GILFILLAN SAYS NO.

Ben Harrison Will Get the Ex-Congressman's Vote This Year,

But the Letter of John B. Is Not Clearer Than Is Necessary.

Nora Donahue's Money Tied Up by a Breach of Promise Case.

General News of the Day Gathered by Vigilant Globe Reporters.

Well, Hon. John B. Gilfillan has declared himself-in a way. He has asserted his Republicanismin a way. When the GLOBE announced yesterday morning that good authority ex isted for saying that Hon. John B. Gilfillan is pretty thouroughly in accord with the other eminent Republicans who have embraced Democratic principles it announced a fact. The authority for that announcement did exist and does exist. But the announcement had a visible and laudible effect upon the Republicans of Minneapolis and their organs. The Tribune affected mirth. The Journat was mad, boiling mad, all the way through its somewhat loosely-fitting draperies. The announcement that Mr. Gilfillan was considered friendly to De-mocracy was "real scandalous," the old girl said. Even the Tribune, in its excess of mirth, counterfeited of course stamped its cloven boof and called the simple announcement, couched in terms flattering to Mr. Gilfillan, a "malicious

But upon H. C. Belden, the law partner of Mr. Gilfillan, the announcement had the most startling effect. He said:

 "That report is without the suspicion of truth, and it is a falsehood throughout. Why, they might just as well say that President Harrison would bolt the Republican ticket. As Mr. Gilfillan's law partner I characterize it as without foundation and unworthy of serious consideration."

Mark the beginning of the last sen-ence: "As Mr. Gilfillan's law partner, "etc. But of that later. Mr. Gilfillan called at the GLOBE office last night with this simple statement: last night with this simple statement:

MINNEAPOLIS, Saturday Evening, Oct. 29, 1892.—Editor St. Paul Dairy Globe, St. Paul, Minn.—My Dear Sir: I cannot find words to suitably express my astonishment when, upon my return to the city late this evening, my attention was first called by a friend to fan article relating to myself in your issue of this date. In your article you truly say that I am not a disappointed office seeker nor a forehead; that my Republicanism has never been questioned (so far as I know), and that I am not shouting my political beliefs from the house tops: but beyond this your article is radically and sadly in error. I believe I am as staunch a Republican as lives in the state of Minnesota, and a zealous admirer and supporter of the present administration, and shall surely vote for its continuance If my life is spared until the 8th of November and I retain the ordinary use of my senses. I am most positively a firm believer in the dectrine of houses movement after the results of the present and retain the ordinary use of my senses. I am most positively a firm believer in the dectrine of houses movement and retain the ordinary use of my senses. ember and I retain the ordinary use of my enses. I am most positively a firm believer in the doctrine of honest money and the procetive policy, so called, including reciprocy, as essential to an efficient and healthful diministration of this government; and these rinciples thave earnestly proclaimed, not found house-tops, but upon all suitable occasions, and expect so to do while life lasts, very truly yours.

Mr. Gilfilian's letter is neither long or yoluminously expressed. It does not cover the ground it might. But it will do.

When Mr. Gilfillan was in the GLOBE
Office last night he didn't seem disturbed in the least about what the GLOBE had said about him—not half so funch as some of the Republicans met on the streets. But he was not alone, H. C. Belden was with him.
Now Mr. Belden acted very much as the caged tiger is supposed to the caged tiger is supposed to act. While Mr. Gilfillan was speaking with the man at the desk Mr. Belden excitedly paced the floor. The hardwood still bears the impressions weden to the state of the s sions made by the impact of his walking stick. Mr. Belden said not a word; he looked several standard width col-nums of double-leaded great primer. The scene conveyed the impression that Mr. Belden was the party injured, if any one, by the GLOBE's announcement. The scene recalled Mr. Belden's nor voluminously expressed. It does not cover the ground it might. But it language to an evening edition inter-view, "As Mr. Gilfillan's law partner, I characterize," etc. Does the secret lie there? Is it simply a question of business, as "Jane" says?

Possibly yes, possibly no. The fact remains, and it wears a significant mien, that the law partner, not the prin-cipal, is the man most wrought up by the disclosure.

Mr. Gilfillan's position is clear, so far as he has made it clear and no farther. He might have written much more had

Ald. George Durnam has been buying horses for the city. Some people have grown suspicious. The council has ordered an investigation. Now Durnam appears with a half-column "explanation" to prove that nothing wrong crept into his dealings with the committee. His transaction was mercly. erept into his dealings with the committee. His transaction was merely a private transaction, he says. But the pity charter forbids "private transactions" between the city and its officials. Would it not be well, since Durnam is a candidate for re-election, to elect in his stead Hugh Jennings, who will not be looking for any "private transactions" with the city? But first let the council investigate this particular "private transaction." And while it is about it, shouldn't the council learn who that "one member of the committee" on fire department was who came to Durnam's stable to buy horses?

