

THE DAILY GLOBE

PUBLISHED EVERY DAY AT THE GLOBE BUILDING, CORNER FOURTH AND CEDAR STREETS. ST. PAUL GLOBE SUBSCRIPTION RATE: Daily (Not Including Sunday) 17¢ in advance, $5.00 13 mos. in advance, $2.00 6 mos. in advance, 4.00 6 weeks in adv. 1.00 One month, .75

WEEKLY ST. PAUL GLOBE: Complete files of the GLOBE always on hand for reference. Terms and rates on application. Advertisements and telegrams to THE GLOBE, St. Paul, Minn.

Eastern Advertising Office—Room 41, Times Building, New York. WASHINGTON BUREAU, 1465 F ST. N.W. Complete files of the GLOBE always on hand for reference. Terms and rates on application. Advertisements and telegrams to THE GLOBE, St. Paul, Minn.

TODAY'S WEATHER. WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—For Wisconsin: Increasing cloudiness, with snow or rain; light westerly wind; moderate to cold.

IT IS evident that the public has not yet got at the meat in the Sandwich issue.

THANKSGIVING DAY will mark the close of the football season. And yet some people say the country has nothing to be thankful for!

JERRY SIMPSON has formally cut loose from the Populist party. It is hard to say whether he or the party is benefited the most by the severance of relations.

The reason why the city authorities do not have the sidewalks cleaned of the snow and ice, or sand them so as to prevent accidents, is probably that the officials lack the sand.

SOME of the Minneapolis aldermen went "slumming" the other night after the close of the council meeting. They needed some excitement that would blot the recollection of their official acts from memory.

THE Republicans held a love feast in New York on Friday night over the victory they achieved at the late election. They are welcome to their satisfaction that they can obtain from this first course at table, but the Democrats will all be there when the wine and walnuts are reached.

THE sons of the early missionaries to Hawaii were true to the proverbial reputation ministers' sons have acquired in all other lands. They made the word missionary a by-word of reproach to the natives—a word which, Blount says, "became a campaign phrase of wonderful potency."

MINISTER STEVENS seems to have thought himself a "bizer man" than "old Harrison." Though the latter expressed and pointedly disavowed the protectorate which the minister declared over Hawaii, it appears that his protectorate was in full bloom, when Commissioner Blount ordered there, several months after the disavowal.

IN VIEW of Parson-Minister Stevens' intimation to Commissioner Blount to accept the house, servants and carriages tendered him in Honolulu proffered by the Annexation club, for which the commissioner might pay "from nothing up," it might be a matter of pertinent inquiry how much rent Minister Stevens paid for his residence, and who furnished him with horses, carriages and servants.

IT IS to be hoped that the striking employees of the Loring road have not, as reported, determined upon the use of dynamite for the purpose of destroying the property of the company. Such a course would alienate many who now warmly approve of their cause. Dynamite is the weapon of cowards, not of brave men, and inflicts far more injury upon the innocent than upon the guilty.

IN THE matter of bank clearings the cities of the South make a better showing than those at the North. During the week just closed St. Louis, Baltimore, Houston, Savannah, Atlanta and Fort Worth show an increase over the previous week, while at the North few cities make a creditable showing. The South is evidently making the quickest recovery from the recent business depression.

THE Friendly Inn, that is to be opened here on Monday, will prove a welcome refuge for the homeless wanderers of the city. It will accomplish a beneficent work, provided its charitable walls are not made a harbor for shiftless tramps. The fact, however, that it will be under the management of Rev. David Morgan will be accepted by citizens generally as a guarantee that their charity will not be unworthily bestowed.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND is reported to be opposed to the imposition of an income tax. This fact, if well founded, will probably have considerable influence upon the ways and means committee, which now has the subject under consideration. It would be a hard matter to pass such an amendment to the law against the combined opposition of the president and the Eastern congressmen, nearly all of whom oppose it.

THE commercial agencies report an improvement in the tone of business throughout the country generally. There is, however, much room for further improvement, and no hope for a permanent betterment of conditions until congress shall have determined upon a policy as to the tariff. This fact should be borne in mind by our representatives when they assemble at Washington.

