The Ramsey county delegation meets for the first time this evening. They meet at the chamber of commerce at 7:3. It is safe to believe that they will hit upon some much needed amendments to the Bell charter. There is lots of work before the delegation. The furnace scene in "Master and Man." the melodrama now holding forth at the Grand, presents one of the most realistic stage pictures ever presented in this city. Samuel Partridge, the assistant secretary of the state agricultural society, died at an early nour yesterday morning, at his home on the fair grounds. He had dropsy of the heart. The remains will be taken to Moorhead today for interment. President Burwell and Secretary Liggett will go to Moorhead with the body and attend the funeral Friday.

A large sale of seats is in progress for the engagement the coming week of "Kidnaped" at the Grand opera house. This strangely titled attraction is promised to offer a host of features in a realistic way. An entire carload of scenery is carried to provide for the elaborate staging of the play. The company is said to be strong and capa

The retail clerks' union held a largely attended meeting last night. Nomination for officers were made to be voted for Dec. 28. Several names of old officers were named and a number of new candidates were proposed. Further nominations may be made at the next meeting. There were four new mem-bers added to the roll last night and six other sitions for membership were handed in.

John Katsberg and Sam Rodensky were berore Judge Cory yesterday morning, to have a hearing on a charge of stealing tools and iron from the "Omaha" railway com-pany. The men cannot speak English, and are residents on the flats. The railroad company claims to have been systematically robbed for the past year or two and suspected people living on the flats. Special Officer Dooty went to the houses of the two men yesterday with search warrants and found tools and pieces of iron in the Katsberg house. He also found a crowbar in the Rodensky house. The latter claimed that the crowbar was left at his house by his brother-in-law, and was given until today to make his defense. Katsberg was fined $25.

The successful war drama, "Across the Potomac," will be given a fine spetacular production at the Metropolitan opera house for the week commencing Suuday evening next, by Manager Augustus Pitou's company of players. The scenes of this play, which has won such universal commendation, are laid among the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts and the James River Valley of Virginia, its action covering the whole period of the late conflict. Its authors, Messrs. Augustus Pitou and Edward M. Alfriend, had practical experience on the field of batttle, and many of the situations introduced in this play are simply reproductions witnessed there. "Across the Potomac" will be presented with handsome new scenery and costly mechanical and electrical appliances.

rally, at that time of day he took no notice of the parties, not suspecting anything wrong of them. They divided so as to let him pass between them. But of this action he took no note. As he was in the act of walking between he was aroused from his reveries by a revolver, which was shoved under his nose by one of the men. He was commanded to throw up his hands, and after taking a hasty glance at the outfit he concluded the best thing to do was to obey. And so up went his hands as high as he could reach. They took his gold watch and chain and some other valuables, and after feeling of his pockets to see that he had no weapon, they commanded him to take off his fine overcoat. He removed it, one of them took possession of it; and the three took possession of it; and the three started down the street on a run. Mr. Dawson's blood was well up now, and instantly he wheeled and took after them with his cane, calling "Police" as he went. He overtook the rearmost man and collared him. The man resisted, but Mr. Dawson was too mad to let him go; in fact, he was mad enough to kill a tiger, and the way he downed that fellow was frightful to behold. While he was engaged with this one the other two escaped. In the race the fellows dropped his overcoat, so that Mr. Dawson recovered that; but the watch was in the possession of one of the men

At the station the prisoner was recognized as being Dan Danforth, one of the most noted crooks of St. Paul. Danforth has for years prowled around the city, committing burglaries, all kinds of threving, and holding up people at every opportunity. He is a most dangerous grook and should be sent to every opportunity. He is a most dan-gerous crook, and should be sent to Stillwater for the longest term fixed by the law. He has been sent to the workhouse several times for ninety-day terms when he should have gone to the penitentiary; and he has several times escaped punishment when he should have been indicted and sent to the penitentiary. The other two sent to the penitentiary. The other two fellows are not yet caught, but it is greatly to be hoped that they may be taken in very soon and placed where their career of crime will be at an end for several years. HOUSE WORKER CAUGHT.