Who knows Charles S. Cairns, Repubican nominee for the legislature in the Thirty-first district? Everybody knows Cairns. The ebullition caused by the work of the notorious "crusaders," Briggs, Young and Selover, sent Cairns to the top of the pot. Once there, Cairns began to boast of his efforts to east um upon the city of Minneapolis in ering the infamous spy system. cairns was the man. The case will be aired in the municipal court. Blichfeldt has been let alone for some time now. This is not as it should be, although Blichfeldt's silence and obscurity partially palliate the oversight. For a man who has been openly charged with the commission of indictable offenses and who has never seriously answered the charges, Mr. Blichfeldt is wearing a remarkably smooth front.

Almost every one outside the all too numerous Plummer family, which now monopolizes a large section of the Republican county ticket, will vote for James E. Egan for county surveyor. Frank M. Nye. Frank M. Nye, the Republican candidate for county attorney, was born in Maine in 1852. His parents removed to St. Croix county, Wisconsin, two years later. Mr. Nye was educated at River Fails, Wis., and was admitted to the bar at Hudson in 1878. The following year he removed to Polk county, where he entered upon the practice of law. His ability as a speaker and his remarkable faculty as a cross examiner soon won him distinction. He was elected county attorney, and held the office for five years. In 1884 Mr. Nye was elected to the Wisconsin legislature. Mr. Nye came to Minneapolis in 1886. In 1888 he was made assistant county attorney under Robert Jamison, and two years later he was nominated for county attorney. Under ordinary circumstances he would have been elected, but he, too, was defeated with the rest of the Republican tiexet, though it is a significant fact that Mr. Nye ram 1,500 votes ahead of his ticket. It may be added that Mr. Nye, is without a doubt one of the ablest criminal lawyers in the state of Minnesota. He has a very large criminal practice, and has successfully conducted many noted cases that have placed him in the foremost rank of his profession. He is a genial, kindhearted person that is always willing to offer advice to his fellowmen. Mr. Nye has made no piedges further than that, if elected, he will discharge the duties of the office to the best of his ability, which is all that any law-abiding citizen can expect. Frank M. In 1853 he, with other well-known business men, organized the Scandia bank, the rapid and substantial growth of which was due in no small measure to Mr. Haugan's ability as cashier of the institution. In 1891 he organized the Washington bank, of which he is the president, and which already is recognized as one of the leading financial institutions of the city.

From 1878 to 1887 he served as a member of the city council, being elected as a Republican from the Democratic Sixth ward. He proved himself to be one of the most valuable members of the council. He was named as a member of the park board by the law creating the board in 1883 and was re-elected in 1888. In 1889 he was chosen vice president and in 1891 president of the far-seeing and progressive policy pursued by this public body he is justly entitled to a liberal share of the credit due to it for the present magnificent condition of the park system of Minneapolis.

Mr. Haugan combinus all the qualities which receive success as their reward in this growing Northwest. Broad-gauged, liberal, enterprising and progressive, he has been singularly successful as a manager of large financial cuterprises. His adaptability for the transaction of public business is known to all who have come in contact with him in a public capacity. He is not an orator, but what he says from the platform is pertinent and to the point. M. W. Nash.

M. W. Nash, Republican candidate for county commissioner from the Third district, arrived here from Corning, N. Y., in May, 1858. He has resided in Minneapolis ever since, and is recognized as one of the old citizens who have contributed by their energy and go-aheaditiveness to make this city the pride of Minnesota. He is a staunch Republican who has always labored for the success of his party. Four years ago he received the unanimous nomination for county commissioner, and led his ticket by receiving a majority of 8,000 votes over his competitor. He discharged his duties so faithfully and well that he received a renomination by acclamation for a second term. Being a heavy tax payer himself and considerable of a financier, he has been the right man to attend to the affairs of the county. Mr. Durnam is at present a member of the council, having been elected in 1888. He was born in Hennepin county, and has been a resident of the Third ward for the past ten years, where he has conducted a large livery and sale business. At the time Mr. Durnam entered the council the ward was in a bad financial condition. The street fund was overdrawn $7,000; now there is a surplus of $5,000. The street sprinkling fund was overdrawn $1,650, and property owners were being assessed 7½ cents a front foot; the assessment is now two cents per foot, and there is now a surplus of $4,000 in that fund. There were no sewers that could be connected with, and only two half-blocks of paving. Now all the leading streets in the ward are paved. There has been an expenditure of $5,300 for ward implements. The ward never was in a better financial condition than it is now. The delegates to the city Republican con