THE British admiralty has been thrown into consternation by the recent trial trip of our new cruiser, Columbia, in which she displayed such phenomenal speed and facility of evolution. In these respects she surpasses all vessels in the British navy. As a rule, the English ship of war is clumsy and unwieldy, easily falling a prey to the fury of a storm, and her evolutions are so slow that an active enemy possesses a great advantage. It is admitted by the admiralty that the best of the British ironclads would stand a poor show with a vessel such as the Columbia, which could steam all around an adversary and pour shot and shell upon it from every point of vantage. Our success with the new cruisers for our navy will probably lead to a revolution in naval construction in England, if not throughout the world.

THE THANKSGIVING GLOBE. If you are short on something to be thankful for next Thursday, it will only be necessary to secure the SUNDAY GLOBE of today, and you will have occasion to be thankful that such a paper as the GLOBE exists.

When you secure a SUNDAY GLOBE you are sure of a feast, and by repeating the dose every Sunday you can extemporize a Thanksgiving of your own at frequent intervals.

THE SUNDAY GLOBE talks turkey today, and bristles with interest in every line and every column.

The variety and entertaining character of the contents of today's issue have never been surpassed in the Northwest.

The GLOBE is always at the head of the procession.

Others follow. The GLOBE leads. Nearly and possibly quite ninety columns of advertising this morning testify to the view business men take of the GLOBE.

The live business men know a live newspaper.

They do not advertise for sentiment or for fun.

They advertise because it pays. And they use the GLOBE liberally because it pays them to do so.

Every column of advertising this morning is a practical testimonial to the enterprise of the GLOBE.

The GLOBE modestly accepts the testimonial and extends the compliments of the season.

THE request which the GLOBE has made and continues to make for Mayor Wright's resignation has been in the interest of the city, in the interest of good government, in the interest of morality, and in the interest of every thing decent.

It is also in the mayor's interest, as his resignation might avoid developments decidedly unpleasant. There is no politics about it. If the GLOBE were laboring to score a partisan victory it would not be so earnest.

It remains for the mill of public sentiment at the polls. His Chicago partner will not need to act as umpire, for after he goes through that mill there will not be enough left of him to be found.

The remains would not stop the hole bored in the chief of police's safe.

MINISTERS' SONS. The public is often regaled by sneers of the unthinking for the ignorant and the pious of the clergy, and such denunciations are not the rule, but the exception, and because they are exceptional they attract the greater attention and an undue prominence. One does not have to search far, either in the United States or England, to find how baseless is the accusation that children born of pious parents are unusually prone to go astray. The example of the Beecher family may be cited—a family distinguished for its eloquence and piety.

Dr. Lyman Beecher's remaining years are spent on account of his sons, four of whom have been among the most eminent and consistent Christian teachers in the country. The sons of Dr. Lyman Abbott have been as distinguished as was the father in the realm of theology—men of fine mental ability and distinguished piety, who have honored the nation by their learning and scholarship. The family of Bishop Alonzo Potter, of New York, is another in point. Three of his immediate descendants were clergymen and bishops, and all of the remaining scions of the house occupied positions of honor in civil life.

There is another son of a clergyman who can hardly be classed with the rest, as he is a layman, but his opinions differ as to the place he is entitled to occupy. Col. Robert G. Ingersoll's father was a Presbyterian clergyman of prominence and excellent moral capacity. But it is doubtful if, with all his earnestness and zeal, he accomplished as much good for religion as his son "Bob." The latter, notwithstanding his professed agnosticism, has been a power for good in the church. He has borne a faithful part to the clergy in that chastethood. He has been an uncompromising foe to hypocrisy, cant and sham; he has exposed heresies in the church; he has denounced immorality among those who professed Christianity. He has stimulated inquiry into theological dogmas, both on the part of the clergy and laity, with the result of eliciting explanations of mooted points of theology that were the source of much doubt and controversy. He has honored the clergy, as far as themselves with knowledge, with a breastplate, and has awakened an interest in religion that would have been dormant but for his criticisms and reports. Col. Ingersoll, besides, has been a benefactor of the church, and a religious training, for his private life has been blameless, and his public record without stain.

Perhaps the most distinguished instance of what may be accomplished by the son of a clergyman is before the public today. The father of President Cleveland was a Presbyterian minister, who, though poor and moving in a circumscribed world, brought his son up in "the fear and admonition of the Lord." President Cleveland is not himself a "professor" of religion; he is content to perform his duty towards the people of the nation who have honored him in such a manner as to merit the encomium of the Master, "Well done, good and faithful servant." He is firm as adamant in his convictions of public duty. Once convinced that he is right, there is no power on earth that can sway him. Considerations of policy have no weight with him; principle—the principle of eternal and immutable justice—is alone his guide. His character was formed by his godly father, and the teachings of his youth have not been forgotten in the days of his manhood and power. He is a minister's son, in whom the whole nation is justly proud; for, whatever differences of a political nature may exist among Americans, all unite in giving Grover Cleveland, a minister's son, credit for honesty, patriotism and sincere regard for the public interests in all that he does.

