withdrawing the notices of contemplated reductions. The railroad employees are a hard-working and deserving class, and the entire public will congratulate them upon their good fortune, while withholding no praise from the managers for the generosity and fairness they have displayed.

YESTERDAY'S ELECTIONS. The Republican party has for years been sowing the seeds of a pernicious system of finance and taxation. It has fallen to the lot of the Democracy to reap the harvest of disaster.

It was the expected that happened at the elections yesterday. When the Democracy won at the presidential election last year it was confronted by a bankrupt treasury, a currency dishonored at home and abroad, a burden of taxation grievous to be borne, and a political party that had lost the confidence of the people.

The wheels of industry ceased to revolve, the sails of the ships of commerce flapped idly at their moorings, and trade was paralyzed. It was not a sudden shock, but the culmination of conditions long existing, for which the Democrats were not responsible; the development of a disease whose poison had been already disseminated through the nerves and tissues of our economic system.

It is natural for the masses of the people to find the party in power responsible for the ills that befall them. It is a responsibility for which the party in power is not responsible. It is a responsibility for which the party in power is not responsible. It is a responsibility for which the party in power is not responsible.

It is a responsibility for which the party in power is not responsible. It is a responsibility for which the party in power is not responsible. It is a responsibility for which the party in power is not responsible. It is a responsibility for which the party in power is not responsible.

arrangements to protect themselves, and the first meeting was burlesqued by the P. P. Just as it burlesqued the murder of poor Herda until the GLOBE rebuked its shameless heartlessness.

The GLOBE has not had a political thought in its comments on the imbecility of the administration. Mayor Wright is so politically dead that Gabriel's horn, charged with a million volts of electricity, could not awake him to political life.

The GLOBE has demanded and will continue to demand his resignation as a public necessity, and in the interest of and for the protection of our citizens. He is not a wicked man, but he is incompetent. The city should not be governed over the feelings of a class lest it might lead to the feelings of a class.

The crocodile tears of the P. P. over the course of the GLOBE do not deceive anyone. If the P. P. is really desirous of the good of the city, it should have the courage to stand up for the safety and protection of our citizens, it will join with the GLOBE in demanding Mayor Wright's resignation.

If that event should occur it might prevent the P. P. from committing any more of the crimes of which it has been guilty. The problem of the hour is—When will Mayor Wright resign?

HISTORY REPEATING ITSELF. The elections yesterday recall Lincoln's first administration. He took the reins when a great moral crisis had reached a financial question was at stake, but in other respects the conditions were much the same.

I found a situation which neither he nor his party were responsible for, and it took time for him to accomplish the great task before him. Taking the presidency in 1861, his party was overwhelmed with defeat in 1862. Ohio, which gave such a Republican victory yesterday, was swept by the Democrats in the congressional election of 1862.

In 1864 Mr. Lincoln's administration was still a doubtful success, and if the election had occurred in August instead of November, McClellan would have undoubtedly been the victor at the polls. The October war victories were so decisive that Mr. Lincoln's administration was sustained.

Mr. Cleveland assumed the presidency last March, with the conditions handed down from a previous administration which resulted in financial disaster. There has never been time nor opportunity for his administration to accomplish its mission, and the people, smarting under a business disaster, cast their ballots yesterday against the party in power, as they did in 1862.

If Harrison had been chosen last November, the Republicans would have been defeated yesterday as overwhelmingly as they were defeated yesterday. The election was the result of business, not party conditions, and the Democratic party is in no wise responsible for these conditions.

Democratic defeat was inevitable to any party who has studied political history. Instead of being discouraging, it is a demonstration that all that is required to retain the Democracy in national power and restore their lost state supremacy is to apply the remedies to the business interests of the country which Republican policy has made so necessary.

The burden of the P. P. song was the old, old story that it hurts the city to let the money go. As the P. P. was never known to injure a man, it is not surprising that it cannot speak from any personal experience. It is not the GLOBE, but the imbecility of the city administration, which has caused the city to be in the hands of the P. P.

The GLOBE has done more in the past few weeks than all the combined efforts of the P. P. to keep the city in the hands of the P. P. It is publicity which the criminal class fear. When a community is assailed against that class it circumscribes the work of the criminals, and makes them more cautious in their deeds.

As to the efficiency of the police, the P. P. cites the "swift discovery and capture of the gold thieves in the lobby of the First National Bank." That claim will bear a little analysis. These alleged thieves first went to Minneapolis, but the police in that city, recognizing them as professional criminals, took their photographs and drove them out of the city. They then came to St. Paul, and they charged the city $5 per day for their service while drawing full pay from the city. To show their further skill as detectives, they induced a man to buy their bill to the county street car fare and tips to the sleeping car porters.

The next claim for the efficiency of Mayor Wright's police put forth by the P. P. is the capture of the murderers of Herda. Here, too, a little analysis is in point. Two men are under arrest for that crime. The third man and supposed ringleader, who is still at large, is a notorious criminal known as Reddy Hackett.

He has been sent to the penitentiary both from Minneapolis and St. Paul, and every detective in this region who knows anything knows him and his desperate character. It was allowed to make his home in St. Paul, and when he got ready to commit a crime he perpetrated his deed and escaped. If the authorities had done their duty, he would not have been permitted to remain to do a murder or any other crime.

When the next murder is committed the St. Paul detectives will be looking for some other fellow they have allowed to live under their noses, and if perchance they find him, they will be herded in as a great feat accomplished. But the poor victim of the crime cannot be restored to life. It would not do to give the protection before the event, for then the P. P. could not "point with pride" to the arrest.

