

FELL HEAD FOREMOST.

LINEMAN KILLED BY ELECTRICITY AT EAU CLAIRE.

MINNESOTA'S IMMENSE CROP.

One of the Finest in the History of the Province—Milwaukee Is Hard Up and Asks Taxpayers to Pay in Advance—General News from the North-west.

Special to the Globe. EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Aug. 18.—Richard Hantsche, a much-respected young man employed by the electric company here as a lineman, met a terrific death this afternoon. He climbed a pole on Water street to cut an incandescent wire. He forgot he was sitting on a wire, a prong of which either pierced his clothing or his clothing was moist with perspiration, and when he took the live wire in his hand a circuit was formed. With a terrific yell he fell outward. His limbs were caught in the wire, and he dangled head downward. Lineman Kelly, his assistant, started up the pole, and tied a rope about Hantsche, but when the latter was raised, from the wire the rope broke and the body fell twenty feet to the curbstone. Experts say death had come before the fall. This is the second death from incandescent wires in a week.

FROM MOUNT ROYAL.

A CORRESPONDENT DRINKS IN THE BEAUTIES OF CANADA.

MONTREAL WELL SITUATED.

Excellent Description of a Sunday Service at Notre Dame—The Hospitals of Montreal Among the Best in the World—A Day at Bonsecours Market.

Special Correspondence of the Globe. MONTREAL, Can., Aug. 2.—From the summit of this green mountain, from which the city, which lies on a plateau about its base, takes its name, the tourist enjoys a vista, the extent and interest of which is not to be surpassed in North America. The ascent of Mount Royal, as it is now called, the name being anglicized, is made by the Mount Royal Park incline company, a balance railway which creeps up the steep mountain side much after the mode of ascending Pike's Peak. The summit attained, one finds the city in absolute possession of the year around, the whole of which has been dedicated for a public park. For sixty miles each way the view surveys the grand, majestic straits of the green St. Lawrence. Below is the city of Montreal, the French Canada and the English Canada, alive in the same embrace. She sits proudly between French Quebec, 172 miles east, and English Toronto, 338 miles west. The site is formidable, at the head of navigation, in the very heart of the continent, the pulse of every commercial artery in British America. Her history is that of heroism, romance and marvelous achievement, and as California typifies the bear, so Montreal and its province lives loyal, wise and thrifty beaver. Standing now on what was once an active, vivacious, bustling city, we see far below in the reflected glare of the noonday sun, the compact city of towers and spires, of ship arms and masts, of glittering streets and wide and gracefully winding streets—all upon a flat stretch of table land, beyond which the St. Lawrence teems with the craft of the world. Beyond the water the twin peaks of St. Helene stand sentinel in a nebulous mist. In another direction, all the way to the sea, the land is a level, a plain, a step, are the cemeteries of Cote-des-Neiges and Mount Royal. Deep into the forest of the island, the lumbering fishing launch rapids run towards the river. Straight in front, as if issuing from some deep, cavernous mountain bowels, stretches the tubular length of the great Victoria bridge, the eighth wonder of the world. St. Helen's stands next, directly to the left, and the middle distance rise the majestic twin towers of Notre Dame. They descend the mountain and pick out the level of the old pioneers, but now, by a splendid artifice, equipped as a city park, where the worshiper may sit and contemplate the cathedral of Notre Dame, which stands in its state of age and use across the street.

Murdered in the Night.

PLAINVIEW, Minn., Aug. 18.—Nie Udell, of Sparta, Wis., was found half a mile from Plainview this morning, having been murdered during the night. His head was mutilated in a horrible manner. A gang of tramps were holding a high carnival near the place of the murder yesterday evening, and it is supposed they did the horrible deed. No arrests have been made.

Special to the Globe. EAU CLAIRE, Wis., Aug. 18.—Edward Larson, a justice of the peace and prominent Pythian, is missing in Chicago. He visited relatives there, but had left to return home, and nothing has been heard from him by his family here for eleven days. The Knights of Pythias and detectives are searching in Chicago.