The list of distinguished men who have been the sons of ministers might be extended indefinitely. Close inquiry will develop the fact that they are all human and prone to err, but that a large proportion of them have not been deceivers, but, on the contrary, have adorned the stations in which they were placed with fidelity, and in many instances with extraordinary ability and sagacity.

When the governor of Wisconsin issued his proclamation calling upon all the people of that state to give thanks to Divine Providence for the mercies which they had received, his words were looked upon as a hollow mockery by thousands of the inhabitants of the northern portion of the commonwealth. For they were without food or raiment, and threatened, on the verge of a hard winter, with starvation or extreme suffering. But even these people will have reason to be thankful next Thursday, for the governor has taken good care to make of the day something more than a barren ideal. Although a few days have elapsed since their deplorable condition was made known, the governor has already guaranteed them enough and to spare. In response there has been a perfect river of food and clothing flowing continuously to the afflicted region, and the people there, so recently in want, are safe from all fear. It will be a joyous Thanksgiving in that region.

ONLY A CLOUD. We had with us this week a native of Bombay, one of a people to convert whom to the doctrines and the dogmas of Christianity there has been given a century of unavailing effort, who came here preaching the fatherhood, the motherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. With a breadth of view and toleration of which the Occident is only now getting the dawn, he told us how, in His own time and way, by means adapted to each time and place, God has sent His message to all peoples, and that message was always the same, His fatherhood, man's brotherhood. He rebuked the narrowness which arrogated to any people to whom His message came that they were the chosen people of God, or that the message one had received was the only true message. In them all, when the dry husks of dogma and ceremonial were stripped off, was to be found the same vital, single truth of the fatherhood and the brotherhood.

Three months ago there met in Chicago as unique and unprecedented an assemblage as this world ever saw. It was one which no century of the world could have seen but this. It was one here preaching the fatherhood, the motherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. With a breadth of view and toleration of which the Occident is only now getting the dawn, he told us how, in His own time and way, by means adapted to each time and place, God has sent His message to all peoples, and that message was always the same, His fatherhood, man's brotherhood. He rebuked the narrowness which arrogated to any people to whom His message came that they were the chosen people of God, or that the message one had received was the only true message. In them all, when the dry husks of dogma and ceremonial were stripped off, was to be found the same vital, single truth of the fatherhood and the brotherhood.

Immediately after his resignation was offered he left the hall, as he said, to attend to some personal business.

This step was a surprise to all the delegates, although a few of them said it was what they had expected. No action was taken on the matter, although it was the topic of discussion while the delegates were in session. The causes which led up to the resignation are as follows: After Mr. Powderly had been repeatedly urged by the assembly to substitute a new list of names for members of the executive committee, he acquiesced in these demands. The second list was not much more favorably received than the first one, but he was most persistent in his efforts to have it accepted. The measure of the assembly adjourned yesterday without getting any further along. Today the fight was begun with a new vigor. Every point raised by the master workmen was stubbornly fought by his opponents. Still no result. In the afternoon the delegates were divided into the anti-Powderly faction, and they began to elect a board that would best suit them. The first man chosen in the way was H. H. Martin, of District Assembly 791, who got a majority vote of 31. James M. Keiny, of D. A. 82, got a vote of 23, and J. A. Hannibal, of Washington, polled 22 votes, a bare majority.

Mr. Powderly's efforts to have his slate considered were all in vain. He was almost fruitless in his endeavors to impress upon the assembly that he was the only exercising his powers his office was vacant. His opponents told him he had misconstrued the meaning of the constitution. This only added fuel to the flames.

Mr. Powderly would not accept the committee the delegates had elected. He declared their election illegal. Then the climax came.

The defeated leader spoke with remarkable eloquence and vigor. "Gentlemen, you must either obey the spirit of the constitution or declare the office of general master vacant. I do not intend to resign."

With that he left the hall. All delegates were more than surprised. They were astonished to find that the matter was discussed in all its phases. Would they accept it, or would they not? While they were talking it over the hour adjourned.

