

WOMAN SAVAGES THE WILD MAN

WOMAN MOST CRUEL

Merciless to Her Own Sex to the Most Startling Degree.

When It Comes to Inflicting Tortures, No Man Can Cope With Her.

It is in Revenge Her Cruelty Shows Itself Most Terrible.

Some Very Shocking Historical Reminiscences Called Out.

Spencer says that among savage nations the women are as perverse as the men, and if they do not work so much it is because they are less able to do so.

This is not the only trait; doubtless women among savages are much more inclined to cruelty than to pity, but, generally speaking, human evolution at the very beginnings of human evolution is less cruel than man.

Woman and War.

Woman, even among savage nations, is rarely a warrior, says the writer. In the Antilles, the women watched over the safety of the islands whenever their husbands went to war with the neighboring island; they were brave, strong, courageous, nearly equalling the men in their cleverness in handling weapons.

Among the ancient Britons armies were always commanded by women. In Maloney the elite of the army is composed of a troop of 6,000 or 7,000 amazons, who are very courageous, particularly in the mutilation of dead bodies; women then become tigers, is a popular saying.

Among the ancient Scots women followed the army and fought and defeated the prisoners. Among the Botoscos, when war breaks out among the tribes, the men fight the men with their bows and arrows, and the women fight the women by scratching and by tearing the buttocks (cylinders of wood) from their ears with their fingers.

Generally speaking, the savage woman plays a secondary part in war; she acts as an auxiliary, picks up arrows, throws stones from a distance and carries the provisions, etc.

It is above all in revenge that female cruelty is most noticeable. Man is capable of destroying whole families or nations to satisfy a particular revenge; but nothing equals the ingenuity of woman in plotting the revenge of her victim, in gloating over his sufferings and lengthening them out in order that her enjoyment of vengeance may endure as long as possible.

In Tasmania, when the black war broke out between the English and the aborigines, the women were terribly tortured the prisoners, in order to carry their companions who had been carried off by the English. We must also attribute to woman the invention of the torments inflicted by the women upon prisoners of war among the Indians.

Elizabeth of Russia, betrayed by her lover, obliged him to marry a deformed dwarf, and to pass his wedding night in the palace, where the dwarf and the bride were all eyes. The next morning, attended by her court, she went to present the newly wedded pair with a bouquet of flowers. She stepped on the foot of the bride, and, nearly frozen, she then banished her rival to Siberia, first causing her ears and nose to be cut off.

A wealthy Russian prince, in love with a very beautiful girl of fifteen, took her to live with him for two years; at the end of which time, wishing to contract an alliance, he paid her a sum of money in dowry and obliged her to marry a peasant. The young girl made no sign for ten years, until the death of her husband; but after the lapse of that period, a rising having taken place among the peasantry against the nobles, she excited them and led a body of peasants to the castle of her ancient lover, but him taken and dragged into his lair, harnessed him to the plow instead of the oxen, and for three days obliged him thus to work, lashing him with the whip each time that he fell to the ground. At night she led him to the stable and made him lie down with the oxen, compelling him to kneel before the oxen, and making merry over his sorry plight. This amusement lasted three days, at the end of which time the man had become one of the turkeys he was plowing.

A Russian, an idle and worthless fellow who had left his wife suffer hunger, proposed to her that she should be sold as a slave to the sultan. After some hesitation she accepted and they started off, but when they had fallen asleep intoxicated, the idea came into her mind to sell him for a slave in the city of Mexico. She started off again on the road and arriving at the place of rendezvous, she delivered her husband to the merchant who remained there, and Turk pushed the half-awakened man into the boat, laughing while he showered blows upon him.

A young Russian peasant woman lived with a small land-owner, who betrayed her; at last she took refuge with a band of brigands, who treated her like a queen. One day she and her captives went to capture her old lover, and had him brought to the camp where she used him as a kind of living furnace, when she sat down and covered him with a carpet and put her feet upon him, and when she wanted to go she made him crawl on all fours.

Cruelty to the Helpless.

Woman sometimes displays the same amount of inhumanity in tormenting the helpless creatures who may be in her power. I do not know, says Bozeman, any one—perfidious, immoral or perverse than the New Caledonian woman. In certain portions of Australia, the women are cruel to the other. When the men wish to punish any one of them, they turn her over to her companions, who inflict upon her horrible tortures. Some of the boys, they cut her flesh with sharpened spears.

In Tasmania, as among the ancient Saxons, the unfaithful wife was punished by her companions; she was not killed, but she was tortured for a long time, until she pined away and died.

