

A RIOT IN CHICAGO. CONFLICT BETWEEN THE OFFICERS AND THE UNEMPLOYED. EXCITEMENT AT CITY HALL.

Three Policemen and Two Rioters Badly Injured—A Wild and Furious Mob—Mayor Harrison Will Allow No More Parades—Many of the Tough Element in the Crowd.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26. — A short but bloody riot occurred on Washington street in front of the city hall at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Police officers and parading unemployed men came together, and clubs and rocks were used with serious effects. The injured were Police Inspector Alex. Ross, cut severely on head and bruised about the body; Sergeant James M. Swift, cut on forehead, left hip badly bruised; Patrolman James Larkin, battered on the head from a club. Rioters: Michael Horvitz, cut on the head; John Wenzel, cut on the head. At 2 o'clock this afternoon hundreds of unemployed men gathered at the lake front park to listen to addresses relative to the labor situation. At the close of the speaking they formed for a parade. Proceeded by a brass band they marched up Washington street from Michigan avenue. They were formed in platoons reaching across the street from curb to curb. This style of marching completely stopped the progress of the street cars and vehicles, and at the corner of Washington and Clark streets the leaders of the parade ordered the men to march by fours. In the confusion of assuming this form there was a general mix-up. The result was a head-on collision with complicated matters. A United States mail wagon stood at the corner of Washington and Clark streets. The driver was anxious to reach a railroad train, but he could not get through the crowd. Word was sent to Inspector Ross, who was in his office in the city hall. The inspector walked over to the corner of Clark street and calling a couple of policemen to him, ordered them to clear a passage-way for the mail wagon. This was done.

Amid Angry Shouts and threats from the crowd. Some members were decidedly ugly. Near the sidewalk stood the buggy of J. H. Martindale, who had driven as close as possible to the curb in order to allow the parade to pass him. The marchers had spread out again, and were filling the street from curb to curb. The crowd directed Martindale "to get out of the way," to which he replied, "I only wish I could." In an instant the crowd seized the buggy and threw it over the sidewalk with a crash. Inspector Ross, followed by three men, rushed into the crowd and ordered it to move back. Horvitz picked up a piece of paving stone and hurled it at Ross, striking him squarely on the head and felling him like a log. The mob was wild by this time, and those who had passed the place came running back, made a rush for the officers and the fight began. Ross, who is a powerful man, knocked down several men in quick succession, and his men stood by him pluckily. The crowd was too strong for them, however, and when Sergeant Swift went down with a broken head Inspector Ross drew his revolver, and by threatening the crowd managed to hold them at bay for an instant. Inspector Shea hurried from the city hall at the head of a dozen men and charged upon the crowd, and Chief of Police Brennan, followed by his private secretary, came running from his office, where he had been reading a legal opinion on the rights of crowds to parade the streets, and began operations by knocking down two men. The police by this time had got the better of the mob, and had forced it back after a lively struggle, in which clubs, stones and Revolver Handles. A few minutes later and Inspector Lewis came from the west side at the head of seventy men, and getting his orders from Chief Brennan, bore down the crowd with little ceremony. Patrol wagons laden with officers came tearing up, and twenty minutes after the riot broke out, policemen were on the ground. The crowd, which numbered several thousands by this time, dispersed without much trouble. At the time the trouble broke out Mayor Harrison was in a barber shop near at hand, getting his gray locks clipped. The barber had just put on the finishing touches when word came that there was a riot in front of the city hall. The mayor was out of the chair in an instant. The barber will wait until another day for the price of a hair cut. His honor was on the street in an instant. He hurried to the city hall, and meeting Chief Brennan, who was just returning from the fight, he said: "Brennan, I would not have any more parades." "Not at any time?" asked the chief.

"Not at any time and watch these meetings. Keep your officers on the lake front and allow no disturbance. Break up any meeting that may become disorderly." This, the mayor says, he will stand to, and there will be no more parades of "unemployed" men allowed. The crowd today included many toughs, and the police say was composed of different material from that which formed the parades of the three preceding days. After the men had been dispersed at the city hall they again assembled at the lake front. As soon as the crowd had gathered speechmaking was begun, but the words were drowned by the shouts and cheers of the mob. About 4 o'clock

Mayor Harrison pushed his way through the crowd to the speakers' stand near the Columbus monument. He addressed the large gathering, and save for the few hisses and disrespectful remarks of the more desperate elements, not a word was uttered. He said that as mayor of the city of Chicago he had a duty to perform, and that the rights of the citizens must be protected. He explained to them that they were in no worse circumstances than thousands of them all over the country and implored them to go back to their homes and manfully endure their present temporary misfortune. That they would gain nothing by their parades and demonstrations, he impressed upon them, and said that they would not be tolerated. If they persisted in carrying on their parades and noisy gatherings upon the streets, impeding traffic and turning over vehicles, he declared that they would be stopped by the police, but he hoped that such methods would not be required. The mayor then concluded his speech by asking the crowd to disperse and go to their homes. When he had finished, cheers were sent up from the throngs of nearly all who had heard him, and the crowd scattered.