Mr. Powderly was asked tonight if he had really resigned.

"What is the truth to stem the tide that was bearing some of the men, and the trust of the men, downward," he replied, "I told the delegates that they had better decide on their own heads to accept my resignation, as I would not longer serve. In a day or two I will make a statement of the facts, and you will see that I should do so. When I left the hall it was to attend to some private business."

The delegates are suffering from severe attacks of cold, and Secretary Treasurer Hayes was considered extremely ill for several days. The delegates are, therefore, practically out of the way for the time being.

While the outcome of Powderly's resignation is still in doubt, some talk as to his probable successor is being freely indulged in. Mr. Sovereign, of Iowa, and McGuire, of New York, are those most prominently named, with the former somewhat in the lead.

MR. SAGE'S SAY. The Kansas Pacific Trouble Discussed.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—In view of the controversy between holders of Kansas Pacific securities and Russell Sage, trustee of the consolidated mortgage bonds of the Kansas Pacific Railway company over the disposition of the funds in the hands of the trustee from the sales of the company's lands, Mr. Sage said today: "In the first place, the amount I am obliged to hold as trustee resulting from land sales has been greatly exaggerated. It is only about $200,000. Heretofore this money could properly and has been used to retire the consolidated bonds, but now the company is in the hands of receivers and I have been called upon under section 4 of the deed of trust, to pay the funds in my possession to make good a deficit in the company's earnings about equal to the sum I hold, and which is to be applied to the payment of the November coupons of the bonds. I have agreed to turn over the money to the receivers in an order of credit, which has been applied for. During the last fourteen years nearly four million dollars worth of bonds have been purchased with the money received from land sales, and the amount of outstanding bonds has been reduced from sixteen millions to about four million. The amount of land still remains unsold.

"As to my claim for $70,000 for services as trustee for fourteen years, I don't think it will be considered unreasonable by disinterested persons. I have not in the least exaggerated the amount I burden the company with the securities of which I am a large holder."

WAS SHE POISONED? Mysterious Death of a Mason City Girl at Seattle.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 25.—Hannah Whitman, whose mysterious death has caused a sensation at Mason City, Ia., died in this city Nov. 18. She came here that date with her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Pollock, and they stopped at the New England hotel. The night she died in convulsions, and the CONTENTS OF THE SUNDAY GLOBE.

Page One. Queen Liliuokalani makes a statement of her case.

Page Two. Yale beats Harvard at football. Schaefer beats Ives at billiards, his last night's run reaching magnificent figures.

Page Three. Lyons, the train robber, commits suicide.

Page Four. Editor Albert Wolff throws himself in front of an engine.

Page Five. William Haenig attempts to kill himself with a razor.

Page Six. The French cabinet resigns. Members of congress gathering in Washington.

Page Seven. A day's doings in the St. Paul courts.

Page Eight. A. E. Horton Furniture ad.

Page Nine. Old-time Minnesotans. Society news.

Page Ten. Minneapolis local news. Railroad intelligence.

Page Eleven. Entrancing tea gowns. Pretty parlor dances.

POWDERLY RESIGNS. Great Surprise Among the Knights of Labor.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—T. V. Powderly resigned his position of general master workman of the Knights of Labor this afternoon. He was unable to keep the delegates in the line he had marked out for them, and this decisive move seemed the only thing left for him to do.

Immediately after his resignation was offered he left the hall, as he said, to attend to some personal business.

This step was a surprise to all the delegates, although a few of them said it was what they had expected. No action was taken on the matter, although it was the topic of discussion while the delegates were in session. The causes which led up to the resignation are as follows: After Mr. Powderly had been repeatedly urged by the assembly to substitute a new list of names for members of the executive committee, he acquiesced in these demands. The second list was not much more favorably received than the first one, but he was most persistent in his efforts to have it accepted. The measure of the assembly adjourned yesterday without getting any further along. Today the fight was begun with a new vigor. Every point raised by the master workmen was stubbornly fought by his opponents. Still no result. In the afternoon the delegates were divided into the anti-Powderly faction, and they began to elect a board that would best suit them. The first man chosen in the way was H. H. Martin, of District Assembly 791, who got a majority vote of 31. James M. Keiny, of D. A. 82, got a vote of 23, and J. A. Hannibal, of Washington, polled 22 votes, a bare majority.