But the citation of these two cases is purely in the extreme. Citizens have been held up by the score, dwellings have been burglarized by the dozen, and even the chief of police's office has been blown up without any arrests whatever being made.

There has been more undetected crime committed in St. Paul under Mayor Wright's administration than in any ten previous years of the existence of the city.

The citizens of the First ward have held two meetings to make some arrangements to protect themselves, and the first meeting was burlesqued by the P. P. Just as it burlesqued the murder of poor Herda until the GLOBE rebuked its shameless heartlessness.

The GLOBE has demanded and will continue to demand his resignation as a public necessity, and in the interest of and for the protection of our citizens. He is not a wicked man, but he is incompetent. The city should not be governed over the feelings of a class lest it might lead to the feelings of a class.

The crocodile tears of the P. P. over the course of the GLOBE do not deceive anyone. If the P. P. is really desirous of the good of the city, it should have the courage to stand up for the safety and protection of our citizens, it will join with the GLOBE in demanding Mayor Wright's resignation.

If that event should occur it might prevent the P. P. from committing any more of the crimes of which it has been guilty. The problem of the hour is—When will Mayor Wright resign?

we were fast reaching owing to the depreciation of the value of the metal, caused by its overproduction and the persistence of its producers in demanding for it undue and illegitimate preferences. Silver's worst enemies were its professed friends.

CONGRESS neglected to make an appropriation for carrying out the provisions of the Geary law for the deportation of the Chinese, and it will be impossible to enforce it as a consequence. It is perhaps as well that the omission occurred. The law is of questionable propriety, and smacks strongly of injustice. It will, in all probability, be repealed before a year has elapsed.

ABOUT a dozen of the Chicago world's fair hotels have been closed by the sheriff. They didn't pay expenses, to say nothing about interest on the mortgages. The Chicago householder in the Windy City kept boarders during the fair season, and the high-priced hotels were left in the lurch. There are many capitalists in mourning as a consequence.

TOMMY WATSON, the distinguished Georgia Populist, undertook a big job during the campaign just closed. He essayed to carry the Populist legislative ticket, and thus secured the defeat of Speaker Crisp; and his own election to the United States senate. Tommy made a brave fight, but of course failed. He does not know now just "where he is at."

NEW BOOKS. GLENN TEN EYCK, by W. O. Stoddard. 8vo. cloth, illustrated by Merrett. Boston: D. Lothrop company, publishers. A story of the stirring times that marked the beginning of the republic. It is well named "a hero story," for it tells of the life of a man who has sacrificed his life for the common good. The book is a masterpiece of common sense that made the foundations of the new government both deep and broad. It is a book for every boy and girl in the country to read, entirely free from moral sentimentalism, and as wholesome and inspiring as any book of the kind. The Indian, Up-na-lan, has the real aboriginal flavor, and the negro, Co-co, with his marked race characteristics, serves as a fine foil to the Indian.

IN THE THEATERS.

The first of a series of the wonderful Urania scenic spectacles was presented at the Metropolitan opera house last night to a large audience. In connection with the different scenes, Garrett P. Serviss gave explanatory talks, tracing the evolution of things "from chaos to man" in a most interesting way.

The splendor of the electro-mechanical effects was superb, and the scenery very well explained by Mr. Serviss, and all going to show the progress of the different scenes, were particularly well enjoyed. The entertainment, on the whole, is a rare artistic treat, and has, in addition to its entertainment value, a most instructive character, and people who have become tired of being amused so much were entertained to the utmost.

Katie Emmett's manager is strongly feeling the effect of the strike. Her leading support for her star, Mack is a very sweet tenor singer, and is a clever actor in the line. The part of Alan Tracy, a young Irish-American officer, which was played by Harry Leighton last year, has been rewritten with a view of displaying to the best advantage. The Western press has commented on the wonderful manner, and his singing of a number of fine songs during the progress of the play is said to be one of the best features of its performance.

"The White Slave" is demonstrating its popularity in the city. It is a very interesting play, and has, in addition to its entertainment value, a most instructive character, and people who have become tired of being amused so much were entertained to the utmost.

THE STATE CAPITOL.

What the State Papers Say as Far as They Have Got.

It is a convenient and slightly location, and the price is reasonable.—Fairbairn Democrat. Two hundred and fifty-six thousand dollars for the state capitol site! When—Rochester Record and Union.

We dreamed that the capitol would be built without any appropriation. "Wonder if dreams come true?"—Renville Star Farmer. While this may be a fair and equitable value for the land chosen, the Journal believes that such sites should be donated.—Big Stone County Journal.

The capitol commission of Minnesota selected the head of Wabasha street, St. Paul, for the new capitol. Price, $250,000.—Grand Forks Northwest News. A new capitol commission has bought a site for the new capitol building at $250,000, or more than twice the assessed valuation. Robbery number one is now recorded.—Anoka Union.

The capitol commissioners have bargained for a site for the new state house in St. Paul. The price is a little over a quarter of a million dollars, and it is located about three blocks north of the present capitol.—New Ulm News. The great state of Minnesota will not be broken up by the capitol commission, and we want a capitol that will be a credit to the state.—Fairbairn Democrat.

All of our damphol laws passed by the legislature the one to build a new capitol, and the next legislature ought to pass a law deferring its action for about twenty years.—Anoka Union. The capitol commission has at last secured a site. It is near the old capitol building, and the price is $250,000. The site in the Midway district would have been given the state free of charge, but it is utterly impossible for it being located there.—Fertile Journal.

Minnesota has to pay $250,000 for the site for a new capitol building. Very few states have to pay anything for a capitol building site. There are usually real estate boomers and city corporations looking for a chance to sell the site for a large profit.