A Supposedly Slick Crook Under Lock and Key. A day-time houseworker created a good sized excitement shortly before noon yesterday along Olive street be-tween Seventh and Ninth streets. Mrs. James Fallow, who lives at 477 East Seventh street, returned home from down town at 11:30 and found a burglar in the house. She was so close to the fellow that she sprang at him as if to seize him. He seized her and for a few moments there was a pretty lively skirmish. But her screams attracted the attention of passers upon the street and very quickly people were rallying to her assistance. The burglar ran out of the house and started toward Ninth treet. Officer Coveney happened after the escaping criminal like a race horse. The thief was soon so hard pressed that he dogged into the cellar of Frank Keogh's house, corner of Ninth and Olive streets. The officer followed him and soon had him in limbo. The fellow had stolen the gold watch of Mrs. Fallow, but in the race dropped it some place. At the central police station he gave the name of Harold Jackson, and his age as thirty-seven. He is a well-dressed man of slick appearance, and the indications are that he is a very slick professional houseworker and all-round crook. Chief Detective McGinn thinks he has been doing work in Minneapolis. On him was found street are checks of On him was found street car checks of the Minneapolis lines; also interurban slips. CITIES SUFFER. Mortgage Fiends Get in Their Work in Ten Years. Labor Commissioner Powers has com-deted his statement of the mortgage foreclosures on lots and blocks in Minnesota towns for the years 1891 and 1892. The report show that in 1881 there were in the port show that in 1881 there were in the state 308 foreclosures, the amount of debt for which the mortgages were given was $315,-145,60. This included 874 blocks and lots, and they were sold for $437,634,64. In 1891 there were 1,631 foreclosures of this kind. The original mortgages were for $6,167,518,26. They covered 8,526 lots and blocks, and the property was sold under foreclosure for $6,422,368,99. If to this were added the acre property in the three cities, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth, we would have as the total of mortgage foreclosures in cities and towns the same—$7,063,818,21. This is more than six times the amount of the foreclosures on the agricultural lands of the state for the same year. The foreclosures on city property are sixteen times as great in 1891 as in 1881, while the amount of foreclosures on agricultural lands has increased but 8 per cent. The city foreclosures have increased several times faster than the increase in population and valuation, while the opposite is true of the country.

Arrest at Hastings of a Man Who Got Money Under False Pretenses.

The Case of Catherine Stochr in the Hands of a Jury-Routine of Courts.

There is a warrant in the hands of United States Marshal J. C. Donahower for the arrest of W. B. Bowen. The man is in jail at Hastings on the charge of violating the state law by securing money under false pretenses. He was arrested yesterday at Red Wing. The offense charged by the federal government grows out of the same alleged offense, but the marshal will not serve his warrant until the state gets through with Bowen. It is said that Bowen had cards on his person and which he presouted to several persons, representing himself to be a United States marshal, with a residence at Washington, D. C. The line of action pursued by Bowen is claimed to be that he went to a number of houses of prostitution in Minneapolis and collected license taxes. It is also claimed that he went to a druggist named Frank W. Finch and collected $37.50 on the representation that he was authorized to adless the following special authorized to collect the federal special

The West side flood case of Catherine Stoehr against The City of st. Paul is in the hands of the jury. Several hours was put in yesterday without reaching a verdict. Judge Kelly delivered an exhaustive and able charge to the jury before retiring, in which he laid down some interesting points of law. Excerpta from the charge of the court are as follows: "The plaintiff asks for $10,000 for personal injuries, sustained Aug. 5 last, by a flood of water which was precipitated over part of the Sixth ward by the bursting of Page street. The important question for the jury is, was the injury caused by the negligence of the city? If the accident, deplorable as it was, came from causes be and the ordinary control of the city, or i on auses for which, under the law, the city is the label, the plaintiff cannot recover. The plaintiff must prove negligence.