Mr. Powderly's efforts to have his slate considered were all in vain. He was almost fruitless in his endeavors to impress upon the assembly that he was the only exercising his powers his office was vacant. His opponents told him he had misconstrued the meaning of the constitution. This only added fuel to the flames.

Mr. Powderly would not accept the committee the delegates had elected. He declared their election illegal. Then the climax came.

The defeated leader spoke with remarkable eloquence and vigor. "Gentlemen, you must either obey the spirit of the constitution or declare the office of general master vacant. I do not intend to resign."

With that he left the hall. All delegates were more than surprised. They were astonished to find that the matter was discussed in all its phases. Would they accept it, or would they not? While they were talking it over the hour adjourned.

Mr. Powderly was asked tonight if he had really resigned.

"What is the truth to stem the tide that was bearing some of the men, and the trust of the men, downward," he replied, "I told the delegates that they had better decide on their own heads to accept my resignation, as I would not longer serve. In a day or two I will make a statement of the facts, and you will see that I should do so. When I left the hall it was to attend to some private business."

The delegates are suffering from severe attacks of cold, and Secretary Treasurer Hayes was considered extremely ill for several days. The delegates are, therefore, practically out of the way for the time being.

While the outcome of Powderly's resignation is still in doubt, some talk as to his probable successor is being freely indulged in. Mr. Sovereign, of Iowa, and McGuire, of New York, are those most prominently named, with the former somewhat in the lead.

THE GOAT AND THE DYNAMITE

Page Twelve. St. Paul society.

Page Thirteen. Additional St. Paul social news.

Page Fourteen. Composite New York letter. Announcements of church services today. Dramatic news.

Page Fifteen. First glimpse of the Trolley-illustrated.

Page Sixteen. Want advertisements.

Page Seventeen. Postmaster General Bissell's work described by Frank Carpenter. Thanksgiving poetry—Illustrated poem. Thanksgiving at Grandpa's—Illustration.

Page Eighteen. The Apparition Society convention. Modern poetry and song. Sam Walter Foss' department. The Specter—Key—Illustration. For Baby's Picture. Metamorphosis—Illustration.

Page Nineteen. Walking Prairie—A Thanksgiving story. Origin of Thanksgiving. Thanksgiving bear story. Telegraphic markets. Thanksgiving Dinner—Illustration.

Page Twenty. Fact became known that she was about to become a mother. The Pollocks were greatly astonished at the disclosure of her condition, and when she was dying begged to leave her to her fate. They related, however, and when she died had her body embalmed and buried. The physicians held a post mortem and covered the child, keeping it without informing the Pollocks. The body was exhumed and sent to Mason City, where the investigation caused the fact that the child was missing. The officials there believe the girl to have been poisoned and have asked the Seattle officials to investigate.

AN ASSASSIN AFTER HIM. D. H. Patterson, of Cleveland, Has Been Marked.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 25.—D. H. Patterson, timekeeper at the Otis Iron and Steel works in this city, has evidently been marked for assassination. Twice within a week his life has been attempted. One night about a week ago he was shot at in his car as he was riding in his carriage. The bullet struck his hat, knocking it from his head. Tonight as he sat in his office three windows were broken at his window. The curtain was down, and the assassin evidently aimed at Patterson's shoulder, but he was missed. He was shot at again five years ago, and again five years ago, but he escaped injury in both cases. He has been marked for assassination in such a way, for he has not, as known, a single enemy. There is no clue to the would-be murderer.

HANNIBAL BLAZE. A Three-Hundred-Thousand-Dollar Fire in the Missouri Town.

HANNIBAL, Mo., Nov. 25.—The most destructive fire in the history of the city occurred tonight, the total loss being estimated at over $300,000. The fire originated in the large store of the Williams-Voorhis Dry Goods company by the explosion of a coal oil lamp in the millinery department. It spread rapidly, and soon the entire interior of the building was a solid blaze. The flames leaped from the roof, and it was seen the adjoining buildings were doomed. Evidently the brick structures were destroyed with their contents. The losses: Williams-Voorhis Dry Goods company, $180,000; insurance, $90,000; C. C. Roberts, building, $50,000; insurance, $25,000; Stewart's hotel, furniture, building and stock, $35,000; insurance, $15,000; A. C. Roberts, building, $5,000; insurance, $2,500; Stewart's hotel, furniture, building and stock, $35,000; insurance, $15,000; Evening Courier Post loss $10,000; insurance, $5,000; W. W. White & Co., drugist, loss $1,500, covered by insurance; H. H. Clayton, building $5,000, insurance unknown; W. G. Brown, $100, insurance $2,500. Other losses will aggregate $20,000 to $50,000.

