BRILLIANT OUTLOOK.

A More Hopeful Future Never Faced the Great Northwest Section.

What May Be Expected When Present Manufactories Get in Motion.

Leading Merchants and Bankers Voice the Section's Hopeful View.

Nothing but the Wheat Blockade in the Way of Big Business.

The Northwest is quite safe-looking over the situation from the standpoin of trade. Prolific in products, its granaries are full to overflowing. A system of diversified farming and stock growing has accompanied the development of the past seven years so that the farm ers are not entirely dependent on wheat for their revenues. Collections show for their revenues. Collections show some improvement, and the volume of trade is excellent. The country banks of the Northwest were well supplied with money at harvest time, more so than ever before, and they have been able to assist materially in carrying the wheat crop. This has offset somewhat the restricted condition of Eastern markets and of the falling off of the exports of wheat. The banks of the cities have money enough for all legitimate business, and there is plenty of money ss, and there is plenty of mone in the East. The shipments of gold to Europe, that were exceptional for this time of the year, have caused only this—a slight surprise to those who expected only the regular order of finances. The stock of gold and the production of that metal in the United States make a volume nearly three times as great as the entire amount of times as great as the entire amount of gold that was in America in 1879, when this country resumed specie payments. The death of the noted Wizard of Wall street caused no disruption in either the money or share markets of this country. Concerning the faith of this country. Concerning the faith of Eastern men in Northwestern finances, Col. R. M. Newport, one of the best posted mortgage loan investors here, declares that it is boundless. He said: "I have letters now from first-class Eastern parties seeking opportunities to invest large amounts of capital out here for private clients. I can not change my previously expressed view that the Northwest is in a highly prosperous condition."

E. H. Bailey, Cashier First National Bank—Money is in active demand at full rates; still, speaking in a general way, the situation is a very comfortable one. There has as yet been comparatively little money realized from the erops, but the country banks of the Northwest had more money this year than last, and have been able to furnish a great deal of funds for the purpose of carrying wheat. They, in turn, have procured funds from the city banks to some extent. An official of one of the Northern transcontinenal lines told me today that the quantity of wheat in store along that line is one-half greater than it was at the same time last year. The shipments castward and the exports are not equal to the expectations held at the beginning of harvest. Eastern exchange is held mostly between banks, and commands The Banking Situation. mostly between banks, and commands some premium. We have more money lent this year than last. So have our neighbors, and it stands to reason that it is in active demand. I think the wholesale men are finding collections slower than they expected, but that is due to the delay in marketing wheat. There is an abundance of product in the country and collections should imthe country, and collections should im-

A General View of affairs was given by D. Morelaud, of Bradstreet's mercantile agency: "With about a foot of snow soon, followed by clear, cold weather, every prospect would be pleasing to the busi-ness men. They have not had as good a season as they expected, mainly on account of slow collections in some de-partments of trade, but they are not depressed by the situation. They have good reasons to expect excellent times with the new year. There is an immense quantity of grain product in the country districts. The vast amount of products of these three states must be exchanged, and that alone ought to greatly increase business. Yes, with greatly increase business. Yes, with regular winter weather that exchange would be well under way. As it is, it has merely been deferred for a time.

Jason W. Cooper, Griggs, Cooper & Co., Wholesale Grocers—The volume of trade is keening up remarkably well trade is keeping up remarkably well with us for this time of the year. It is exceeding that of last year. The collections are better this month, and, while far from satisfactory, they show a very gratifying improvement as com-pared with the corresponding period in October. The tenor of our letters shows considerable inability on the part of railroads to move the wheat offered, and some of our customers say farmers have to hall a good deal of the wheat back home. This, of course, has had its effect on collections. I can't say that they are complaining as much concerning prices as they are about the lack of facilities for marketing. With all this, there is a general good feeling regarding the Northwest. There is an abundance of resources, but it takes time to realize from them.