Women have often been cruel mistresses to their slaves. A lady in Guiana, who had a young girl named Matto, had her branded on the mouth, cheek and forehead. In the case of another slave, who was also very beautiful, she had the tendon of Achilles cut, thus causing her to become a deformed and crippled monster.

Among the ancient Britons and Greek ladies often inflict most terrible punishments on their slaves, and that it was more particularly toward the female slaves that they were cruel. The Roman ladies, if while they were having their hair dressed, they were seized by a slave, they were immediately put into their arms and breasts. Darwin relates that at Rio Janeiro, an English lady possessed a kind of a thumb-screw, which she used expressly to crush the fingers of her slaves.

Epidemic Cruelty.

During periods of great national excitement, such as revolutions, feminine cruelty is most noticeable. The women, writes M. de Camp, were the fiercest heroines of the Commune; they followed the army and committed the nation of the Dominicans. When the hostages were shot, they surrounded the men in cruelty; they taunted them with their own sufferings, and when they were employed to seek out the insurgents, they were implacable; when acting as inquisitors, they killed the wounded by striking them with their heels.

At the time of the French revolution, on the day of execution, the women of the guillotine were reserved for the men of the political clubs. They even hung on to the boards of the scaffold in order to witness the execution. When the condemned, and drowned the cries of the victims by their peals of laughter.

AN ISLAND EVIDENCE.

His Adam and Eve Were the Parents of the Cattle King Murphy.

Catalina Island, across the bay from Santa Barbara, has a story that attracts Eastern tourists to its shores," said W. W. Hunt yesterday.

In the early days, when the Franciscans colonized the Pacific coast, this island played an important part in the history of that region. The old monks, which founded an enclosure here, where Father Francisco, or the monastery at Monterey.

The occupants of the island were constantly changing, and frequently it was deserted for weeks. Light was the monks left in charge. It is a great curiosity to Eastern visitors to this day, especially the dark and noxious dungeons deep into the mountain rising hundreds of feet above the old Spanish dunes.

"It is a story of the Mexican ranchero on the coast of Lower California, who attracted much attention from the wealthy and the poor, who were his guests, and, indeed, her rare beauty was a matter of comment even in court circles during her stay in the City of Mexico, where her education was completed.

The young man bravely undertook the hazardous journey, and reached Santa Barbara in safety. Awaiting his opportunity, he slipped into the hands of the priests, who, if it is said, had almost driven her crazy with grief and fear, and together the couple escaped to the city of Mexico.

Without warning she was abducted from the City of Mexico, and taken a long, weary ride over the mountains, where she was interrupted journeying reached Santa Barbara, where she was kept under surveillance in the monastery. In some manner she managed to get word to her American lover, acquainting him with all that had happened and begging him to come to her rescue.

meetings ride to and from the church on bicycles. Now they have to leave their bicycles outside, where the small boys tamper with them and where, in case of a sudden shower, the machines would be injured by the wet. The shed will be inclosed and conveniently arranged for the storage of bicycles. So far as we can learn the Center church is the first in the country to provide a bicycle shed.

HIGH TOWERS.

London to Have One Which Will Overtop the Paris Giant.

Sir Edward W. Watkin, a railroad engineer and promoter of England, has found that the financial features of the Eiffel tower—that is, the amount of income derived therefrom—justifies the construction of a similar edifice in London, and has started the idea of erecting a tower to be erected in one of the parks of London, this year. The tower, which is to be about 150 feet higher than the Eiffel tower, and the construction will vary in a number of respects from that of the Paris tower.

As an income-earning investment the Eiffel tower has proved a wonderful success. Every stranger who has, during the last two or three years, visited Paris considered his stay incomplete if he has not ascended to the top of that monument, and the view afforded from that elevation has certainly justified the trouble and expense. There is little doubt, in spite of the more cloudy and foggy atmosphere of London, that a high tower there will command a large patronage, and it is not improbable that the structure of a similar kind in other great American cities would pay largely on the cost of building them.

Novel Toys Score.

There are few really novel toys this year, without a doubt, correspondent, but a number of old ones have been improved upon. Thus I have seen a manager of skin-covered animals so large and so beautifully modeled that a professor might lecture from them—elephant, giraffe and camel are of a size for the little ones to ride upon. The real novelty of the year is the "long-distance rifle," which will probably replace the old racing game altogether. The riders are almost entirely eliminated, and the stations and mishaps and successes are taken from the much-discussed Berlin-Vienna ride. A very handsome book is Buffalo Bill, and everything belonging to him—but that, I believe, was a novelty last Christmas. The picture books are the most handsome as the English ones, and in all the families where an English governess is kept the Christmas books are exclusively English.
