presence of the corpse to be able to make the necessary motions for the appointment of committees. And the village dominie was there—William Henry Eustis. He condoled with the sorrowing family but doled with the sorrowing family but eulogized the deceased, Blaine. The sermon had the effect of arousing the ing arrangements to ratify, as they cal it, the action of the national convention, evidence was coming into Minneapolis of the real effect of the late convention. Judge M. Syron, chairman of the county committee in Clay county, wrote to A. S. Dowdall yesterday that he had just called a meeting of the Republican county committee to elect a new chairman. The action of the national conventions of the property of the conventions of the property of t tional convention so thoroughly disgust ed Judge Syron that he could not remain at the head of the Republican committee and his self-respect. The Cleveland club will meet tonight at the regular meeting place, 421 Nicol-let avenue. The business before the meeting will be the making of arranger ments for attending the Democratic national convention in Chicago. HARPELS IN COURT.

Sequel to the Plot to Kidnap Little Girl.

About four months ago something akin to a sensation was caused on the akin to a sensation was caused on the east side by the attempted kidnaping of a child named Dores Harpel. Today the sequel bobbed up in the district court in the divorce trial of Selda J. Harpel against her husband, Emanuel Harpel. Mrs. Harpel is a very prepossessing woman, twenty-five years of age. She was accompanied by her child Doris, and kept close watch of her all through the proceedings as though fearful of, another possible attempt to steal her daughter. The basis of the action is cruel and inhuman treatment. Mrs. Harpel was the main witness on her own behalf. She detailed a long list of indignities she had put up with at the hands of her husband at their home in Etie, Penn. Although holding a good position, both socially and financially, her husband, she said, compelled her to do all the work of the house, even to chopping wood. At the time of her confinement he dekied her medical attendance, and frequently struck and kicked her. Her testimony was corroborated by her sister, Mrs. Ellison, and her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Gjerum, with whom she is now living on the East side. The case will be resumed this morning. Mrs. Harpel claims her husband would not have defended the case had she been willing to let him have the child. east side by the attempted kidnaping of ocratic National Convention. Minneapolis cannot have a monopoly of all the national political conventions. A few weak-minded individuals in this city really believed for a time yesterday that the Democratic convention would be held in Minneapolis. It all grew out of a small news item in the morning papers. The storm that swept over Chicago Monday night wrecked a portion of the wigwam being erected for the accommodation of the Democratic convention. That was all the information that came to Minneapolis. Before noon the report had been spread abroad through the city that the Democratic convention would actually be held in Minneapolis; that the local

Ar Charges against his wife Annie. They were married at Litchfield, Minn., in October, 1887, and have two children, whom Olof asks the custody of. He claims to be thirty-three years of age, and his wife ten years younger.

A Savage Teamster. Jacob Foster, a teamster employed in Nelson & Tenny's lumber yard, brutally Nelson & Tenny's lumber yard, brutally assaulted his foreman, Andrew Sundlie, yesterday morning. Sundlie ordered Foster to take a load of shingles to Clough's yard, but he refused. A dispute followed, and Foster, becoming very angry, jumped from his load and seized a heavy club, with which he assaulted Sundlie. He struck him several blows in the face, felling him to the ground. Before the other workmen fully realized what had taken place, Foster had escaped, and the police are now looking for him. Sundlie was removed to his home at 1313 Monroe street northeast, where he lies in a precarious northeast, where he lies in a precariou Democratic Convention. be held in Minneapolis; that the local committee in Chicago had telegraphed to Minneapolis asking for the use of the convention hall. The story spread and gathered strength as it spread. The name of every prominent Democrat in the city who happens to be away from home just now was connected with the story. Each of them was said to have telegraphed from Chicago asking for the Minneapolis convention hall. Some of the members of the local citizens' convention committee actually believed the story, and went so far as to write out a message to the Chicago people offering them the use of the exposition building. But better sense prevailed, and the telegram was never sent.

That story had the town torn wide committee, and the town torn wide to the first the first of the late forms. Seth Abbott father of the late forms about the form of the committee, sent.

Seth Abbott, father of the late Emma Aboott, was defendant in the district court yesterday to a suit brought against him by Thomas L. Clark. The action sought to recover $500 and interest, being a mortgage on a lot bought by Clark from Abbott, and which the latter said was free and clear. The jury returned a verdict for the full amount claimed.