realize from them. Views of Merchants. C. J. McConville, Finch, Van Slyke, Young & Co., Wholesale Dry Goods— The recent cold snap and snow storm made business rather better with us In the country it increased trade in win-ter goods so that merchants stocks were broken and our business benefited by their replenishing. There is also an increased trade in holiday goods. The lumbermen, preparing for the winter cut, are causing a large demand for blankets, comforts. Mackinaw goods, woolen socks and goods of that kind. The aggregate is very satisfactory, considering how late it is in the year. There is also a large demand for domes ties of all kinds in consequence of active markets East and steady advances. Raw material, cotton, has advanced fully 50 per cent (3½c per yanced fully 50 per cent (5/5c per pound), and manufactures have been compelled to advance their products. This has caused retailers to buy in anticipation of future wants. A large business has been done by our leading houses, and the tendency is still upward. There is no doubt that all kinds of cotton fabrics will be very much of cotton fabrics will be very much higher in the coming spring. Mr. Young reported collections "fair." He said: "I con't make any better report as yet."
Richards Gordon, Gordon & Ferguson,
Wholesale and Manufacturers of Furs, Hats and Caps—Our trade has been remarkably good this season, and our co lections are also remarkably good. Ir fer to the Northwest, and, generally, throughout the country. We find a good, healthy state of trade. We still use our full torce on fur goods manu facture and are working nights. The volume of the trade is largely in exces of that of a year ago. The demand is for better goods, and is is constantly improving in this respect. There is a much larger proportion of fine goods sold this season than formerly. We anticipate a splendid trade during the coming year. The situation is very good requires the day of the season than for merity the coming year. notwithstanding the low price of wheat. The Wholesale District.

cr. There is no doubt that, as soon as there is a change to regular winter weather, we will have a big trade.

George W. Freeman, President, C. Gotzian & Co., Manufacturers Boots and Shoes—The recent cold weather has helped wonderfully in our trade. The country requires a good deal of goods and the buyers are safe to deal with, although the low price of wheat holds merchants back on some of their accounts. There is a greater demand for counts. There is a greater demand for warm goods than ever and the month of November was the largest November we ever had. We will move into our new building this month so as to begin the new year, '33, in the finest building for mentageing parrosses in the for manufacturing purposes in the Northwest. Our collections have not been equal to what we expected, but the Northwest has abundant resources and the prospects are very bright.

F. C. Abbott, Arthur & Abbott, Wholesale Notions—Business in November has been good, much better than in October. The collections have been very good. There is a fairly good demand for holiday goods in our line. A. Ginterman, Ginterman Brothers, Manufacturers Clothing and Woolen Goods—Our trade is slacking up. The mild weather has been against us of late. If the GLOBE has any influence with the weather maker tell him to give Gebhard Bohn, Bohn Manufacturing Company, Lumber and Building Material—Our trade is fully as good as that of last year. In one item alone—storm sash—up to Nov. 17 our orders were double those of last year. The people can afford to spend more money for these luxuries nowadays.

The Ordinances to "Bring the Transit Company to Time."

All of the Restrictive Measures Slide Through Easily.

The board of aldermen committee on streets met yesterday afternoon and re-The Warren ordinance regulates the speed at which street cars should be operated and gives the fire department service a great many accidents to fire apparatus and firemen have happened by street cars dashing into them. Ald. Warren has devoted a good deal of time to looking up data to support his ordinance. Among the many instances in which street cars have run into the fire the following. No. 11. which street cars have run into the fire department are the following. Nov. 11, while Chemical No. 11 was on the way to a fire, a street car dashed into it at Sixth and Jackson, upsetting and breaking it and injuring the men. It cost the city considerable money to repair the damages to the machinery. April 16, 1891, Assistant Chief Cook was dashed into by a street car while driving in his fire wagon to a blaze, thrown out and injured so severely that it was thought for a while he would not recover. Sep. 6, 1891, No. 8 hose cart was smashed by a street car while it was on the way to a fire. Feb. 12 last Assistant Chief Martin was run into by a street the way to a life. Feb. 12 hast Assistant Chief Martin was run into by a street car while on the way to a blaze and seriously hurt. March 6, 1891, Hook and Ladder No. 2 was smashed by a street car while going to a fire. At the time of the big fire a year ago in the wholesale district a street car dashed into one of the wagons of the fire department while it was crossing the track on Fifth street en route to fire headquarters for more hose, and the driver was thrown out and a part of one of his hands crushed under the wheels of the car. People on the street called to the motoneer to stop, as the fire wagon was almost in front of it, and the motoneer cost or will dead kent on.

