

Yesterday was the worst possible day for the meeting of the women interested in the Globe fresh-air fund, but neither wind nor weather had power to prevent the meeting at 10 o'clock in the Ryan parlors. No definite plan of action was adopted, but it was decided to call a general meeting next Thursday at 2 1/2 in the afternoon in the New York Life building. Everybody in any way interested in the good work is asked to be present, and a large meeting is anticipated. The fund is assuming encouraging proportions. Beside the contributions left at the Globe office during the week, there are additional subscriptions to the amount of $30 in the hands of various persons interested. Several desirable homes in the country have already been offered, and the success of the movement seems already assured. The Globe subscriptions for the week are: Daily Globe, $25.00; A. E. Martin, 25.00; Anon., 25.00; E. H. Moore, 25.00; A Mother, 25.00; Total, $125.00.

WHAT ONE WOMAN THINKS.

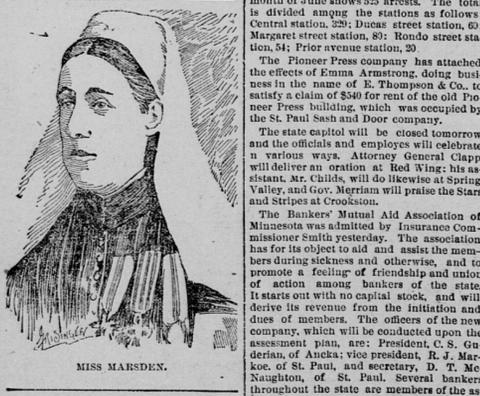

A Woman Reader Gives C. J. B. Some More Advice. C. J. B.'s letter, and the Globe's remarks concerning it, have been read by a great many women throughout the Northwest. Doubtless there are dozens of women who have opinions on the subject, and could give the perplexed young man good advice, but so far only one letter on the subject has been sent in. It comes from North Dakota, and the paper is of the latest blue tint, and of the ultra-correct size and texture. The handwriting is the angular, tall, hard-to-read style we have borrowed from our cousins across the pond, and the letter says—well, let me just show it to you. Here it is, read, mark, inwardly digest, and tell me what you think of the same subject, or on any other subject you've been thinking about.

Before a man reaches the point of life which inclines him to ask a woman to become his wife his sole aim should be in making himself a virtuous and a woman who will have him. He should live up to the ideal he has of the woman who is to be the light of happiness in his home. In so doing there is little danger that any woman whose love is worth winning will refuse. However, taking such opinions on the subject into consideration, and the object of your love is not inclined to return your regard, show her that you have conferred an honor upon her in giving such a love, by turning to the duties of a wife with a determination to make the best of the situation.

Show her she has indeed lost a great happiness by continuing to be the good man who catered himself for her and becoming even more brave and manly by the trial. To be able to "banish her image from your brain" would show weakness of character and no true depth of feeling; it would give evidence of a love incapable of lasting "until death us do part." "Banish?" Such a thing is not possible; for that element which is called "love" is not within human control. "Sorrow is knowledge;" therefore turn your mind to those intellectual pursuits which will elevate it, and which it naturally craves in such distress; for love calls the spiritual being into play; therefore let the grief of love purify and elevate heart, mind and soul to even a more ideal region of perfection. Sincerely yours, WOMAN READER.

A NOBLE WOMAN.

The Noble Self-Sacrifice of Miss Marsden. Kate Marsden, the woman who wears the mantle of Florence Nightingale, will soon be in America to carry on her noble mission of charity. One year ago Miss Kate Marsden left her home in England to labor among the leper outcasts of Siberia, and since the martyr's mission of Father Damien awakened the world's attention, no instance of approaching his self-sacrifice has been recorded, unless it be the present one, says Mrs. Wakeman, in the Chicago Post. During her visit to the scenes where the sufferers are enduring an existence much more terrible than death, she has proved herself in the grandest manner more ways than one. Miss Marsden has recently returned to St. Petersburg, intending to spend some time between that city and Moscow in order to raise further funds for the relief of the Siberian lepers. Her fame had already preceded her, so that not in St. Petersburg alone, but in the streets and squares of the ancient czars—in the palaces of nobles as in the humblest quarters of these great cities, she was constantly mentioned in tones of reverence and love. In addition to soliciting charitable aid in St. Petersburg she also engaged in the organization of relief committees, so that the movement for succoring the lepers might become a permanent one. Her first trip was to South Africa as an emissary to the Red Cross, from which she proceeded to Asia Minor, where an epidemic of leprosy was raging. While there she discovered from information given her by the people she met that in Sakuntla, Siberia, there grew a herb which, if applied during the initial stages of leprosy, was practically in-