TRAIN ROBBERS.

Two Men Arrested in Missouri on Suspicion. ROLLA, Mo., Aug. 18.—Sheriff Martin has two men in custody whom he believes to be the robbers of Frisco Train No. 4 Thursday morning near St. James, Mo. The men are now at St. James, which is about ten miles east of here. Their names are John Lusher and Charles Coffman, and they are farmer boys and brothers-in-law. The officers have had the young men in the sweet box for the past twelve hours, but nothing definite has been ascertained. Although well connected, Lusher has been charged with several robberies in this vicinity in the past. Charles Coffman is the second son of Widow Newton Coffman, and until he began to associate with Lusher, was above suspicion. Sheriff Martin came to arrest them through a tip-tale note found by him near the railway track at the point where the robbers left the train. The note was written by Lusher, but bore no signature.

Tit For Tat.

Collector. "I really can't understand why you don't pay me my little bill. You have never given me a single cent." Hostetter. "McGinnis' bill time was not my bill. I explain it to you." "Now you are giving me impudence." "Well you were complaining just now that you hadn't given your thing. You are always grumbling about nothing." "You promised to pay me three months ago, and I relied on you." "That's so." "Precisely so. I lied on you and you relied on me, so we are even. Good-by."

Utopia. Montreal harbors some fine art under the control and care of the Association of Montreal. Tomorrow the custodian of the art association has engaged to lead your correspondent through the gallery with— HARRY W. WACK. SHE LOVED A HORSE. And Should a Teamster How He Should Care for One. "What are you doing to that horse?" The spectacle of a graceful and neatly-dressed young woman calmly rearranging the head gear of a worried horse is apt to excite remark even from the driver of a vegetable peddler's wagon, says the Kansas City Times. "Aren't you ashamed to tie this horse's head up so cruelly?" The speaker was Miss Boltz, a young actress who plays the leading part in a theatrical company now in the city, and she stood on a Walnut street curb deftly adjusting the horse's blinders and pulling a morsel of hay into his mouth. Then she loosened the cinch rein, while a crowd looked on approvingly and the horse gratefully rubbed its nose against the driver's hand. "I have had the driver come over and give me some good advice about the care of his beast. "Well, it's a very bad habit for horsemen to release their hand and let the animal's pleased head bobbed up and down for pure joy and the driver thought strange thoughts as he went on. "This is a very bad habit for horsemen," continued the young lady "almost as bad as Pittsburgh. Ever since I've been here I have noticed that you can walk about as usual, but when you get to Pittsburgh you are reined up and will effort they climb the steep hills. Their poor necks seem strained almost to bursting. It is a shame and ought to be stopped. Yes, I have read 'Black Betty,' and I think every teamster should have a copy."

IN PUPP-OUND.

Paradise for Fishermen in Waters Teeming With Life. Puget sound swarms with fish. Wonderful stories are told of them. So plentiful are the salmon that during the season when they are running up the streams it is said they will rush up a brook so thickly as to wedge together and form a barrier that no man can walk across, says the Chicago Journal. In jumping the falls of small creeks they often lacerate themselves terribly on sharp rocks. When the fisherman catches a fish of this country, even the ladies like them. One old fisherman down on the bank of a lake in the north had a pet salmon. It stayed in a certain little cove. During the rainy season the lady would come each day to feed it with bread. When she would start back it would swim up the water streets and follow her home, then swim down again to his little cove. Very queer fish are caught in these waters. One kind is called candle fish. It is dried and packed in boxes like candles. We are told the fishermen use them to light their homes, and at one time all the boats on the sound used them instead of sperm oil lamps. By putting the heads of the fish downward in a candlestick and lighting the tail, which, in conjunction with the backbone, forms a wick, it burns like a candle. They eat this fish, and when cooking it is so fat fries itself.