As to the regulation of speed of cars, the ordinance provides that in the central part of the city cars shall not run at over eight miles an hour; from outside the center to Dale street they may run the center to Dale street they may run at twelve miles an hour. From Dale street westward their speed is not lim-ited. Mr. Warren has procured a long list of accidents which have resulted

Ald. Franklin's ordinance requiring interurban cars to stop at all street crossings on its line in St. Paul, and recrossings on its line in St. Faul, and requiring the signs in the Midway district, which signify where the cars will stop, to be taken down, will no doubt also be adopted by the common council. In the Midway district the interurban cars do not stop at streets where there is no sign indicating that it is a place of stop-ping. Near the transfer several quite prominent street crossings are passed by in this way.

The resolution instructing Comptroller McCardy to include in his tax estimate for 1893 a sufficient amount to pay off several judgments against the city was recommended to pass.

They have cattle and other resources, and are in good shape, even if one article don't pair out satisfactorily. I have looked up our traite, and find that our orders are just as numerous as they were last year in this month; but the orders are all smailer than those of last year, which is entirely due to the weather. A Aopefal Future.

John Hart H. Hart, Murphy & Whaley. Manuracturers of Cigars—Our business has held up remarkably well. We are employing all the people we can get and would employ still more skilled workmen if we could get them. We are maintaining our grades, as the demand in the Northwest is for good qualities. The manufacturing interests of the cities are using about all the employes they have room for. Our collections are quite fair. When the large manufactories now being completed here are well under way their additions to the population will be astonishing. The heavy work will bring skilled mechanics and their daughters and sons will find employment in what is known as light manufactures—in making furs, clothing, notions, woolen goods and all that. The jobbers are helping the manufacturers and these should naturally work for each other's interest in a city like this.

A Minnesota Man Who Holds Seat in Britain's Parliament.

Mr. Sweetman has spent most of his time in Murray county, Minn., for the last twelve years as manager of the Sweetman Colonization company. The company owns a valuable tract of land in Murray county, where it was Mr. Sweetman' intention to locate as many of his countrymen as desired to obtain land in this trymen as desired to obtain land in this country, and to induce them to leave the large cities of this country. Last July he was elected a member of parliament from East Wicklow, and was present in the house of commons during the week's sitting in August and voted with his party, the Irish Nationalist, upon the celebrated division on vote of want of confidence in Lord Salisbury's government, by which the government was streets met yesterday afteraoon and reported favorably all the recent street railway ordinances which have been handed in. Those present were Ald. Conley, Franklin, Jensen and Warren. The Warren ordinance regulates the success of home rule and laughs at the threats of the house of lords, and says that they are "blufling," as Americans operated and gives the fite department of the right of way when going to fires, attaching a penalty when motoneers and gripmen do not bring their cars and trains to a halt to permit fire apparatus an opportunity to pass safely by.

Objection was made to introducing the letters in evidence on the theory that the wife cannot testify against the husband in a criminal case and that the letters being written to the wife cannot be used against him. Other evidence was adduced and the commissioner adjourned the case until Tuesday to consider the question as to the admission of the letters. In the meau-time Mr. Williams is out on bail. With a merry laugh she continued:

"I assure you I am a decidedly different woman to what I was before I began treatment at the Copeland Medical Institute. I had suffered from catarthal troubles for a number of years—in fact, as long as I can remember. At times my head would ache severely: especially would I experience pain across the bridge of the nose and between and over the eyes. There were sharp pains in the chest, so that when I breathed it hurt me. I was despondent and meiancholy for days at a time. I had consulted quite a number of different physicians who had been recommended to me, but they only prescribed medicines for me which had little or no effect in relieving me. I assure you I had about lost all faith in physicians and medicines, but I must confess since placing myself under the care of Dr. Hunt of the Cop land Medical Institute, which was in May last, I feel satisfied that the doctor has been remarkably successful in my case. Instead of feeling despondent, I am happy. I make this statement because I have many friends and acquaintances in this city and vicinity whom I know need this treatment. I shall be most pleased at any time to see any one who may read my testimonial, and teli them the facts in my case, for that I have received lasting benefit is indisputable."
