THE HULETT CASE.

Evidence That the Marriage Contract Was a Forgery.

DULUTH, Minn., July 5.—The application of Mrs. Lulu Pomeroy for the setting aside of a certain portion of the estate of the late Nemehiah Hulett came up today in the probate court with this court. Hulett was an eccentric old man who, during his last years, lived in the city of Duluth. He was married to Mrs. Pomeroy. Some time after his death the woman made application that the house where he had lived should be set aside for her as his wife. She produced also a marriage contract, executed on a piece of manila paper, and purporting to be signed by Hulett and herself, in which they set forth that, believing such a course proper, they declare themselves man and wife. There is no question as to the relations which existed between Hulett and the woman, but the facts which she alleged to constitute a forgery and that she was only his mistress. The testimony today tends to confirm the opinion of Judge Carey and Mr. MacFarlane, both prominent Duluthians and business associates of Hulett during his lifetime, that the marriage contract was a forgery and that the portion of the contract said to be in his handwriting was also a forgery. The amount involved in the case exceeds $60,000.

SILVER OFFERS.

First Six Months of 1893 Show an Increase Over 1892.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Inquiry at the treasury department as to whether the amount of silver offered for government purchase was as large now as for the first six months of the current calendar year the offers aggregated $2,350,000 ounces, while for the corresponding period of the year of 1892 the offers aggregated only $1,550,000 ounces, showing an excess for the corresponding period of this year of $800,000 ounces. It is estimated that the production of silver will not fall off in the United States. The amount of silver imported for the first six months of the current calendar year, including that in ores, was $4,741,000 ounces, while there has been imported $1,989,000 of the same metal since the beginning of the year. The amount of silver offered to the government during this period 27,000,000 ounces were purchased.

WILL RUIN THE NATION.

A Silverite Prophees Disaster to the Whole Country.

DENVER, Col., July 5.—At a meeting of citizens held at the chamber of commerce to discuss the silver situation, Hon. Charles S. Thomas, Colorado member of the Democratic national committee, and ex-Congressman James B. Belford were principal speakers. In the course his remarks Mr. Thomas said:

"I am impressed as I with the importance of this question above all other questions and its vital bearing on the future of the republic, that I do not propose to let the time of any party obligation on earth swerve me from the duty I owe to the people. Let us stand steadfastly together in the fight. We must beat or be beaten, and we are beaten we will at least know that those who have defeated us have involved themselves in a ruinous policy. Just so sure as a single gold basis is adopted and the total amount of gold production in the country, which is only $18,000,000, will be curtailed 40 per cent by the silver mines closing, and so surely will the bankers of the East own the property of the country as we are sitting here tonight on the anniversary of the nation's birthday."

SIX RESCUED ALIVE FROM THE YORKSHIRE COLLIERY.
LONDON, July 5.—The work of rescuing the living miners and of recovering the bodies of the dead is being pushed as rapidly as possible in Ingram's colliery, Thorshall, Yorkshire, the scene of yesterday's disastrous explosion that entombed the day shift of 145 men. Late this evening the rescuers had brought eighty-eight bodies to the surface. Two men were brought up in an unconscious condition but still breathing. The physicians who have been around the pit's mouth nearly all the time since the accident occurred at once took them in charge, and hopes are entertained that they will recover. Six men who had sustained no injury whatever, but had been imprisoned behind a huge mass of debris, were dug out this evening. When they appeared at the mouth of the pit they were greeted in the most touching manner by their relatives and friends. No reason has been given for the explosion, but the conjecture is that it was caused by carelessness on the part of one of the miners in opening his lamp.

PAT RYAN, janitor, badly burned about upper body and legs.
JAMES SHAGNESSY, back injured by a fall in trying to escape.
W. E. THOMPSON, burned about the legs.

The men named are being cared for at the city hospital.
Four persons were burned to death last night by the destruction of "The Floating Bethel," a cheap lunch and lodging house located on the river at the foot of Sibley street. Up to 1 o'clock two bodies had been found in the ruins and two other persons are known to have burned to death.

The bodies found were those of Mrs. Peak, matron on the boat, and an unknown man. Two women who were seen clasped in each other's arms on the flames, but their bodies have not been found.

Lulu Morgan, the twelve-year-old daughter of Rev. David Morgan, superintendent of the Bethel, was fatally burned, and Patrick Ryan, janitor on the boat, was also burned about the face and hands. Three other men were injured by jumping from the boat were taken to the city hospital. The fire started from a kerosene lamp explosion on the second story of the boat about 10:30 o'clock, and, being constructed of the flimsiest kind of wood, the structure burned like tinder. Forty persons, including the help, were on the boat at the time, and as the majority were in the staterooms, it was a miracle that all were escaped. The fire, which consisted of a switch engine on the Milwaukee road was the first notice of danger the occupants of the place had, and nearly all those who were asleep were awakened in time to make their escape in the confusion.

Some of the occupants leaped from the boat in the river, and seven who chose this method of escape were rescued by crews on the Sidney and Grace Mower, which fortunately were tied up at the wharf when the boat was wrecked. Two men and a woman are reported to have been drowned, but the report could not be verified in the confusion.

The register of the boat in which perished is as follows: Rev. David Morgan, superintendent of the Bethel, was fatally burned, and Patrick Ryan, janitor on the boat, was also burned about the face and hands. Miss Watling's Story.

Daisy Watling, a dining room girl who occupied a room in the Bethel, was rescued by jumping from the window of her room. Seen later in the ladies' room of the union depot, she gave an account of the fire, and as far as she was able to give a list of persons employed on the boat. She had retired about 9 o'clock, and was awakened by a smell of smoke. Opening the door of her stateroom she saw flames puffing out of the washroom, as she expressed it, "just like an engine." Seeing there was no chance for escape by the passageway, she broke out the screen of her window and ran in her night clothes to the rear and was taken off by a small boat.

There were four women and two men employed on the boat, according to her story, and all of the employees except Mrs. Peak, the matron, escaped. Two daughters of Rev. David Morgan—Kate, aged nineteen, and Lulu, aged twelve—were on the boat, but both were burned. Lulu is thought fatally; Kate about the hands. None of the occupants saved any of the clothing and the bodies were called out for blankets and sheets to enable the men and women to place themselves while being taken to a place of refuge. The patrol wagons were kept busy in carrying the injured and naked to the hospitals and central station.

Search for the Bodies.

The fire was under control in half an hour, and an hour after it started the firemen were engaged in searching the structure for the bodies of those supposed to have been burned.

The first one found was Mrs. Peak, the matron, who was burned so badly as to be almost unrecognizable. She was found in the room over the kitchen on the second floor and had evidently been attempting to escape down the rear stairs of the boat.

A few minutes after another body was found by the firemen. This was charged to Mrs. Peak, as she was seen in the examination found to be that of a man. The body was only a short distance from that of Mrs. Peak, and, like her, the man had evidently sought to escape by the rear stairway.