THE G. O. P. (Omniscient—Infallible—Infallible) For years I've been cogitating, and my thoughts have been running in rhyme. On the constant accusations that are echoed by blatant newspaper mouthers and the grand old party press.

Who consider a Democrat worthless and his party a little less.

We have a Democratic living at all, those idiots assert, And the way they harp us here and there, to say the least, is art.

One would think they had a mortgage on the learning and the brains of the party, and we were an irreparable, irrepressible vagrant band.

We don't know a thing about tariff; if we did we would make it so.

That protection, that arrant humbug, is the thing for you and me.

We don't know a thing about what we eat, for what we drink and wear.

For the sake of a few millionaires and the fact that in '90 and '92 protection was knocked sky high.

Has never occurred to the G. O. P., which has still more fat to fry.

Were the people fools, I want to know, when they voted us into power?

I ask the great Republicans this question of the hour.

The whining drawl of Thomas Reed is the inspired word of God.

Which, heretofore, has such partisans with wild acclaim applied.

McKinley Bill is the monarch of the realm that he serves.

And sickly adulation is the price that homage pays.

Forsooth, our well-loved president, because is a man with a nineteen collar and a number seven hat.

And that was the last election as a club to intimidate.

The weak-kneed Bourbon congressman or prospective candidate.

When Maynard fished the Empire state they writhed and paved the air.

Yet they stole the presidency and never thought of the people.

The Sherman act gracefully received their welcome to get great credit for undoing what was done.

They don't mind Van Alen for the campaign check he drew.

But the Waukegan morsel was a cud that they will use to prohibition and the fragrant A. P. A.

They will be to prohibition and the fragrant A. P. A.

Metaphors the grand old party should disband without delay.

We are stupid, blundering asses, so the grand old party say.

And they hold us up to ridicule before the people.

The splendid art of statesmanship was never so assigned.

And the people who elected us were to their interests blind.

An act of simple justice in restoring Hawaii's queen.

Is made the text for articles as puerile as the queen.

I wonder the great Almighty, in the wisdom of His plans.

When he put this hand to politics, didn't he make us Republicans.

THE GOAT AND THE DYNAMITE

McGinnis—O'll have the goat, I guarantee here till I gets me grub.

BILLY—Now, ain' this a picnic?

"So it's luttin' me yez be aiter, is it? Git, or O'll kick the loife out av yer!"

He kicks.

KANSAS POPULISTS

Fight Between the State House and Federal Ring.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Nov. 25.—An evening paper prints a story today of the Populist meeting held yesterday in this city, the gist of which was sent in these dispatches. The story of yesterday is substantiated and the following details printed:

"Jerry Simpson is charged by the faction that is loyal to Lowell with being the father of the movement. W. A. Harris, Senator Peffer and some of the other members of congress were represented by friends. It is the old story in Kansas of a state house 'ring' and a federal 'ring.' The new party, according to those who are present, is to make its stand on the single issue, the free coinage of silver. All the socialistic or semi-socialistic theories which played so important a part in the formation of the Populist party are to be thrown aside, and the new party, which is to rise suddenly in an unexpected place, is to be a silver party, nothing more and nothing less."

"The idea," says a well known Populist, "is to form a party that will carry the silver states from the first and unite both friends of silver, regardless of their views on other subjects."

O'NEIL DEAD. The Father of the House of Representatives Passes Away.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 25.—Congressman Charles O'Neil, the father of the house of representatives of this city, died at 6:15 p. m.

T. M. Roberts' Supply House. See large adv. on Page 14.

Without Glass, Now only $9.00.

Smith & Farwell Co. 409 and 411 Jackson Street.

HALF-PRICE

RETIRING

Monday and Tuesday, Every $4 and $5 Hat

FROM THE JEWELRY BUSINESS.

$50,000 Worth

DIAMONDS, SOLID GOLD AND GOLD FILLED AND SILVER WATCHES, CLOCKS, SILVERWARE, ARTICLES OF VERTU, BRIC-A-BRAC AND JEWELRY OF ALL KINDS.

We shall offer the above goods at public auction. This is no clearance sale, but a genuine closing-out sale, as we are positively going out of the jewelry business. Fifteen years of square dealing in the jewelry business in this city ought to convince the most skeptical that this will be a sale bona