

TAMMANY TURNS OUT

Grand Demonstration by the Greatest of Political Organizations.

The Big Hall Jammed Full of Loyal and Enthusiastic Democrats.

Streets for Blocks Around Crowded With Overflow Meetings.

Speakers Enough to Address an Army Volunteer Their Services.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The Democratic organization known as the Tammany Society of New York gave a grand demonstration of its political activity to-night, when it stood sponsor for the biggest demonstration of the campaign. The rally occurred in and around Tammany Hall, and was successful beyond the most sanguine expectations.

Arrangements Were Made to get big attractions like Gov. Russell, Senator Carlisle, Senator Gorman and W. A. Hall, the Georgian story teller, to talk inside the hall, and a dozen stands were erected from Third avenue up to Broadway.

Was One Mass of hustling, humanity. The crowd was good-natured and orderly, that is, if enthusiasm and noise can be exempted from the term, for the cheering for the various candidates of the party and the singing of campaign songs was continuous.

The doors of Tammany hall were opened at 7 o'clock and there a rush resembling nothing so much as the storming of a fortress ensued. The famous place was soon crowded to its utmost, and those who had failed to gain admittance into the hall turned their attention to finding advantageous places at the various outdoor stands.

The Decorations.

The big hall inside was appropriately decorated. Across the stage was a huge oil painting draped in national flags, flanked by two large medallions in which were the portraits of Cleveland and Stevenson.

A RINGING LETTER.

Senator Gorman Makes Up for His Inability to Speak. Precisely at 8 o'clock Senator Roesch led the platform delegation, and a great wave of cheering surged out into the street.

THE SPEECHES.

Great applause followed Senator Eustis' speech. Senator John G. Carlisle was announced as the next speaker. He was cheered and cheered again. He said: "I wish it were in my power to make something of an adequate return for the circumstances I must be content with submitting to you a very few words."

BEAT THE RECORD

Last Night's Great Demonstration Under German-American Auspices.

A Monster and Significant Outpouring of the Loyal Democrats.

Streets Taken Up by the Biggest Outdoor Parade of the Season.

Martin's Opera House Far Too Small for the Immense Crowd.

Lawler and Castle Given a Wonderfully Enthusiastic Ovation.

Stirring Evidences of the Big Majorities Ramsey Country Will Give.

The Democratic German-American citizens have kept their word and given St. Paul the largest and most magnificent political parade ever seen in the city. As a mere idea of its magnitude the procession marched from Seven corners down Third street to Robert, crossed the Robert street bridge, proceeded up Fillmore avenue to South Washaba, and on South Washaba to Paul Martin's hall; and the head of the procession reached the hall before the tail had passed Seven corners. There were fully 1,000 horsemen in line, and the number of footmen carrying torches is estimated from 5,000 to 6,000. Somewhere about a dozen bands of music were scattered along in the ranks.

It was a glorious scene of enthused Democracy, and such a one as means victory for the entire Democratic ticket, from the head to the foot. Every torch and uniform in the possession of Democrats were taken during the day. And these fell very far short of meeting the demand; so Republicans who possessed uniforms were called upon and if they were unwilling to loan them, the articles were purchased. Many Republicans, however, kindly loaned their outfit. It seemed as though everybody was seized with an irresistible determination to be in line, and many who had never before been in the ranks of the Republicans were seen in the lines shouting for Cleveland, Lawler and Castle.

Not a Democrat who could procure a torch and uniform was missing, and the streets were crowded, everywhere with people who were unable to procure torches, but who were joining in the wild revel with a torch in their hand. It was a night never to be forgotten, and marks a new era in the politics of St. Paul, for hundreds of the nation's patriots have been seen in the streets, articles were purchased. Many Republicans, however, kindly loaned their outfit. It seemed as though everybody was seized with an irresistible determination to be in line, and many who had never before been in the ranks of the Republicans were seen in the lines shouting for Cleveland, Lawler and Castle.

The Parade Begins.

It was 7:30 when the first notes of a band were heard. In a few moments the Seventh Ward White Hat brigade marched down Third street, a band of two clubs, headed by the band proceeded down Third to Sibley, up Sibley to Fifth, down the south side of Smith park, up to Wacouta to Sixth, on Sixth eastward.

It was raining so, and as no other torchlight clubs had appeared many Republicans were chafing with their hands. They were unable to procure torches, but who were joining in the wild revel with a torch in their hand. It was a night never to be forgotten, and marks a new era in the politics of St. Paul, for hundreds of the nation's patriots have been seen in the streets, articles were purchased. Many Republicans, however, kindly loaned their outfit. It seemed as though everybody was seized with an irresistible determination to be in line, and many who had never before been in the ranks of the Republicans were seen in the lines shouting for Cleveland, Lawler and Castle.

WRECKAGE COMING ASHORE.

THE OSTRICH'S CREW, NUMBERING SEVEN, SUPPOSED TO BE LOST. FRANKFORT, Mich., Nov. 3.—Wreckage from the schooner Ostrich came ashore at the Manitous yesterday. The crew of six men and a woman are supposed to have been lost. The Ostrich left Milwaukee for Torch lake Oct. 9. She was owned and commanded by Capt. John McKay. This is the boat that some people think had a collision with the glacier, which resulted in the loss of both vessels. The wreckage of both is not far apart. Until the wreck of the schooner can be found this idea will be entertained generally here.

FOUND IN THE RAINS.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 3.—On a report by some one that they had seen a man burn to death in J. B. Kissinger's store during the fire, a search was instituted, during which a number of bones were uncovered. They were removed to the morgue, but the coroner is in doubt whether they are those of a human being.