are four tracts of land aggregating nearly six acres. The 80 per cent of the fire department amounts to $172,000 and how to pay the hundred and ninety odd thousand dollars from that sum is what is bothering the board of fire commissioners. Commissioner Martin was appointed a committee of one at the last meeting of the board to confer with the comptroller regarding the difficulty, but as McCarty sticks strictly to the law—well, "there you are."

CORRALLED BY SHARK.

Fortuna Fouled a Buoy in the White Bear Yacht Race. Yesterday's regatta of the White Bear Yacht association at White Bear was the best and most interesting of the season. The race came down steadily until 3 in the afternoon. A strong two-reed wind, dead from the east, blew steadily, and the white-crested waves broke against the shore with a never-ending crash. Because of the rain, the start was not made until 4 o'clock, when the cats were sent off, and the boats following from the harbor. The cat-boat race was considerable of a procession, the Nushka taking the lead at the start and steadily increasing until the finish, when the other cats were discovered even behind the sloops. When the starting gun for sloops was fired, the Nushka crossed at center, and Luther Newport's Shark was entered for the first race, and James P. Zimmerman's hands made a splendid struggle for first place. Fortuna and Shark fought all the way around the course, which was sailed twice over, and until the finish it was not to be determined with any certainty which would win. All the boats were close together, but not time were they in it for first and second place. Hornet did some very good sailing, the little Fortuna was very well handled, and sailed a splendid race. Waspie was not in it, and finished just to last. Owing to lack of a crew, Storm King was unable to enter. Newport is to be congratulated on the success of his new boat, for success it surely was when she sailed such a race as yesterday's before being properly ballasted. Dr. Welch is particularly happy, and Fortuna is well inclined since the new suit of sails have been stretched. The entries, colors and actual time are given in the following table, the corrected time not having been figured over to the satisfaction of having an official measurement of Shark. Fortuna was subsequently disqualified by the judges for fouling No. 2 buoy. This gives first position to Shark and second to Hornet.

Important to Ladies.

A very important meeting of the sanitation committee, called together by Dr. Hewett, and all those who are interested in the "Fresh-air fund" committee for sick children, will be held Thursday, July 7, at 10 o'clock, in the Women's room, New York Life building, Minnesota street. This meeting is called to perfect an organization, appoint an executive committee, and to discuss practical work, and to confer with and hear reports from different physicians as to the best methods for assisting in making the little ones more comfortable. It is earnestly hoped there will be a large attendance.

GRAND CENTRAL MARKET.

A Light Neat Structure That Compares Favorably With the Leading Markets of the East.

Situated on Bridge Square With Sheds for Marketers Along Third to Market Street.

Ever since the first talk of securing the National Convention for St. Paul there has been a desire on the part of the citizens to have the Market removed from the old location on Seventh street. There was a strong effort made to transform that old structure into an auditorium building and in consequence the parties that had occupied stalls in it for years commenced seeking a new and suitable location. The site that was the most desirable was found on Third street, from Market to Wabasha street. There was plenty of space for the Market Gardeners to handle their gardeners. Parties interested in property in this

Excelsior Meat and Provision Company, which recently opened handsome new quarters at 31 East Seventh street, is in reality the same as the Capital City Meat Company, the latter being a branch, and both under the same management, so they buy in extremely large quantities, and in consequence make low prices, as well as show a great variety.