After graduation he immediately began the study of law in the offices of Mack & Baird, at Carthage, Ill., and was admitted to the bar in this state in September, 1880. He has practiced law in this city ever since. He has never been a candidate for a political office before. Mr. McIntyre was for two years secretary of the Presbyterian Alliance in this city and is now an elder in the First Presbyterian church aud the superintendent of its Sunday school. At the close of his school life Mr. Nye went to Chicago and acquired a knowledge of the drug business. He came to Minneapolis in 1881 and established himself in that line at 409 Plymouth avenue, where he built up a prosperous business, which he still controls. In January, 1889, Mr. Nye was elected secretary of the board of park commissioners, and has been unanimously re-elected each year since then, receiving the support of every member of the board irrespective of party. In this capacity he has gained a splendid reputation for good business management of the park affairs.

Courtland N. Dickey. From Courtland N. Dickey's long experience in the office of clerk of the district cour ence in the office of cierk of the discrict court he is unquestionably the best litted man in the county to take charge thereof. A mere legal education would not qualify a man to fill the position. In ISTS Mr. Dickey went to California, and after five years in the Golden state came to Minnesota, and in July, ISS3, entered the office of E. J. Davenport, who was then clerk of the district court. At this time there were but two, men in the office beside Mr. Davenport, the late Capt. C. B. Tirrell, then chief deputy, and Mr. Dickey. In ISS3, after Capt. Tirrell succeeded to the office, Mr. Dickey was appointed chief deputy, which responsible position he held until August 1 of this year. During the nine years Mr. Dickey has been engaged in this work he has proven himself entinently fitted for the position to which he now aspires. He has made hosts of friends, and the fact that he has almost the manimous support of the members of the bar of Hennepin county, regardless of political beliefs, is the best evidence that he is to be chosen ejerk of the district court of Hennepin county. The office certainty requires a good lawyer and a good man, and this was kept in view in the convention which thanimously nominated for that place John II. Steele.

Mr. Steele is thirty six years of age, was brought up on a farm in Illinois, where he received a common school and academic education in that state. He taught school for several years, and after careful study was admitted to practice law in the supreme court of Illinois in 1883. He came to Minneapolis in the spring of 1884, since which time he has been building up a rapidly gaining and successful law bractice, having been engaged in a number of cases of importance which were won by his careful preparation, perseverance and marked ability before juries. He makes a "rattling" good political speech, too, and has won many friends and many votes in his spirited canvass of the city and county. A leading practitioner of the Hennepin county bar says of Mr. Steele: "He is a bright law-yer, competent, honest and honorable, and I believe he would make a good judge of probate," Another gentleman says, "John H. Yale Men Will Meet, Tuesday evening, Nov. 15, is the time selected by the Yale Alumni Associa-tion of the Northwest for their ninth annual meeting and banquet, and the West hotel, Minneapolis, the place. After the business meeting, which takes place at 6:30, the members will assist Judge Atwater in disposing of an ele-gant banquet, given by him as retiring gant banquet, given by him as retiring president, after eight years of c ontinuous service in that position. The Yale men say that the judge could have been president for life, but he peremptorily refused to serve longer. In addition to the banquet there will be toasts, responses, college songs and glees and a general good time, such as college men like to have upon such occasions. like to have upon such occasions.

Cash Prizes $150.00. $100.00 and $50.00. Offered by the Minneapolis Improvement Company Northeast.

The above Company owns a large tract of land in Northeast Minneapolis and adjacent thereto, which it proposes to at once develop by platting into a Suburban Park Addition, offering special inducements to manufacturing enterprises and to all persons in search of employment and a comfortable home. To accomplish this, adequate railroad trackage must be furnished to manufacturers, and a system of parks, water works, electric and gas lighting, sewerage and other necessary facilities must be supplied. The plat is being prepared, and the company devires a short, suggestive and appropriate name for a locality embracing manufacturing, cottages and fine residences, not to say luxuries, for its inhabitants, and will receive proposals for a name for the addition from any resident of Minneapolis or St. Faul up to 12 o clock noon, Dec. 1st, 1st2, upon the form of coupon herewith annexed. But one proposal will be received for a name from a single person. The directors of the Company, consisting of Thomas Lowry, John S. Pillsbury J. F. Conklin, A. Y. Davidson and F. G. James, will open all proposals at a special meeting for that purpose: decide upon their first, second and third choice of names as proposed; advertise their decision in the daily papers of Minneapolis and St. Paul in-which this advertisement appears, and award and pay to the proposers of their first, second and third selections the cash prizes of $150.00, and $50.00 in gold, and in the order as named, respectively. If two or more persons propose the same name, and as selected by the Directors of the Company, the premiums will be divided pro rata in each choice.