"The pury will ascertain from the evidence if the filling in of Page street caused an obstruction to a natural watercourse. Was there a natural watercourse there, or was it merely a course for the flowing of surface water; As to whether the surroundings were such that the place must be considered a natural watercourse, is a question of some difficulty. Every ravine in a hilly country, down which melted snow or heavy rains cause water to flow is not a natural watercourse, But where the descent is very steep, and the ravine is well defined as a course for large volumes of surface water, may be regarded as a natural watercourse, In this case he jury will consider the surroundings and the volume of water accumulated; the conditions existing before the fill was made by extending Page street, and the amount of waterfall. If the jury believes that this was a natural watercourse, then it is charged that the city had no right to build Page street across the ravine without providing suitable culverts or drains to carry off all the water ordinarily expected to flow down the ravine, and the bity of rain, which increased the volume of water above the fill four-fold. According to the evidence the rain storm was extraordinary.

"If the jury finds that this was not a natural watercourse, from the character of the surroundings, then the charge is that a verdict must be found for the city, because the city had the right to build across the ravine without caring for the surface water, in case the ravine was not found to be a natural watercourse. If it is found that the efforts of the city to remove the water were done in a careless way, and that the carelessness in this regard caused the fill to burst, then the city is hable for the injury."

Swift justice was meted out to William Howard in the criminal court yesterday morning. He was put on trial before a jury on a charge of robbing the store of William Corben, located on Wabasha street. The evidence was soon adduced. The counsel declined to argue the case. The charge of Judge Brill was brief. The jury was out a few moments and a verdict of guilty was returned. He was then sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. The whole proceeding lasted less than two hours.

Patrick Hill, a boy of twenty-two years was put on trial last evening, on a charge of robbing Jacob Koch, in front of the O'Leary packing house on Tenth street, a few weeks ago. Hill was born and raised in this city, but lately has resided in Minneapolis, that is, he has resided there when not in the worknows or the county jail. He has been in durance several times in the past year and had been out of the worknows even days when arrested on the present charge.

The case of Charles Hennig, charged with being implicated in the under of Adolph Hoppe at Bass lake on July 4, was called in Judge Brill's court yesterday morning. He played tolerabit welfur and led John Buckhont at the finish. As the game was near a close Capt. William Lay Bliss, of Chicago, mounted a chair and made a speech that so astonished Capt. Hardacre that the tears accurally moistened his mobile cheeks. Capt. Bliss, in his own form, related some of the billiard exploits of Capt. Hardacre, and he mentioned some of his sterling qualities, and instinated that the captain is about to open a boarding house in Chicago for the World's Columbian Expression. As he is a typical Yankee, he has a weakness for maple sugar, and Mr. Bliss said he had the honor and pleasure of presenting Capt. Hardacre with a cake. It was of the mammeth sort, and weighed twenty-five bounds. Capt. Hardacre made a reply, and the whole affair was of the antique sort.

Street-Acts as executor, admin-istrator, guardian, trustee, assignee, receiver, etc. STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF Ramsey—ss. in Probate Court. Special Term, December 13, 1892. In the matter of the estate of Henry Y. Smith, deceased.

In the matter of the estate of Henry Y. Smith, deceased.
On reading and filing the petition of The St. Paul Trust Company, executor of the estate of said Henry Y. Smith, deceased, praying that a time and place be fixed for examining and allowing its account of administration, and for the distribution of the residue of said estate to and among the creditors of said estate:

It is ordered that said account be examined, and petition heard, by the Judge of this Court, on Monday, the 9th day of January, A. D. 1893, at 19 o'clock a. m., at the Probate Court Room in the Court House in St. Paul, in said county.

And it is further ordered that notice thereof be given to all persons interested by publishing a copy of this order for three successive weeks, once in each week, prior to said day of hearing, in the St. Paul Dally Globe, a daily newspaper printed and published at St. Paul, in said county.

By the Court: JOHN B. OLIVIER, [L. S.]
